Procedure where nett profits or market value wrongly estimated.

may in its discretion refund the excess paid as such fee but if the estimation has been insufficient, the Court shall require the plaintiff to pay so much additional fee as would have been payable had the said market-value or nett profits been rightly estimated

In such case the suit shall be stayed until the additional fee is paid If the additional fee is not paid within such time as the Court shall fix, the suit shall be dismissed.

Procedure in suits for mesne profits or account when amount decreed exceeds amount claimed.

61 In suits for mesne profits or for immoveable property and mesne profits, or for an account, if the profits or amount decreed are or is in excess of the profits claimed or the amount at which the plaintiff valued the relief sought, the decree shall not be executed until the difference between the fee actually paid and the fee which would have been payable had the suit comprised the whole of the profits or amount so decreed shall have been paid to the proper officer

Where any suit or appeal in which any such question has arisen comes before a Court of appeal, reference or revision, and such Court considers that the said question has been wrongly decided, to the detriment of the revenue, it shall require the party by whom such fee has been paid to pay so much additional fee as would have been payable had the question been rightly decided, and the provisions of the second paragraph of section 60 shall apply

Additional fee where respondent takes objection to unappealed part of decree

63. When any appeal is presented to a civil Court, not against the whole of a decision, but only against so much thereof as relates to a portion of the subject-matter of the suit, the memorandum of appeal shall be chargeable with the fee which would have been payable if the subject-matter had been such portion only, and, if on the hearing of such appeal, the respondent takes, under section 561 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an objection to any part of the said decision other than the part appealed against, the Court shall not hear such objection until the respondent shall have paid the additional fee which would have been payable had the appeal comprised the part of the decision so objected to

Suit comprising more than one subject

64. Where a suit embraces two or more distinct subjects, the plaint or memorandum of appeal shall be chargeable with the aggregate amount of the fees to which the plaints or memoranda of appeal in suits embracing separately each of such subjects would be liable under this Act.

Nothing in the former part of this section shall be deemed to affect the power conferred by the Code of Civil Procedure, section 45.

66. When the first or only examination of a person who complains of the offence of wrongful confinement, or of wrongful restraint, or of any offence other than an offence for which police-officers may arrest without a warrant, and who has not already presented a petition on which a fee has been levied under this Act, is reduced to writing under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the complainant shall pay a fee of eight annas, unless the Court thinks fit to remit such payment

Repayment of fees paid on applications to criminal Courts

67. Whenever an application or petition containing a complaint or charge of an offence, other than an offence for which police officers may arrest without warrant, is presented to a criminal Court, the Court, if it convict the accused person, shall, in addition to the penalty imposed upon him, order him to repay to the complainant the fee paid on such application or petition

In the case mentioned in section 66, the Court, if it convict the accused person, shall, in addition to the penalty imposed upon him, order him to repay to the complainant the fee, if any, paid by the latter for the examination.

When the complainant has paid fees for serving processes in either of the cases mentioned in the first and second paragraphs of this section, the Court, if it convict the accused person, shall, in addition to the penalty imposed upon him, order him to repay such fees to the complainant

All fees ordered to be repaid under this section may be recovered as if they were fines imposed by the Court

CHAPTER IX

PROBATES, LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION AND CERTIFICATES OF ADMINISTRATION

Relief where too high a court fee has been paid on probate or letters of administration

68. Where any person on applying for the probate of a will or letters of administration has estimated the property of the deceased to be of greater value than the same has afterwards proved to be, and has consequently paid too high a court-fee thereon, if within six months after the true value of the property has been ascertained, such person produces the probate or letters to the Court by which the probate or letters has or have been granted, and delivers to such Court a particular inventory and valuation of the property of the deceased, verified by affidavit or affirmation, and if such Court is satisfied that a greater fee was paid on the probate or letters than the law required,

the said Court may at its discretion—

(a) cancel the stamp on the probate or letters, if such stamp has not been already cancelled,

(b) order that another stamp be substituted for denoting the court-fee which should have been paid thereon, and

(c) order that an allowance for the difference between them, or a refund of the amount in money, be made as in the case of spoiled stamps

Relief where debts due from a deceased person have been paid out of his estate

69. Whenever it is proved to the satisfaction of such Court that an executor or administrator has paid debts due from the deceased to such an amount as, being deducted out of the amount or value of the estate, reduces the same to a sum which, if it had been the whole gross amount or value of the estate, would have occasioned a less court-fee to be paid on the probate or letters of administration granted in respect of such estate than has been actually paid thereon under this Act,

the Court may order the amount of the difference to be refunded, provided the same be claimed within three years after the date of such probate or letters

But when, by reason of any legal proceeding, the debts due from the deceased have not been ascertained and paid, or his effects have not been recovered and made available, and in consequence thereof the executor or administrator is prevented from claiming the return of such difference within the said term of three years, the Court may allow such further time for making the claim as may appear to be reasonable under the circumstances

Relief in case of several grants

70 Whenever a grant of probate or letters of administration has been or is made in respect of the whole of the property belonging to an estate, and the full fee chargeable under this Act has been or is paid thereon, no fee shall be chargeable under the same Act when a like grant is made in respect of the whole or any part of the same property belonging to the same estate

Whenever such a grant has been or is made in respect of any property forming part of an estate, the amount of fees then actually paid under this Act shall be deducted when a like grant is made in respect of property belonging to the same estate, identical with or including the property to which the former grant relates

Probates declared valid as to trust property though not covered by court-fee

71 The probate of the will, or the letters of administration of the effects, of any person deceased, heretofore or hereafter granted, shall be deemed valid and available by his executors or administrators for recovering, transferring or assigning any moveable or immoveable property whereof or whereto the deceased was possessed or entitled, either wholly or partially as a trustee, notwithstanding the amount or value of such property is not included in the amount or value of the estate in respect of which a court-fee was paid on such probate or letters of administration

Provision for case where too low a court fee has been paid on probates, &c.

72. When any person on applying for probate or letters of administration has estimated the estate of the deceased to be of less value than the same has afterwards proved to be, and has in consequence paid too low a court-fee thereon, the Court by which the probate or letters has or have been granted, may, on the value of the estate of the deceased being verified by affidavit or affirmation, cause the probate or letters of administration to be duly stamped on payment of the full court-fee which ought to have been originally paid thereon in respect of such value, and of the further penalty, if the probate or letters is or are produced within one year from the date of the grant, of five times, or if it or they is or are produced after one year from such date, of twenty times, such proper court-fee, without any deduction of the court fee originally paid on such probate or letters

Provided that, if the application be made within six months after the ascertainment of the true value of the estate and the discovery that too low a court-fee was at first paid on the probate or letters, and if the Court is satisfied that such fee was paid in consequence of a mistake or of its not being known at the time that some particular part of the estate belonged to the deceased, and without any intention of fraud or to delay the payment of the proper court fee, the Court may remit the said penalty, and cause the probate or letters to be duly stamped on payment only of the sum wanting to make up the fee which should have been at first paid thereon

73 In case of letters of administration on which too low a court-fee has been paid at first, the said authority shall not cause the same to be duly stamped in manner aforesaid until the administrator has given such security to the Court by which the letters of administration have been granted as ought by law to have been given on the granting thereof in case the full value of the estate of the deceased had then been ascertained

Executors, &c., not paying full court-fee on probates, &c., within six months after discovery of underpayment

74. Where too low a court-fee has been paid on any probate or letters of administration in consequence of any mistake, or of its not being known at the time that some particular part of the estate belonged to the deceased, if any executor or administrator acting under such probate or letters does not, within six months after the discovery of the mistake or of any effects not known at the time to have belonged to the deceased, apply to the said authority and pay what is wanting to make up the court-fee which ought to have been paid at first on such probate or letters, he shall forfeit the sum of one thousand rupees and also a further sum at the rate of ten rupees per cent on the amount of the sum wanting to make up the proper court-fee

Collector to deliver or pay stamp or amount directed by Court

75 When any Court orders under this chapter any stamp to be substituted or amount to be refunded, such stamp or amount shall be delivered or paid by any Collector to the person producing the Court's order or certificate authorizing such delivery or payment

This chapter applied to certificates under Acts XL of 1858, XXVII of 1860 and XX of 1864

76. The provisions of this chapter shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to certificates granted under Act No XL of 1858 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of Minors in the Pre- sidency of Fort William in Bengal), or Act No XXVII of 1860 (for facilitating the collection of debts on successions, and for the security of parties paying debts to the representatives of deceased persons), or Act No XX of 1864 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of Minors in the Presidency of Bombay), or Bombay Regulation VIII of 1827 (to provide for the formal recognition of Heirs, Executors and Administrators, and for the appointment of Administrators and Managers of property by the Courts), and to the holders of such certificates

CHAPTER X

(1) The stamp on any paper inadvertently and undesignedly spoiled, obliterated, or by any means rendered unfit for the purpose intended, before any instrument written thereon is executed by any party, and for which stamp no money or other consideration has been paid or given to the attorney, pleader, or other person employed to transact the business intended to have been carried into execution thereby, or to the person by whom the same was written

(2) Any adhesive stamp which has never been used or affixed to any paper, but which has been inadvertently and undesignedly spoiled or rendered unfit for use

(4) The stamp used or intended to be used for any bill of exchange or promissory note signed by or on behalf of the drawer thereof, but which from any omission or error has been spoiled or rendered useless, although the same, being a bill of exchange, may have been presented for acceptance or accepted or endorsed, or being a promissory note, may have been delivered to the payee, provided that another completed and duly stamped bill of exchange or promissory note is produced identical in every particular, except in the correction of such error or omission as aforesaid, with the spoiled bill or note

(5) The stamp used for any of the following instruments, that is to say —

(a) an instrument executed by any party thereto, but afterwards found to be absolutely void in law from the beginning

(b) an instrument executed by any party thereto, but afterwards found unfit by reason of any error or mistake therein for the purpose originally intended

(c) an instrument executed by any party thereto, but which by reason of the death of any person by whom it is necessary that it should be executed, without having executed the same, or of the refusal of any such person to execute the same, or to advance any money intended to be thereby secured, cannot be completed so as to effect the intended transaction in the form proposed

(d) an instrument executed by any party thereto, which for want of the execution thereof by some material and necessary party, and his inability or refusal to sign the same, is in fact incomplete and insufficient for the purpose for which it was intended

(e) an instrument executed by any party thereto, which by reason of the refusal of any person to act under the same, or by the refusal or non acceptance of any office thereby granted totally fails of the intended purpose

(f) an instrument executed by any party thereto, which for want of registration within the time required by law becomes null and void

(g) an instrument executed by any party thereto, which becomes useless in consequence of the transaction intended to be thereby effected being effected by some other instrument duly stamped

(h) an instrument executed by any party thereto, which is inadvertently and undesignedly spoiled, and in lieu whereof another instrument made between the same parties and for the same purpose is executed and duly stamped

Provided as follows —

(1) that in the case of an executed instrument,

(a) that instrument is given up to be cancelled

(b) the application for relief is made within six months after the date of the instrument, or, if it is not dated, within six months after the execution thereof by the person by whom it was first or alone executed, except where from unavoidable circumstances any instrument for which another instrument has been substituted cannot be given up to be cancelled within the aforesaid period, and in that case within six months after the date or execution of the substituted instrument, and except where the spoiled instrument has been sent abroad, and in that case within six months after it has been received back in any part of British India

(c) no suit has been instituted in which the instrument could or would have been given or offered in evidence

(2.) that in the case of stamped paper, not having any executed instrument written thereon, and of an adhesive stamp not affixed to any material, the application for relief is made within six months after the stamp has been spoiled as aforesaid

Allowance for misused stamps

78 When any person has inadvertently used for an instrument liable to duty a stamp of greater value than was necessary, or has inadvertently used any stamp for an instrument not liable to any duty, the Collector may, on application made within six months after the date of the instrument, or, if it is not dated, within six months after the execution thereof by the person by whom it was first or alone executed, and upon the instrument, if liable to any duty, being re-stamped with the proper duty, cancel and allow as spoiled the stamp so misused

Allowance how to be made

79. In any case in which allowance is made for spoiled or misused stamps the Collector may give in lieu thereof other stamps of the same denomination and value, or, if required, and he thinks proper, stamps of any other denomination to the same amount in value, or, at his discretion, the same value in money, deducting the proper allowance on the purchase from Government of stamps of the like description

Repurchase of stamps not wanted

80 When any person is possessed of a stamp which has not been spoiled or rendered unfit or useless for the purpose intended, but for which he has no immediate use, the Collector may, if he in his discretion think fit, repay to the applicant the amount or value of such stamp in money, deducting the proper discount, upon his delivering up the stamp to be cancelled, and proving to the Collector's satisfaction that it was purchased by the applicant with a bonâ fide intention to use it, and that he has paid the full value thereof without any deduction (except only the amount of such discount), and that the stamp was so purchased within the period of six months next preceding the application

Refund of fee paid on memorandum of appeal

81 If a plaint or appeal which has been rejected by the lower Court on any of the grounds mentioned in the Code of Civil Procedure is ordered to be received, or if a suit is remanded in appeal, on any of the grounds mentioned in section 562 of the same Code, for a second decision by the lower Court, the appellate Court may grant to the appellant a certificate, authorizing him to receive back from the Collector the full amount of fee paid on the memorandum of appeal

Provided that, if, in the case of a remand in appeal, the order of remand does not cover the whole of the subject-matter of the suit, the certificate so granted shall not authorize the appellant to receive back more than so much fee as would have been originally payable on the part or parts of such subject-matter in respect whereof the suit has been remanded

Refund of fee on application for review of judgment

82 When an application for a review of judgment is presented on or after the ninetieth day from the date of the decree, the Court, unless the delay was caused by the applicant's laches, may, in its discretion, grant him a certificate authorizing him to receive back from the Collector so much of the fee paid on the application as exceeds the fee which would have been payable had it been presented before such day

Refund where Court reverses or modifies its former decision on ground of mistake

83 When an application for a review of judgment is admitted, and on the re-hearing, the Court reverses or modifies its former decision on the ground of mistake in law or fact, the applicant shall be entitled to a certificate from the Court authorizing him to receive back from the Collector the fee paid on the application.

But nothing in the former part of this section shall entitle the applicant to such certificate where the reversal or modification is due, wholly or in part, to fresh evidence which might have been produced at the original hearing.

Refund where plaint rejected for merely technical defect

84. When a plaint disclosing a reasonable cause of action on the merits is presented to any civil Court in such a form that the Judge rejects it, not for any substantial defect, but on account of a purely technical error in form only, and so as to leave the plaintiff free to prosecute the same case in another form against the same defendant, the value of the stamp on the plaint shall be refunded to the plaintiff on his presenting an application to the Collector of the District in which the Court is situate, together with a certificate from the Judge who rejected the plaint, that it was rejected under the circumstances above described and that in his opinion the value of the stamp should be refunded.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The provisions of the law relating to stamp-duties and Court-fees are now contained in six different Acts, and numerous orders of the Governor General in Council notified from time to time in the Government Gazette during the last seven years It is desirable for the convenience of the public to bring these provisions within the compass of a single enactment, and it is proposed to take this opportunity to introduce measures for the improved working of the law, which experience has shown to be much needed, and at the same time to provide for the acquisition of a moderate increase of revenue from stamp-duties.

2 Such increase is to be obtained partly by the amendment of those provisions of the law which are specially designed to protect the revenue from loss through evasion of the payment of the proper stamp-duty, and partly by the enhancement of the present rates of duty in certain cases

3. There is reason to believe that the obligation of stamping documents at the time of their execution is at present largely evaded Prosecutions for such evasion are rarely resorted to, and the criminal penalties provided by the existing law may be said to be almost inoperative, so that frauds upon the revenue are systematically practised in the belief that the worst result to be apprehended from their detection is the levy of a fine of a certain fixed amount, in addition to the unpaid duty. The most important object to be kept in view consequently in the framing of a new Stamp Bill is to stop, as far as may be practicable, every hole of escape from the liability which the law imposes upon the executant of instruments subject to stamp-duty

4 The new preventive provisions are contained in sections 30, 31, 33, 35 and 37, and their main object is to secure the proper scrutiny of instruments liable to stamp-duty when produced by their possessors, and the effective working of the criminal penalty-clauses as a deterrent to wilful evasions.

5. It has been shown that, in the present state of the law, the obligation to see that all documents produced in Courts and public offices are properly stamped is generally ignored unless and until the parties producing them desire to put the documents in evidence It is not an uncommon thing for persons to produce documents improperly stamped, and on being told that they will have to pay a specified amount by way of penalty, to withdraw the documents and forego putting them in evidence, and in such cases they are allowed to escape punishment for the offence which they have committed in not stamping or sufficiently stamping their instruments, and which is not the less an offence against the law and punishable as such, whether they wish to use the instrument or not

6. Further, where the presiding Judge or officer does take cognizance of the omission to use a proper stamp, some difficulty is found in securing the due punishment of the offender owing to the obscure and somewhat conflicting provisions of the existing law as to the constitution of an "offence" Whilst, on the one hand, the criminal penalty is declared to be incurred upon the mere fact of under-stamping, on the other the provisions relating to the procedure to be followed on the production of unstamped documents deal prominently with the question of intention on the part of the producer, and the Courts generally ignore the presumption of fraudulent intention in the absence of proof of the existence of such intention As such proof is not forthcoming, the producer of the instrument almost invariably escapes, mulcted only in the civil penalty which the Court is empowered to levy at its own discretion and without reference to other authority

7 To meet this state of things, it is provided in section 30 of the Bill that every Court and head of an office shall take notice of and examine all instruments produced before them, that they shall determine whether the instrument is properly stamped, and, if not, shall impound it Section 31 provides for dealing with an impounded instrument which is required to be put in evidence, so that there may be no obstruction to the administration of justice, whilst section 33, amongst other things, provides that this detention of the document and levy of a validating fine in the form of additional duty shall in no case protect the person responsible for the under stamping from the criminal penalties to which his offence renders him liable Section 35 prescribes the course to be followed by the Collector when under-stamped documents or copies thereof come into his hands, and section 36 determines the effect of the realization of the deficient duty as regards the validity of the instrument, and provides for the ultimate disposal of the latter—according as a criminal prosecution may or may not be undertaken.

8 Section 37 contains an entirely new provision and one that seems likely to stimulate the production of instruments liable to stamp-duty and not properly stamped

It frequently happens that the person interested in putting in evidence an insufficiently stamped document was not bound by law to bear the expense of the stamp that should have been used at the time of its execution, yet he has to bear the penalty incurred through the laches of the actual defaulter As a consequence of this state of the law, the person interested in producing the document is often deterred from so doing by the consideration of the penalty In such cases it cannot be doubted that production will be greatly facilitated by the provisions of this section which enable the producer to throw the cost of producing the unstamped or improperly stamped document upon another person

9 Important changes are proposed in regard to some of the instruments chargeable with ad valorem duties specified in the first Schedule, namely, Bills of Exchange payable otherwise than on demand, Bonds, Conveyances, Policies of Insurance and other instruments such as Promissory Notes, Leases and Mortgage-deeds which are subject to the same duties as Bills of Exchange, Bonds and Conveyances respectively

10 Under the present law all Bonds and Conveyances in which the amount secured, or consideration stated, ranges between Rs 50 and Rs 10,000, and other instruments similarly chargeable, are subject to rates of stamp-duty equivalent to 1 and ½ per cent, respectively, on the maximum amount of each step in the scale of ascents by which the assessment is regulated So far, with one exception only, to be presently stated, the sliding scale of rates of stamp-duty follow the plan of the English stamp law, but the tax is as much heavier in proportion in this country as the rupee half rupee, quarter rupee and one anna respectively exceed in value the shilling, its half and quarter, and one penny The exception adverted to is that, whereas in the English scale of ascents there is no intermediate step between £100 and £200 or £200 and £300, and so on, in the Indian stamp law the ascents between Rs 1,000 and Rs 10,000 are by steps of Rs 500

11 When the amount involved in the instrument chargeable with stamp-duty exceeds Rs 10,000, the percentage of charge is, by the present stamp law in this country, diminished as the amount upon which the duty is assessed increases, whereas under the English law the same proportion of charge is maintained throughout, whatever may be the amount of the subject-matter of the instrument liable to stamp-duty

12 The rates of stamp-duty also charged on Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes other than those payable on demand are, relatively to the duties chargeable on Bonds and Conveyances under the Indian stamp law, lower than the English rates. For, whilst the stamp law in England imposes on Conveyances, Bonds and Bills of Exchange the duty of 12*d*, 6*d*. and about 1½*d* for every £10, here the rates on those three classes of instruments are 16 annas, 8 annas and about 1 anna for every Rs 100 respectively

13 The principle of the changes now proposed may be said to be the equalisation of the existing rates of percentage of duty upon the amount taxed and their adjustment to the English standard—the rupee and its halves and quarters being taken as the equivalent of the shilling and its halves and quarters respectively, and the anna as equal to the penny

14 Some increase also in regard to the duty leviable on documents of certain amounts above Rs 1,000 but below Rs 10,000 is involved in the proposed conversion of the intermediate steps between those amounts from Rs 500 to Rs 1,000, for the purpose of bringing the Indian, into precise conformity with the English, scale of ascents

15 The minimum rate of stamp-duty now payable in the case of Bonds is to be omitted. It is thought that all instruments of this class—however low may be the amount involved—can without any hardship bear a four annas tax, whilst so comparatively numerous are the Bonds or other instruments of obligation in respect of amounts not exceeding twenty-five rupees that the additional rate of two annas to which it is proposed to subject them is likely to produce a material increase of revenue.

16 It is proposed to include Policies of Insurance on life in the general class of instruments of insurance liable to stamp-duty, and to double the existing rates of charge on these instruments generally, this change is in fact nothing more than a reversion to the rates chargeable on these documents previously to the passing of the Stamp Act of 1869 Then there was no exception in favour of Life Policies, and instruments of insurance generally were charged at the rate of 8 annas per Rs 1,000 of the amount insured

17 Instruments guaranteeing the repayment of loans made upon the deposit of valuable securities are by the present law subjected to a small fixed duty of two rupees only, without reference to the amount of the loan or the extent of the accommodation obtained through the transaction. It seems more equitable and consistent with the general principles which govern the determination of stamp duties that these instruments should be taxed according to the amount involved in the transaction, hence it is proposed to substitute an ad valorem for a fixed duty, and, having regard to the short period for which the loan is granted, to assess the new duty at one-half of the rate applicable to Bills of Exchange

18 The Bill provides also for the revival of the rule, in regard to the duty leviable on certain promissory notes, which was in force previous to the passing of the Stamp Act of 1869, under which a promissory note made payable at some time exceeding one year from the date of the note was liable to the same rate of duty as a Bond As the obligatory instrument ordinarily executed in this country when loans are taken—the "tamassúk"—is more of the nature of a promissory note than a bond, it seems probable that some unnecessary sacrifice of revenue has resulted from the relinquishment of the former mode of assessment to which it is now proposed to revert in these cases.

19 The limit of amount within which cheques and other orders for the payment of money and receipts are exempted from any stamp-duty is to be reduced from twenty to ten rupees The payment of one anna stamp-duty can hardly be considered an oppressive tax in such cases, whilst so comparatively numerous are the transactions of this kind involving small amounts, that the abolition in respect of sums ranging between twenty and ten rupees is likely to secure a considerable increase of revenue Further, the Bill aims at the enforcement of the delivery of a receipt for the payment of any amount in excess of ten rupees in satisfaction of a debt Under the present law a person receiving money in payment of a debt above a certain amount is obliged to grant a receipt to the payer if the latter demands it. This enactment has been found by experience to attain its object but very imperfectly, as the payers are generally too indifferent about the matter to exercise their legal right, and consequently the payee it is believed, in a large number, if not the majority, of cases, escapes his obligation As the obligation was imposed solely in the interest of the revenue, the principle on which it rests is not overstrained by the provision of the Bill which, upholding the obligation of the payee, dispenses with the antecedent condition for its enforcement

20 The duty chargeable on instruments evidencing an appraisement or an award is raised by the Bill to about five times its present amount Before 1869, these documents were not subject to any stamp-duty: the tax then imposed was purely experimental The increase now proposed still leaves instruments of this description more lightly taxed than they are in England

21 The Bill substitutes an ad valorem rate of duty for the fixed amount now chargeable on Partition-deeds That amount is Rs 16 and in some cases proves such a heavy tax that the matter has been made the subject of a reference to Government, an equal charge on all partitions without reference to the value of the property divided must work unsatisfactorily An ad valorem duty is a more equitable form of charge, and the rate has been assimilated to that of bonds, which is one-half of the rate to which ordinary deeds of conveyance are subject

22 An ad valorem charge is also proposed in lieu of a fixed duty for instruments of gift and exchange All fixed duties are more or less objectionable, as they must either be pitched so low as to bring in no appreciable amount of revenue, or they must press with undue severity in cases in which the property concerned is of inconsiderable value The difficulty of imposing ad valorem duties in these cases arises out of the want of a safe basis for their assessment, there being no consideration expressed in the instruments to be charged It is proposed to surmount this difficulty by imposing on the parties the obligation of stating truly—under heavy penalties for fraudulent statements—the approximate value of the subject of the deed of gift or exchange.

23 The stamp-duties heretofore chargeable on pleaders' and múkhtars' certificates under the Pleader's Act are included in the Bill as part of the scheme of consolidation It seems only just and consistent that advocates and attorneys should be similarly taxed in respect of the practice of their profession in the Courts of this country, and it is proposed to subject them to the payment of five hundred rupees, and two hundred and fifty rupees stamp-duty, respectively, on their enrolment as advocates and attorneys of a High Court The members of the faculty practising in the Courts of England, Ireland and Scotland are somewhat similarly taxed in respect of such practice

24 The only changes in the rates of Court-fees contemplated by the Bill are (1) in respect of suits instituted in the Courts of Small Causes, (2) the grant of probates of wills and letters of administration, and (3) the fees leviable for the service of processes

25 The new rates for Small Cause Court suits involve a decrease of 2½ per cent in the case of suits of this class instituted in the Presidency Towns, and a proportionate increase of the rates heretofore obtaining in such Courts situated outside those towns.

The present rates in the Presidency Towns are 2 annas per rupee or 12½ per cent Elsewhere they are the same as in other Courts, namely, 7½ per cent. on the average amount involved in the suit. The town rate is clearly too high and some relief is called for. This, it is thought, may be unobjectionably given by the application of the equalisation principle; and the enhancement of the rate heretofore levied in the Mufassal Small Cause Court is defensible on the ground that, as the judicial agency and general machinery of these Courts is more costly than those of the ordinary Civil Courts, whilst a complete determination of the matter in dispute is obtained in the one class of Courts and not in the other, equitable considerations admit of a higher rate of charge upon the litigants in the former case than in the latter.

26 Up to 1870 no stamp-duty was charged on Letters of Administration to the effects of deceased persons or Probates of Wills. The rate of duty then fixed was tentative and expressly declared to be subject to revision on the occasion of the next amendment of the law on the subject, it is now proposed to increase it from two, to two and a half per centum.

27 The fees now chargeable for the service of processes issuing from the Civil, Revenue and Criminal Courts are fixed by rules framed by the High Courts. It is proposed to substitute for this procedure the fixed rates specified under Nos 20 and 21 of the fifth schedule of the Bill, and to discontinue the provisions of the existing law for the regulation of the process-serving establishments.

The experience gained through the working of the present system, as to the actual cost of serving processes, renders possible the determination of the amount of the fee required in the case of each kind of process to cover the cost of its service, and it seems desirable not only that the Court-fees of this class should, like all other fees leviable under the Court-fees Act, be fixed by the Act itself, but that the regulation of the establishments to be maintained for the service of processes should be under the exclusive control of the Executive authorities

28 It is often asserted that the provisions of the stamp law are so complicated as to be ill-understood by the public generally, and on this ground a disposition has been shown sometimes on the part of the administrators of the law to excuse, or take a very lenient view of, non-compliance with its requirements; the Bill has been framed therefore with the special endeavour to render the requirements of the law generally intelligible, by large additions to the interpretation-clauses, improved arrangement of its provisions and a simpler classification of the contents of the schedules

29 The other alterations of the existing law contained in the Bill relate chiefly to matters of detail or procedure, are of minor importance, and do not appear to call for any special explanation

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th October 1877, and was referred to a Select Committee :—

No. 17 OF 1877.

A Bill to enable the District Judges of the Presidency of Fort Saint George to suspend and remove certain ministerial officers, and for other purposes

Preamble

Whereas it is expedient to empower the District Judges of the Presidency of Fort Saint George to suspend and remove ministerial officers of the Courts of Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs, and whereas it is also expedient to provide for the transfer of ministerial officers from one Court to another, It is hereby enacted as follows —

Amendment of Act III of 1873, section 23

1 For section 23 of the Madras Civil Courts Act, 1873, the following shall be substituted (that is to say)—

Appointment and removal of ministerial officers of subordinate Courts.

"23. The ministerial officers of the Courts of the Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs shall be appointed by such Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs, respectively, subject to the approval or confirmation of the District Judge within whose jurisdiction such Courts are situate, and may be suspended or removed from office either by the said District Judge or (subject to his approval or confirmation) by such Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs respectively."

Addition after section 24 of Act III of 1873.

2 After section 24 of the same Act, the following section shall be inserted —

Transfer of ministerial officers.

"24 A The Local Government may, at the instance of the District Judge, transfer from any Court, except the High Court, to any other Court, except the High Court, all or any of the ministerial officers of the Court of such Judge, or of any Subordinate Judge or District Munsif under his control

"The District Judge may transfer all or any of the ministerial officers of any Court under his control to any other such Court"

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Madras Government and the Madras High Court desire that the District Judges should have the power of suspending or removing ministerial officers of the Courts of the Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs in addition to the power which they now possess under Act III of 1873, section 23, of approving and confirming those officers. The first section of the Bill is intended to effect this object.

Powers, resembling those conferred by Act VI of 1871, section 37, are also given to transfer ministerial officers from one Court to another.

The following preliminary Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th October 1877 —

We, the undersigned members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to define and amend the law relating to Promissory Notes, Bills of Exchange and Cheques was referred, have considered the papers specified in the appendix, and have the honour to present this preliminary report

2 This Bill, of which a draft, hereinafter called the draft Bill, was prepared by the late Indian Law Commission, is intended to be one of the chapters of the Indian Civil Code, and was introduced and referred to a Select Committee in December 1867 The then mercantile members of Council, while admitting the desirability of codification, objected to the draft Bill on account of its deviations from English law In order to obviate this objection several alterations have now been made in its substantial provisions The Bill has also been rearranged, and some additions have been made in order to supply omissions These changes, which embody most of the suggestions contained in the papers mentioned in the appendix, will appear in detail from this report

3 It may, however, be convenient, before proceeding further, to notice briefly the alterations which have been made in order to render the Bill conformable to English law

4 The draft Bill provided that an indorsee for value after maturity should have only the rights of his indorser This does not except the case of a bill of exchange drawn or accepted for the purpose of enabling some party thereto to raise money thereon we have added an exception in section 80 in order to meet this case

5 The draft Bill discarded days of grace we have recognised this usage in sections 87 and 88 of the present Bill The change has involved (in section 22) a slight alteration of the definition of "maturity"

6 The draft Bill also made all instruments which fell due upon a holiday payable on the next succeeding business day instead of, as in English law, on the next preceding business day, except in the case of a public holiday We have in section 26 adhered to the English law, and have provided that, besides the usual public holidays, such days shall be public holidays within the meaning of the Act as the Local Government may declare

7 The draft Bill made no provision for the case in which interest at a specified rate is expressly made payable on a note or bill It merely provided that interest at the current rate should be payable on a bill dishonoured by non-acceptance, but only from the maturity of the instrument The same rule was adopted in the case of dishonour by non-payment of a note, bill or cheque We have substituted the English law on this subject by declaring (section 101) that, where interest is expressly provided for in the note or bill, it shall be calculated, as against all parties, at the specified rate from the date of the instrument until tender or realization of the amount due Where no interest is specified we have declared (section 101), that, except in cases within section 532 of the Civil Procedure Code, interest shall run at six per cent per annum from the date at which the amount ought to have been paid by the party charged We have also added an explanation that an indorser can only be charged with such interest from the date of the receipt by him of notice of dishonour

8 We have restored (section 117) the rule, which the draft Bill omitted, that a notice of dishonour must inform the party to whom it is given that he will be held liable

9 The draft Bill provided that when a note, bill or cheque had been lost, or would not be produced by the owner, he might nevertheless enforce his claim against the maker or acceptor if he gave security, to the satisfaction of the Court, to indemnify the defendant against the claims of any other person upon the instrument No provision was made for an action against the indorser The English law, however, provides (17 & 18 Vict, c 125, section 87=Act V of 1866, section 14) that, in any action upon a negotiable instrument, the loss of it shall not be set up as a defence if an indemnity is given, to the satisfaction of the Court, against the claims of any other person And the owner of such a document was always entitled in equity to demand payment on giving a sufficient indemnity We have, therefore, considered that we should correctly embody the English law by providing (section 103) that any person liable to pay and paying the amount due on a note, bill or cheque shall be entitled to be indemnified, and by leaving (section 8) the liability of all parties the same as if the instrument had been forthcoming

10 The draft Bill extended to instruments payable to order the principle upon which protection is afforded by English law to the party primarily liable upon an instrument payable to bearer The acceptor, maker or indorser of a negotiable instrument payable to bearer, but not of an instrument payable to order, is, by English law, discharged by payment to any person in possession of the instrument, if the payer has no reason to believe the possessor is not the true holder We have in section 104, clause (c), restricted the protection to such instruments

11 The Bill as now altered consists of fourteen chapters In the first chapter we have inserted the usual preliminary matter We have (section 1) excluded hundis from the operation of the Bill We have provided (section 2) for the repeal of some enactments which are replaced by the provisions of the Bill

12 Section 3 contains a definition of the term "banker" drawn from 39 & 40 Vict, c 80, s 3, and of "Notary Public" Notaries are seldom found in the Mufassal, and the Bill provides that their functions may be exercised by persons appointed for that purpose by the Governor General in Council.

13 Chapter II deals with notes, bills and cheques, bills in sets and crossed cheques We have here substituted definitions which appear to be more comprehensive and accurate than those in the draft Bill For instance, according to the original definitions, a bill of exchange differs from a cheque only in requiring that the money ordered by the instrument to be paid should be held at the disposal of the drawer—a distinction which appears to us inaccurate, as a bill of exchange is in law, equally with a cheque, assumed to be drawn against funds in the hands of the drawee Again, the definition of a cheque would include such an instrument as a tradesman's bill on which the debtor writes an order to pay for presentation to a cash-keeper—the ordinary mode of paying bills in mercantile houses, at least in Calcutta, and one adopted by many private persons According to the draft Bill such an instrument would apparently be negotiable—a very serious result indeed Again, the definition of a cheque does not require that it should be drawn upon a banker or a person acting as such, nor that it should be payable on demand. These are only a few of what seemed to us the more obvious omissions We have, therefore, framed definitions which we think will include all the essentials of these instruments

14 Section 8 defines the holder of a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque as a person entitled in his own name to the possession of it and to receive or recover the amount due thereon from the parties thereto The holder of an instrument at the time of its loss or destruction also comes within the definition The corresponding provision of the draft Bill seemed to us vague and unsatisfactory in its definition of "holder," and it was not consistently applied in the substantive provisions of the Bill

15 In section 15 we have modified the definition of indorsement in the draft Bill by providing that it must be made for the purpose of negotiation We have also included in the definition a like signature upon a stamped paper intended to be completed as a negotiable instrument

16 We have added a section (17) providing, in accordance with English law, that, when an instrument may be construed either as a promissory note or bill of exchange, it shall be taken to be that which the holder elects

17 In section 19 we have supplied an omission in the draft Bill by providing that an instrument in which no time for payment is specified and all cheques are payable on demand

18 Section 20 provides for the filling up by the holder of blanks in a stamped paper intended to be completed as a negotiable instrument, but not completed when issued The holder may complete the instrument for any amount covered by the stamp. To this section is added as an illustration section 9 of the draft Bill

19 To the four presumptions as to negotiable instruments contained in the draft Bill and stated in section 27 of the present Bill, we have added presumptions that an accepted bill was accepted within a reasonable time after date and before maturity, that every bill or note receipted on the back was paid by the acceptor or maker, that is, by the party primarily liable to pay, and that a lost instrument was duly stamped

20 In addition to the provisions of the draft Bill as to bills in sets, we have (section 29) provided for the right of that holder of one of the parts who first acquires title to his part to possession of the other parts We have also defined an acceptor in section 7 so as to include an acceptor of a set of bills

21 In sections 30 to 37 (both inclusive) we have substituted the provisions of the recent English Act (39 & 40 Vict, c 81) for the sections of the draft Bill relating to crossed cheques

22 Chapter III deals with the parties to negotiable instruments

23 Section 38, after providing that all persons capable of contracting may be parties to notes, bills and cheques, adds that a minor may draw, indorse, deliver and negotiate such instruments so as to bind all parties except himself

24 Section 39 provides for persons binding themselves through their authorized agents, and adds that a general authority is not sufficient for this purpose, and that an authority to draw a bill does not of itself authorize an indorsement

25 Sections 41 and 42 provide for the liability of partners on notes, bills and cheques, and section 43 applies the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, sections 42, 43 and 45 and chapter XI, to the rights and liabilities of partners created thereby, as well as to joint rights and liabilities

26 Section 45 defines the liability of the drawee of a bill or cheque

27 Section 46 extends to the case of the maker of a note, a definition contained in section 60 of the draft Bill of the liability of the acceptor of a bill of exchange

28 Section 47 adds to the category of persons who (according to section 61 of the draft Bill) can accept a bill, all or some of several joint drawees

29 Section 49 provides that every prior party to a negotiable instrument is liable thereon to a holder in due course, that is, to a bonâ fide holder for value

30 Section 50 lays down that the maker of a note or cheque, the drawer of a bill until acceptance, and the acceptor are ordinarily the principal parties to the bill and the other parties their sureties, and section 51 adds that each prior party is a principal as regards the holder, and that the intermediate parties between such prior party and the holder are sureties for him By section 52 the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, sections 132 to 147 (both inclusive) are rendered applicable to these relations of suretyship

31 We have added a section (54) estopping the maker of a note, the drawer of a bill or cheque and the acceptor of a bill for the honour of the drawer from denying the original validity of the instrument.

32 Section 55 adopts, with modifications, the provisions of section 117 of the Evidence Act, 1872, and of sections 36 and 62 of the draft Bill, which estop the acceptor from denying the drawer's signature The estoppel is, we think, properly confined by this section to suits by holders other than the drawer

33 Section 56 estops the maker of a note and the acceptor of a bill payable to order from denying the payee's capacity to indorse

34 Section 57 adds to the estoppel against denying false signatures, contained in section 35 of the draft Bill, an estoppel against denying the capacity to contract of any prior party to a negotiable instrument in suit

35 Section 58 also carries on the same subject by declaring the acceptor of a bill with a forged indorsement not to be thereby relieved from liability if he knew it to be forged at the time of acceptance, and section 59 declares that the acceptor of a bill drawn in a fictitious name is not thereby relieved from liability to pay upon an indorsement by the same hand as the drawer's signature, and purporting to be made by the drawer

36 These sections supply some omissions in the draft Bill, and, we think, adequately provide for the due currency of negotiable instruments when once put into circulation and for the protection of their holders

37 The Bill then goes on to deal with the consideration for negotiable instruments and to protect the holder for value of instruments with respect to which there may have been originally no consideration, or a subsequent failure of consideration, wholly or in part

38 These sections (60 to 63, both inclusive) are substantially taken from the draft Bill We have added an illustration to section 62

39 Chapter IV deals with negotiation

40 To section 64, which is substantially the same as section 18 of the draft Bill, we have added an explanation to the effect that an instrument delivered upon a condition which has not happened is not negotiable except by a holder for value and without notice of such condition

41 Where the holder of a note or bill payable to or to the order of a specified person delivers it to another person without indorsing it, but with intent to transfer his title thereto, we think that (with reference to the Code of Civil Procedure, sections 36 and 37) the transferee should not be required to sue in the name of his transferor. We have framed section 66 accordingly

42 In section 67 we have, in substantial accordance with section 40 of the draft Bill, dealt with the case of a bonâ fide holder for value of a bill transferred without indorsement In such a case we have declared the holder entitled to a return of the consideration if the bill is, after the transfer, avoided on account of any matter prior to the transfer, provided such return is claimed within a reasonable time

43 Section 71 describes the parties who may indorse and negotiate negotiable instruments The draft Bill does not appear to provide with sufficient clearness for this matter

44 Section 76 embodies section 23 of the draft Bill but it completes that section by enacting that an indorsement of a negotiable instrument for part of the amount due thereon transfers a right to retain the instrument and to receive and recover such part in the name of the indorser

45 Section 77 provides that no agreement which is not expressed on the instrument or which is collateral thereto shall be binding upon holders for value or those deriving title from such holders This section embodies and supplements the corresponding provisions of the draft Bill of which section 42 provided that the title of an indorsee should not be affected by transactions independent of the instrument, and section 99 that a holder in due course should not be affected by any agreement between two signers as to the order of their liability unless such agreement appeared on the face of the instrument The section as now drawn extends the draft sections to holders for value and to holders deriving title from holders for value, and also extends section 99 to all agreements not expressed on the instrument

46. Chapter V deals with presentment for acceptance and presentment for payment

47 Section 82 states the essentials of presentment for acceptance in the case of bills payable at or after sight, to which the draft Bill, section 56, clause (1), refers as bills payable after demand We have added a provision that presentment must be made by a person entitled to demand acceptance, and we have provided for the case in which the drawee cannot after reasonable search be found, and also for the case of a bill directed to the drawee at a particular place

48 Section 83 provides for presentment for sight of a promissory note payable at a certain period after sight—a matter unnoticed by the draft Bill.

49 Section 84 alters section 56, clause (3), of the draft Bill by restricting the time allowed to the drawee for deliberation to the departure of the next post, if that should happen within the twenty-four hours otherwise allowed This is the English rule upon the subject

50 Sections 85 and 86 lay down the general rule for presentment for payment, which is not distinctly laid down in the draft Bill

51 Section 87, as to presentment for payment of inland instruments payable after date or sight, embodies section 133 of the draft Bill, but we have excluded cheques from this section, as we have provided (section 19), in accordance with English law, that such instruments are only payable on demand.

52 Section 88 provides for presentment for payment of an inland note payable by instalments—a matter omitted from the draft Bill

53 Section 90 modifies sections 139 and 140 of the draft Bill by requiring, in accordance with English law, that an instrument drawn or accepted payable at a specified place must,

in order to charge the maker or drawer, be presented for payment at that place. The draft Bill allows presentment to be made in such cases at the place of business or residence of the maker or acceptor

54 Section 91 embodies the general rule as to the place of presentment

55 Section 92 extends the rule in section 141 of the draft Bill as to personal presentment to the case of presentment for acceptance

56 Section 93 taken together with section 105 embodies section 101 of the draft Bill, with the modification that the presentment of a cheque must be made before the relation between the drawer and his banker has been altered to the prejudice of the drawer, or the drawer will be discharged from liability The draft Bill discharges the drawer only to the extent of his actual loss, but, according to the English cases, he is discharged altogether by such delay, the payee of the cheque being considered as having, by such delay, treated the cheque as payment, and as thereby electing to look to the drawer alone (see Hopkins v Ware, L R 4 Ex 268)

57 Section 96 is new It provides that presentment for acceptance or payment may be made by or to a duly authorized agent, or the representative of a deceased party or the assignee of an insolvent party

58 Section 98 states the cases in which presentment for payment is excused It embodies sections 89 and 91 of the draft Bill, and adds the case in which the drawer could not suffer damage by want of presentment, in which case presentment is by English law not necessary as against him

59 Chapter VI treats of payment and interest Section 100 declares that payment should be made to the holder, for payment to any other party does not of itself discharge the maker or acceptor The next two sections, 101 and 102, provide for interest upon notes, bills and cheques, and section 103 for indemnity to the payer of an instrument lost or which cannot be produced

60 Chapter VII deals with discharge from liability on notes, bills and cheques

61 Section 104 provides for the discharge of a maker, acceptor or indorser, not only when the holder cancels the acceptor's or indorser's name, and when the maker, acceptor or indorser pays the amount due (sections 38, 85, 87, and 88 of the draft Bill), but also where the holder releases or otherwise discharges the maker, acceptor or indorser

62 Section 107 adopts the provisions of 16 & 17 Vict, c 59, section 19 by which the drawer of a cheque payable to order and purporting to be indorsed by or on behalf of the payee is discharged by payment in due course

63 To section 110, which embodies sections 109 and 110 of the draft Bill, we have added an explanation showing what are material alterations in a negotiable instrument

64 Section 111 is new, and provides that in special cases, such as that of a blank stamped instrument, an uncrossed cheque and an instrument endorsed in blank, a material alteration made by an indorsee discharges his indorser from liability to him in respect of the consideration as well as of the instrument

65 Section 113 embodies section 115 of the draft Bill and section 11 of 39 & 40 Vict, c 81, relating to crossed cheques

66 Chapter VIII treats of notice of dishonour

67 Section 116 substantially agrees with sections 125, 127 and 131 of the draft Bill, but we have altered the description of the parties to whom notice of dishonour by non-acceptance or non-payment must be given the description now adopted is that those parties must include all whom the holder seeks to make severally liable on the instrument, and some one of any parties jointly liable, but notice to the maker, drawee or acceptor is unnecessary.

68 Section 117 collects into one section a number of provisions as to the form of notice and the mode of giving it These provisions are scattered over sections 126, 127, 128 and 130 of the draft Bill We have already pointed out that this section differs from the draft Bill in requiring notice to the party addressed that he will be held liable

69 Section 119 adds to section 132 of the draft Bill the provision that a party receiving notice of dishonour through his agent for presentment is entitled to the same period after such receipt for the purpose of giving notice as the holder has for giving notice

70 Section 121 describes the cases in which no notice of dishonour is necessary These cases include, besides those of dispensation by the party entitled to notice and of inability to give the notice (which are provided for in sections 66, 67, 68, 92 and 93 of the draft Bill), the case of the drawer countermanding payment, the case where the party charged could not suffer from want of such notice, the case of an acceptor who is also a drawer, the case of a promissory note which is not negotiable, and the case in which the party knowing the facts unconditionally promises to pay the amount due on the instrument

71 Chapter IX contains the rules for noting and protest

72 Section 122 substantially corresponds with section 119 of the draft Bill, but it allows the noting to be made either upon the instrument, or upon a paper attached thereto, or partly upon each And the rules as to noting and protest are confined to bills and notes, whereas the draft Bill extended them to cheques—an extension for which there is apparently no authority

73 We have inserted in sections 123 and 124 provisions regarding protest for better security.

74 In section 126 we have reproduced the provisions of Act VI of 1840, section 4, and of 2 & 3 Wm 4, c 98, as to protest for non-payment after dishonour by non-acceptance.

75 Chapter X contains rules for calculating the reasonable time for presentment for acceptance or payment, for giving notice of dishonour and for noting. We have added in section 129 a provision that, in the case of notice of dishonour, when the parties carry on business or live in the same place, such notice is given within a reasonable time if it is despatched in time to reach its destination on the day next after the day of dishonour

76 Chapter XI deals with acceptance and payment for honour We provide (section 131) for the case of protest for better security In accordance with a recent case (In re Overend, Gurney and Company, L R 6 Eq 344), we have declared (section 136) that the payer for honour shall have all the rights, in respect of the bill, of the holder at the time of such payment

77 Chapter XII, which treats of compensation, retains (section 137) the provisions of the draft Bill (section 65) substantially unaltered

78 Chapter XIII treats of foreign bills and restricts to foreign bills the section (73) of the draft Bill, which deals with the dishonour of a bill naming a drawee in case of need.

79 The provisions of chapter XIV as to international law are substantially those of the draft Bill

80 In conclusion, we desire to express our obligations to the following honourable and learned Judges, namely, Messrs Turner, Kennedy, West and Nánábhái Haridás to the Madras Chamber of Commerce to Mr Stewart Gladstone, Mr R Stewart, Mr Dickson (late Secretary and Treasurer to the Bank of Bengal), and Mr Scrymgeour, the Calcutta Agent of the Oriental Bank Corporation We recommend that the Bill as now altered be republished in the Gazette of India and the local Gazettes, that the opinions of the Local Governments, the High Courts and the mercantile community be invited thereon, and that its further consideration be stayed till the Council re-assembles in Calcutta

OF NEGOTIATION

Negotiation by delivery

64 Subject to the provisions of section 79, a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque payable to bearer is negotiable by delivery thereof

Exception —A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque delivered on condition that it is not to take effect except in a certain event is not negotiable (except in the hands of a holder for value without notice) unless such event happens

Illustrations

(a) A, the holder of a negotiable instrument payable to bearer, delivers it to B's agent to keep for B The instrument has been negotiated

(b) A, the holder of a negotiable instrument payable to bearer which is in the hands of A's banker, who is at the time the banker of B, directs the banker to transfer the instrument to B's credit in the banker's account with B The banker does so, and accordingly now possesses the instrument as B's agent The instrument has been negotiated, and B has become the holder of it

65 Subject to the provisions of section 79, a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque payable to, or to the order of, a specified person is negotiable by the holder by indorsement and delivery thereof

Transfer without indorsement

66 If the holder of such an instrument as in the last preceding section mentioned, delivers it to another person without indorsing it, but with intent to transfer his title thereto, the transferee acquires by such delivery all the rights which the transferor had as holder except the right of negotiation, and he may sue upon the instrument in his own name

67 If such transfer, as in the last preceding section mentioned, is made for valuable consideration to a person having no reason to believe in the existence of any matter affecting the validity of the instrument or of the transfer thereof, and the instrument is thereafter avoided as against any party on account of matters prior to such transfer, the transferor is bound to return to the transferee the consideration received, provided that such return is claimed within a reasonable time

Conversion of indorsement in blank into indorsement in full

68 The holder of a negotiable instrument indorsed in blank may, without signing his own name, by writing above the indorser's signature a direction to pay to any other person as indorsee, convert the indorsement in blank into an indorsement in full, and the holder does not thereby incur the responsibility of an indorser

69 The indorsement of a negotiable instrument transfers to the indorsee the property therein with the right of further negotiation, but the indorsement may, by express words, be restrained to a transfer of the property without such right, or may merely constitute the indorsee an agent to indorse the instrument, or to receive its contents for the indorser, or for some other specified person

Negotiability may be restricted or excluded

70 The indorser of a negotiable instrument may, by express words in the indorsement, restrict or exclude the right of the indorsee to negotiate the instrument, although the instrument was, at the time of such words being written, payable to the bearer thereof

B signs the following indorsements on different negotiable instruments —

(a) 'Pay the contents to C only'

(b) "Pay C for my use"

(e) 'Pay C"

(f) "Pay C value in account with the Oriental Bank"

(g) "Pay the contents to C being part of the consideration in a certain deed of assignment executed by C to the indorser and others

These indorsements do not exclude the right of further negotiation by C

Who may negotiate

71 Every sole maker, drawer, payee or indorsee, or all of several joint makers, drawers, payees or indorsees of a negotiable instrument may, if the negotiability of such instrument has not been restricted or excluded, as in the last preceding section mentioned, indorse and negotiate the same

Explanation —Nothing in this section enables a maker or drawer to indorse or negotiate an instrument, unless he is in lawful possession or is holder thereof, or enables a payee or indorsee to indorse or negotiate an instrument, unless he is holder thereof

Illustration.

A bill is drawn payable to A or order A indorses it to B, the indorsement not containing the words "or order," or any equivalent words B may negotiate the instrument

Indorser who excludes his own liability or makes it conditional

72 The indorser of a negotiable instrument may, by express words in the indorsement, exclude his own liability thereon, or make such liability or the right of the indorsee to receive the amount due thereon, depend upon the happening of a specified event, although such event may never happen

Where an indorser so excludes his liability and afterwards becomes the holder of the instrument, all intermediate indorsers are liable to him

(a) The indorser of a negotiable instrument signs his name, adding the words—

"Without recourse to me"

Upon this indorsement he incurs no liability

(b) A, the payee and holder of a bill of exchange, indorses it to B, and B to C C then indorses it back to A, each of these indorsements being in due course A is reinstated in his former rights upon the instrument, but has not acquired any rights against B or C

(c) A is the payee and holder of a negotiable instrument Excluding personal liability by an indorsement "without recourse," he transfers the instrument to B, and B indorses it to C, who indorses it to A A is not only reinstated in his former rights, but has the rights of an indorsee against B and C.

Holder deriving title from holder in due course

73. A holder of a negotiable instrument who derives title from a holder in due course has the rights thereon of that holder in due course

Instrument indorsed in blank

74 A negotiable instrument indorsed in blank is payable to the bearer thereof even although originally payable to order

Conversion of indorsement in blank into indorsement in full

75. If a negotiable instrument after having been indorsed in blank is indorsed in full, the amount of it cannot be claimed from the indorser in full, except by the person to whom it has been indorsed in full, or by one who derives title through such person

Indorsement for part of sum due

76. Where a negotiable instrument is indorsed for part of the sum due thereon to the indorser, the indorsement transfers only a right to retain the instrument, and to receive or sue for such part in the name of the indorser

Collateral agreements

77 No agreement between any parties to a negotiable instrument which is not expressed thereon, or which is collateral thereto, is binding upon any other holder thereof for valuable consideration, or upon any holder deriving title from a holder for valuable consideration

Illustration

A person who is a creditor of A signs as acceptor a bill of exchange in A's favour for 3,000 rupees A being the holder indorses it for value to B, who is aware that the acceptor was a creditor of A A's debt to the acceptor cannot be set off against B's claim on the bill

When cheque not duly presented and drawer damaged thereby

106. When a cheque has not been duly presented for payment, and the drawer thereof has thereby sustained loss or damage, he is discharged from liability to the holder making default in presentment

108. If the holder of a bill of exchange acquiesces in a conditional acceptance, or one limited to part of the sum mentioned in the bill, or which substitutes a different place or time for payment, or which is not signed by all the drawees (not being partners), all previous parties whose consent is not obtained to such acceptance are discharged as against the holder and those claiming under him

Alterations by stranger in note or bill

109 Alterations made in a promissory note or bill of exchange by a person not a party to such note or bill have no effect upon the liability of a party who signed the instrument as maker or acceptor before such alterations were made

Effect of material alteration

110 Save as provided in sections 20, 32, 68 and 108, any material alteration of a negotiable instrument renders the same void as against any party thereto at the time, and not consenting to such alteration, unless such alteration was made in order to carry out the common intention of the original parties

Explanation.—The following are material alterations within the meaning of this section, namely an alteration of date, amount, or of time or place of payment, the insertion in the body of the instrument of words authorising the transfer thereof, or stating the value thereof to have been received on a particular account, the addition of a name as that of a maker or drawer, obliteration of, addition to, or alteration of, the crossing of a cheque

OF NOTICE OF DISHONOUR

Dishonour by non acceptance

114 A bill of exchange is said to be dishonoured by non-acceptance when the drawee, or one of several drawees not being partners, makes default in acceptance upon being duly required to accept the bill

Dishonour by non payment

115 A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is said to be dishonoured by non-payment when the maker of the note, acceptor of the bill, or drawee of the cheque makes default in payment upon being duly required to pay the same

By and to whom notice should be given

116 When a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment, the holder thereof, or some party thereto who remains liable thereon, must give notice that the instrument has been so dishonoured to all other parties whom the holder seeks to make severally liable thereon, and to some one of several parties whom he seeks to make jointly liable thereon

Nothing in this section renders it necessary to give notice to the maker of the dishonoured promissory note, or the drawee or acceptor of the dishonoured bill of exchange or cheque

Mode in which notice may be given

117 Notice of dishonour may be given by or to a duly authorised agent of the person by or to whom it is required to be given, or, where he has died, to his legal representative, or, where he has been declared an insolvent, to his assignee, may be oral or written, may, if written be sent by post, and may be in any form, but it must inform the party to whom it is given, either in express terms or by reasonable intendment, that the instrument has been dishonoured, and in what way, and that he will be held liable thereon, and it must be given within a reasonable time after dishonour, at the place of business, or (in case such party has no place of business) at the residence, of the party for whom it is intended

If the notice is sent by post and miscarries, such miscarriage does not render the notice invalid

118 Any party receiving notice of dishonour must, in order to charge any prior party, transmit it to such party within a reasonable time, unless such party otherwise receives due notice as provided by section 116

Agent for presentment

119 When the instrument is deposited with an agent for presentment, the agent is entitled to the same time to give notice to his principal as if he were the holder giving notice of dishonour, and the principal is entitled to a further like period to give notice of dishonour

When party to whom notice given is dead

120 When the party to whom notice of dishonour is despatched is dead, but the party despatching the notice is ignorant of his death, the notice is sufficient

When notice of dishonour is unnecessary

121 No notice of dishonour is necessary—

(a) when it is dispensed with by the party entitled thereto,

(b) in order to charge the drawer, when he has countermanded payment,

(c) when the party charged could not suffer damage from want of notice,

(d) when the party entitled to notice cannot after due search be found, or the party bound to give notice is for any other reason, unable without any fault of his own to give it,

(e) to charge the drawers, when the acceptor is also a drawer,

(f) in the case of a promissory note which is not negotiable,

(g) when the party entitled to notice, knowing the facts, promises unconditionally to pay the amount due on the instrument

OF NOTING AND PROTEST

Noting

122 When a promissory note or bill of exchange has been dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment, the holder may cause such dishonour to be noted by a notary public upon the instrument or upon a paper attached thereto, or partly upon each

Such note must be made within a reasonable time after dishonour, and must specify the date of dishonour, the reason, if any, assigned for such dishonour, or, if not expressly dishonoured, the reason why the holder treats the instrument as dishonoured, and the notary's charges

Protest

123 When a promissory note or bill of exchange has been dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment, the holder may, within a reasonable time, cause such fact to be noted and certified by a notary public Such certificate is called a protest and shall, in the absence of proof to the contrary in a suit upon the instrument, be deemed evidence of the fact of dishonour

Protest for better security

When the acceptor of a bill of exchange has become insolvent, or his credit has been publicly impeached, before the maturity of the bill, the holder may, within a reasonable time, cause a notary public to demand better security of the acceptor, and on its being refused may, within a reasonable time, cause such facts to be noted and certified as aforesaid Such certificate is called a protest for better security

124 A protest under section 123 must contain—

(a) either the instrument itself, or a literal transcript of the instrument and of everything written or printed thereupon,

(b) the name of the person for whom and against whom the instrument has been protested,

(c) a statement that payment or acceptance, or better security, as the case may be, has been demanded of such person by the notary public, the terms of his answer, if any, or a statement that he gave no answer, or that he could not be found,

(d) when the note or bill has been dishonoured, the place and time of dishonour, and when better security has been refused, the place and time of refusal,

(e) the subscription of the notary public making the protest,

(f) in the event of an acceptance for honour or of a payment for honour, the name of the person by whom, of the person for whom, and the manner in which, such acceptance or payment was offered and effected

Notice of protest

125 When a promissory note or bill of exchange is required by law to be protested, notice of such protest must be given instead of notice of dishonour, in the same manner and subject to the same conditions, but the notice may be given by the notary public who makes the protest

Protest for non payment after dishonour by non acceptance

126 All bills of exchange drawn payable at some other place than the place mentioned as the residence of the drawee, and which are dishonoured by non-acceptance, may, without further presentment to the drawee, be protested for non-payment, in the place specified for payment, unless paid before maturity

OF REASONABLE TIME

Reasonable time

127 In determining what is a reasonable time for presentment for acceptance or payment, for giving notice of dishonour and for noting, regard shall be had to the nature of the instrument and the usual course of dealing with respect to similar instruments, and in calculating such time, days which are not business days shall be excluded

Reasonable time for presentment

128 Presentment is made within a reasonable time, within the meaning of sections 82, 93, 91 and 95, if it is made on the business day next after that on which the holder received the bill, negotiable instrument or cheque referred to, or when there is no more delay than is occasioned by the residence of the parties to the bill, negotiable instrument or cheque in different places

Illustration

A draws on B resident at Calcutta a bill of exchange in favour of C payable at sight and sends it to C at Benares C the day after he receives it indorses it to D and despatches it to D at Calcutta D the day after he receives the bill presents it for payment The delay which has taken place in presenting the bill is not unreasonable

Reasonable time for giving notice of dishonour

129 If the holder and the party to whom notice of dishonour is given carry on business or live (as the case may be) in different places, such notice is given within a reasonable time if it is despatched by the next post or on the day next after the day of dishonour

If the said parties carry on business or live in the same place, such notice is given within a reasonable time if it is despatched in time to reach its destination on the day next after the day of dishonour

Reasonable time for transmitting such notice

130 A party receiving notice of dishonour transmits the notice within a reasonable time if he transmits it within the same time after its receipt as he would have had to give notice if he had been the holder

OF ACCEPTANCE AND PAYMENT FOR HONOUR

Acceptance for honour

131 When a bill of exchange has been noted or protested for non-acceptance or for better security, any person may, with the consent of the holder, by writing on the bill, accept the same for the honour of any party thereto

Acceptance not specifying for whose honour it is made

132 Where the acceptance does not express for whose honour it is made, it shall be deemed to be made for the honour of the drawer

Liability of acceptor for honour

133 An acceptor for honour binds himself to all parties subsequent to the party for whose honour he accepts to pay the amount of the bill if the drawee do not, and such party, and all prior parties, are liable in their respective capacities to compensate the acceptor for honour for all loss or damage sustained by him in consequence of such acceptance

But an acceptor for honour is not liable to the holder of the bill unless it is presented, or (in case the address given by such acceptor on the bill is a place other than the place where the bill is made payable) forwarded for presentment, not later than the day next after the day of its maturity

When acceptor for honour may be charged

134 An acceptor for honour cannot be charged unless the bill has at its maturity been presented to the drawee for payment and has been dishonoured by him, and noted or protested for such dishonour

Payment for honour

135 When a bill of exchange has been noted or protested for non-payment, any person may pay the same for the honour of any party liable to pay the same, provided that the person so paying has previously declared before a notary public the party for whose honour he pays, and that such declaration has been recorded by such notary public

Right of payer for honour

136 Any person so paying, as in the last preceding section provided, is entitled to all the rights, in respect of the bill, of the holder at the time of such payment, and may recover from the party for whose honour he pays all sums so paid, with interest thereon and with all expenses properly incurred in making such payment

OF COMPENSATION

Rules as to compensation

137. The compensation payable in case of dishonour of a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque, by any party liable to the holder or any indorsee, shall (except in cases provided for by the Code of Civil Procedure, section 532) be determined by the following rules —

(a) The holder is entitled to the amount due upon the instrument, together with the expenses properly incurred in presenting, noting and protesting it,

(b) When the person charged resides at a place different from that at which the instrument was payable, the holder is entitled to receive such sum at the current rate of exchange between the two places,

(c) An indorser who, being liable, has paid the amount due on the same is entitled to the amount so paid with interest at six per centum per annum from the date of payment until tender or realization thereof, together with all expenses caused by the dishonour and payment,

(d) When the person charged and the indorser reside at different places, the indorser is entitled to receive such sum at the current rate of exchange between the two places,

(e) The party entitled to compensation may draw a bill upon the party liable to compensate him, payable at sight or on demand, for the amount due to him together with all expenses properly incurred by him Such bill must be accompanied by the instrument dishonoured and the protest thereof (if any) If such bill is dishonoured, the party dishonouring the same is liable to make compensation thereof in the same manner as in the case of the original bill

OF FOREIGN BILLS

138 Where a drawee in case of need is named in a foreign bill of exchange, the bill is not dishonoured until dishonoured by such drawee

Drawee in case of need

139 Foreign bills of exchange must be protested for dishonour when such protest is required by the law of the place where they are drawn

Protest of foreign bills

OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

140 In the absence of a contract to the contrary, the liability of the maker of a foreign promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is regulated in all essential matters by the law of the place where he made the instrument the liability of the acceptor, by the law of the place where he accepted the instrument the liability of the indorser, by the law of the place where he indorsed the instrument

Law governing liability of maker acceptor or indorser of foreign instrument

Illustration

A bill of exchange was drawn by A in California where the rate of interest is 25 per cent, and accepted by B payable in Washington, where the rate of interest is 6 per cent The bill is endorsed in British India, and is dishonoured An action on the bill is brought against B in British India. He is liable to pay interest at the rate of 6 per cent only, but if A is charged as drawer, A is liable to pay interest at the rate of 25 per cent

141 Where a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is made payable in a different place from that in which it is made or indorsed, the law of the place where it is made payable determines what constitutes dishonour and what notice of dishonour is sufficient

Law of place of payment governs dishonour

A bill of exchange drawn and indorsed in British India, but accepted payable in France is dishonoured The indorsee causes it to be protested for such dishonour and gives notice thereof in accordance with the law of France though not in accordance with the rules herein contained in respect of bills which are not foreign The notice is sufficient

142 If a negotiable instrument is made, drawn, accepted, or indorsed out of British India, but in accordance with the law of British India, the circumstance that any agreement evidenced by such instrument is invalid according to the law of the country wherein it was entered into does not invalidate any subsequent acceptance or endorsement made thereon in British India

Instrument made &c, out of British India but in accordance with its law

143 Until the contrary is proved, the law of any foreign country regarding promissory notes bills of exchange and cheques shall be presumed to be the same as that of British India

PROVINCE OF MYSORE

Special famine report for the week ending 22nd September 1877.

Statement No* 33, regarding famine relief operations in the Province of Mysore, for the week ending the 22nd September 1877

The weather during the last week has been all that could be desired, there have been frequent showers of rain with bright sunny weather between The rainfall has averaged about 2 inches and has been universal, the dry tract mentioned in the previous week's report having received a liberal downfall Such of the early (dry) ragi as survived the drought has revived beyond all expectation and may yet produce a good crop, but it is not ripe yet The irrigated ragi and rice are being cut in many parts The late ragi is looking as well as possible, and the sowing of horse-gram and other rabi crops is proceeding under favourable conditions.

2 The markets continue to be well supplied The imports by rail have been 4,200 tons, or 1,027 tons more than in the previous week such temporary ebbs and flows appear to be due to accidental causes. The imports have been sent from the following quarters.—

	Tons
Beypore, Coimbatore and Malabar	267
Trichinopoly, Tanjore and Negapatam ..	379
Other places	34
Total ..	4,200

On the other hand the exports from Bangalore Municipality as registered by the octroi officials have been 1,896 tons, or 33 tons more than in the previous week. They were despatched to the following quarters —

Túmkúr	846
Bellary and Chitaldroog	279
Mysore	571
Oossoor (Salem district)	272
Round Bangalore	428
Total ...	1,896

3 Prices are again a little easier than in the preceding week The following statement shews the maximum and minimum prices in the districts of the Province —

	Maximum in lbs per rupee.		Minimum in lbs per rupee

In rice there is a fall of about ½lb per rupee both in the maximum and minimum scales. In ragi the minimum rate is almost unchanged, but in the maximum there is a great fall, in Túmkúr for instance the maximum was 12 lbs per rupee and now it is 16 lbs.

4 The number of labourers on civil relief works has increased from 28,803 to 31,280, a rise of 2,477 The increase runs through all districts except those of the Nagar division, in all three of which there is an unexplained decrease In the others the increase is as follows —

Bangalore	236
Kolar	568
Hassan	926

But the Bangalore Deputy Commissioner in his own return shows an increase of 2,640 The discrepancy will be enquired into

5 The Public Works Department returns shew 25,271 labourers against 24,942 previously, an increase of only 329 There is a decrease everywhere except in the Bangalore district, where the large number of relief labourers put on the State Railway and the Tumkúr road brings up the total A good many of the works are on tanks and have been stopped by the water, in many cases it is reported that the labourers have left to work on their fields

6 The numbers gratuitously fed in relief camps have fallen from 208,683 to 161,892 The decrease is very general and almost universal, but it is largest in the Bangalore district and Municipality in Kolar, Túmkúr and Chitaldroog, in fact in those districts where the numbers were most overgrown

The decrease is partly due to the improvement in the prospects of field employment, and would have occurred in any case It is partly due also to the enforcing of the conditions of residence and labour, and to the effects made to relegate the paupers to works Of the numbers in the relief camps of the Bangalore Municipality, which have fallen by 19,000 in the last fortnight, over 5,000 have been put on the State Railway and the adjacent embankment, about 2,000 on the embankment of the Ulsur lake, and about 1,000 more on different projects, the water works, and two lines of road The improvement in the condition of the labourers is already obvious, they are cheerful, healthy and contented, and those who a fortnight ago were thought hardly able to lift a pick-axe, are now doing a fair day's work Of the rest some have left for their villages, some prefer to beg about the town, but these will be collected and brought in by the Police To every applicant either labour or food is offered if labour cannot be provided, their food is given till the applicant can be set to work The want of tools is still one of the greatest difficulties

Further report regarding the type of fever prevailing in the Bombay Presidency during the Famine

No. 525, dated 28th September 1877

From—Dr S C Townsend, Offg Sanitary Commissioner with the Govt of India,
To—C Bernard, Esq, C S I, Additional Secy to the Govt of India

I have the honour to forward for the information of the Government of India, copy of a letter dated 14th instant from Doctors Lewis and Cunningham with reference to the nature of the fever prevalent in Bombay in the early months of the current year

From—Doctors T R Lewis and D D Cunningham, Special Assistants to the Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India,
To—Dr S C Townsend, Offg Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India

We have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of the "extract" from paragraph 4 of a despatch from the Secretary of State to the Government of India, No 53 (Revenue), dated 26th July 1877, intimating that the further report promised in a communication by one of ourselves to your office regarding the fever then prevalent in Bombay* would be awaited

* Report by Dr T R Lewis, dated, Calcutta, 16th May 1877

2 The proposal to submit this further report was, in great measure, made on the supposition that the statements then current regarding the wide distribution of a like fever in Madras were correct Personal enquiry, however, made it evident that fevers so far from being exceptionally severe, were decidedly in abeyance † No opportunity was therefore afforded for instituting the suggested comparisons

† Report by Dr D D Cunningham, dated Calcutta, 18th June 1877

3 We have however availed ourselves of the opportunities which the various hospitals and jails of Calcutta afford of carefully observing the forms of fever which have prevailed during this season, but as yet have not observed any which could be regarded as fairly comparable with those which were prevalent in Bombay during the earlier part of the year—the fevers here being for the most part, manifestly 'intermittents' and 'continued'

4 Since our reports were written, Surgeon-General Hunter of Bombay has submitted to the Local Government an exhaustive account of the leading features of the fever recently prevalent in that city, accompanied by numerous charts of temperature This report corroborates the inferences which were made in the communication regarding this fever referred to in the despatch, viz, that (a) in none of the cases in which the blood-spirillum had been observed 'could the origin of the fever have been directly attributed to want,' and that (b) the clinical history of the fever presented 'no well marked feature which would be sufficient to distinguish it from the class of fevers usually referred to as 'remittents' in this country' German authorities also state that the fever in which the blood-spirillum was originally found "manifested a distinctly remittent character"‡

5 With regard to the first cited of these conclusions, we beg to draw special attention to the circumstance that it is in complete accordance with the experience hitherto acquired in connection with the presence of spirilla in the blood None of the observers who detected these organisms in Europe have in the remotest manner implied that their presence in the blood was associated with want, on the contrary, Geissler expressly states that the fever in which they occur (commonly referred to in Germany as recurrent-typhus) is not a famine fever Indeed it so happened that at the time of one of the epidemics, the wages of the labouring classes were exceptionally high§

H F HANCOCK, Lieut.-Col, R E,
Consulting Engineer for Railways

No 107-110M, dated Poona, 29th September 1877.

From—LIEUT-COL H F HANCOCK, R E, Under Secy to the Govt. of Bombay, Public Works Dept,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Dept.

I AM directed to submit for information the accompanying copy of report No 99 M A, dated 27th instant, from the Consulting Engineer for Railways, Bombay, and in inviting attention to the arrangements made for dealing with the traffic under the altered conditions which now prevail, to state that the Bombay Government will continue to do their best to keep up the daily deliveries of 300 tons on to the Nizam's line and 900 tons into Raichore, but that the tide of famine grain traffic has apparently turned towards the north instead of from the north, and that they cannot predict the result.

No. 99 M A, dated Poona, 27th September 1877

I HAVE discussed the present position of the traffic on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway with Mr Barnett, Mr Conder, Captain Oldham and Lieutenant Beauclerk, who has just returned from visiting the Jubbulpore line and Nagpore branch

It is established that—

(1)—We cannot count on any further supplies for the famine districts from the northern lines, as the recent rise of prices in the North-West has diverted them to Cawnpore, &c.

(2)—Grain is now being booked to the North-West Provinces from stations on the Great Indian Peninsula line between Kundwah and Bhosawul

Probably also from districts served by the Holkar State Railway.

(3)—If high prices in the North-West continue, grain may be sent from Nagpore from Bombay, even back from Poona where large stocks have accumulated

(4)—Very little grain is now being booked anywhere on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway for the Nizam's line or for Madras stations There are some wagons for both places on the road, but these will soon be cleared off,

(5)—There is a large accumulation of wagons almost all from northern lines for Sholapur

(6)—Merchants in the Central Provinces now desire to book to—

(a)—Bombay,

(b)—Sholapur and Goalburga,

(c)—Nasik, &c,

not to Poona or Nizam's line or Raichore

(7)—A certain number of engines will be set free for other work by—

(a)—the falling off in through consignments from the Great Indian Railway,

Under all these circumstances I have come to the conclusion in which I believe all those I have consulted concur that the proper course will be—to issue the notice drafted by Mr. Conder and marked A;

to restrict the general traffic to be taken from northern lines at Jubbulpore as heretofore to 40 or 50 wagons daily, and to utilise the engines set free by the cessation of famine traffic (100 wagons) heretofore received from northern lines in clearing Great Indian Peninsula stations.

This arrangement to continue so long only as the present condition of affairs remains unchanged, but it is to be distinctly understood that up to the quantities already stipulated for absolute preference is to be given to famine grain, that all the grain that can be obtained for Raichore and the Nizam's line up to the quantity promised is to be sent, and that 2,000 tons of grain are to be sent daily over the Bhoreghât so long as that quantity is worked, and the stations* to which it may be consigned can receive it.

* (N B)—Poona, Sholapur &c, owing to limited accommodation, can only unload a certain number of wagons daily

* These figures include all the labourers upon the Dhond Manmad Railway, a large number of whom are not relief but ordinary labourers

† These figures are for the weeks ending 15th and 22nd respectively ‡ Corrected figures given § Rates not reported. ‖ For details and dates see table appended

The week's telegraphic news is again satisfactory There has now been sufficient rain for the present everywhere, except in four talukas of Khandesh, three of Nasik and one of Poona

2. Prices are falling everywhere, and in five of the Districts—Khandesh, Ahmednagar, Sholapur, Satara and Belgaum—the improvement in this respect is very considerable

3 The number of people upon relief works is now 182,158, which is less by 36,758 than the number for the previous week The number quoted still includes a number of ordinary labourers upon the Dhond and Manmad Railway, the necessary information for deducting them not having been received Dharwar is the only district in which the number of labourers on relief works shows no decrease The Collector, however, anticipates a considerable falling off shortly. The reduction is most marked in Kaladgi

4 Cholera continues to decrease, and has now disappeared from three of the nine districts

5 Weekly written reports received since the date of the last Statement bring the detailed information in the case of the Nasik, Poona, Sholapur and Satara Collectorates up to the 29th September, and in the case of the other five affected districts to the 22nd idem The usual rainfall table compiled from these reports is appended The kharif crops are in good condition everywhere, and the harvest has commenced in Ahmednagar, Satara and Kaladgi The sowing of rabi progresses satisfactorily on the whole, though in some places in the districts to the north it is retarded for want of rain, while in Sholapur, on other hand, it is retarded by excessive rain. The cotton sown in Dharwar in August is reported to be well up and vigorous

6 The following table gives the expenditure by Government, during the week ending 15th September, upon gratuitous relief, and in payments made to the young children of labourers employed upon relief works. Comparing the results shown in the table below with those shown in the last Statement, it will be seen that the number of persons in receipt of Government charitable relief has increased from 91,170 to 97,691, while the number of children under 7 years of age has decreased from 71,838 to 64,654 The number of people charitably relieved was 45 75 per cent of the number of labourers upon relief works during the same week

9 Maps are not sent with this summary

10 From the appended table showing the condition of the affected Native States it will be seen that the improvement noticed last week continues, and that prices have fallen everywhere except in Phaltan where they are stationary

11 During the week ending 29th September, 153 tons of food-grains were exported from Bombay to the Southern Mahratta ports, and 4,342 tons were carried by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway to stations upon the Poona-Sholapur and Bhusawal-Nasik lines, making a total of 4,495 tons for the week This is less by 746 tons than the importations of the previous week The table below shows the quantities of grain sent by sea and rail from October 1876 till the 29th September 1877 to the Southern Mahratta ports and the Railway stations in the distressed districts It will be seen that the total amount delivered up to the 29th September was 415,388 tons —

12 There has been a net decrease of 36,121 in the number of people upon relief works, and a decrease of 7,184 in the number of young children There has, on the other hand, been an increase of 6,524 in the number of people on charitable relief

13 The improvement in the general situation is more decidedly marked, but the poorer classes of the people still suffer from the prevailing high prices and they should be addressed to the Superintendent, Government Mathematical Instrument Department, No 9, Park Street, Calcutta

4 The mode of transit, and address, or station to which the instruments are to be consigned, must invariably be specified on indents in the proper column Indents should not be accompanied with forwarding letters, unless more explanation is necessary than can be given on the face of the indent

5 All officers to whom instruments and other stores are issued on public service, have to account for them to the Accountant General to whom their accounts are rendered, in such manner as may be by him directed

6 All instruments and component parts of instruments, when no longer required, should be at once returned to the Mathematical Instrument Department, except when the officer in charge considers that their transit charges may nearly equal, or exceed, their actual value as material, in which case, he should refer to the Superintendent, Mathematical Instrument Department, for instructions as to their disposal

7 When instruments are considered unserviceable by any officer, a survey should be held on them by a committee of Government officers, whose report should be forwarded to the Superintendent, Mathematical Instrument Department, who will issue instructions as to which of the articles are to be

8 When instruments are received for final deposit in store, a receipt will be granted for them by the Superintendent, Mathematical Instrument Department, to enable officers from whom received, to remove them from their debit, by forwarding their receipt to the Accountant General concerned, with half-yearly or other returns of stores submitted to him

9 All Government instruments, &c, requiring repair, &c, should be forwarded with an official letter or repair indent If no longer required and intended to be deposited in store, it should be specifically mentioned

10 All instruments, &c, received from England and issued on book debit on the public service, will be charged at their invoice cost, plus charges incurred in landing, storing and examining and despatching them, &c, or, when this cost cannot be ascertained, rate book prices will be charged These are based on average rates

11 Instruments made in the department will be charged at the actual cost, and those purchased locally for issue, at cost price, plus 10 per cent for incidental charges

12 Instruments, when they can be spared, are sometimes issued to officers and others on payment of the cost value, plus 20 per cent, and instruments, the private property of officers, are repaired, if necessary, on like terms In such cases the amount must be remitted to the Superintendent, Mathematical Instrument Department, before the instruments can be despatched from the Office of the Superintendent

13 Instruments returned into store will be valued according to their condition

14 It is particularly requested that sizes and sorts of instruments, length of scales, how divided, and purposes for which required, and generally any information which will guide this department in knowing, without further reference, the exact wants of the indenting officer, be put as far as possible on face of indent, instead of in covering letters

15 The following list shows nomenclature of the various descriptions of instruments ordinarily kept in store of this department for issue on public service This nomenclature, it is especially necessary, should be adopted in all indents

16 To enable the indenting officer, as well as the officer who countersigns and finally passes in indent, to know the cost involved thereby, the average ordinary price of each description of instrument is also given in the annexed list Indenting Officers must invariably enter the value of all instruments required by them in column of indent allotted to the purpose

17 The supply should be regulated, not according to what an Officer would like to have, but by what is absolutely necessary

Relief where too high a court fee has been paid on probate or letters of administration

68. Where any person on applying for the probate of a will or letters of administration has estimated the property of the deceased to be of greater value than the same has afterwards proved to be, and has consequently paid too high a court-fee thereon, if within six months after the true value of the property has been ascertained, such person produces the probate or letters to the Court by which the probate or letters has or have been granted, and delivers to such Court a particular inventory and valuation of the property of the deceased, verified by affidavit or affirmation,

and if such Court is satisfied that a greater fee was paid on the probate or letters than the law required,

the said Court may at its discretion—

(a) cancel the stamp on the probate or letters, if such stamp has not been already cancelled,

(b) order that another stamp be substituted for denoting the court-fee which should have been paid thereon; and

(c) order that an allowance for the difference between them, or a refund of the amount in money, be made as in the case of spoiled stamps

69 Whenever it is proved to the satisfaction of such Court that an executor or administrator has paid debts due from the deceased to such an amount as, being deducted out of the amount or value of the estate, reduces the same to a sum which, if it had been the whole gross amount or value of the estate, would have occasioned a less court-fee to be paid on the probate or letters of administration granted in respect of such estate than has been actually paid thereon under this Act,

the Court may order the amount of the difference to be refunded, provided the same be claimed within three years after the date of such probate or letters

But when, by reason of any legal proceeding, the debts due from the deceased have not been ascertained and paid, or his effects have not been recovered and made available, and in consequence thereof the executor or administrator is prevented from claiming the return of such difference within the said term of three years, the Court may allow such further time for making the claim as may appear to be reasonable under the circumstances

70 Whenever a grant of probate or letters of administration has been or is made in respect of the whole of the property belonging to an estate, and the full fee chargeable under this Act has been or is paid thereon, no fee shall be chargeable under the same Act when a like grant is made in respect of the whole or any part of the same property belonging to the same estate

Whenever such a grant has been or is made in respect of any property forming part of an estate, the amount of fees then actually paid under this Act shall be deducted when a like grant is made in respect of property belonging to the same estate, identical with or including the property to which the former grant relates

71 The probate of the will, or the letters of administration of the effects, of any person deceased, heretofore or hereafter granted, shall be deemed valid and available by his executors or administrators for recovering, transferring or assigning any moveable or immoveable property whereof or whereto the deceased was possessed or entitled, either wholly or partially as a trustee, notwithstanding the amount or value of such property is not included in the amount or value of the estate in respect of which a court-fee was paid on such probate or letters of administration

72. When any person on applying for probate or letters of administration has estimated the estate of the deceased to be of less value than the same has afterwards proved to be, and has in consequence paid too low a court-fee thereon, the Court by which the probate or letters has or have been granted, may, on the value of the estate of the deceased being verified by affidavit or affirmation, cause the probate or letters of administration to be duly stamped on payment of the full court-fee which ought to have been originally paid thereon in respect of such value, and of the further penalty, if the probate or letters is or are produced within one year from the date of the grant, of five times, or if it or they is or are produced after one year from such date, of twenty times, such proper court-fee, without any deduction of the court fee originally paid on such probate or letters

Provided that, if the application be made within six months after the ascertainment of the true value of the estate and the discovery that too low a court-fee was at first paid on the probate or letters, and if the Court is satisfied that such fee was paid in consequence of a mistake or of its not being known at the time that some particular part of the estate belonged to the deceased, and without any intention of fraud or to delay the payment of the proper court-fee, the Court may remit the said penalty, and cause the probate or letters to be duly stamped on payment only of the sum wanting to make up the fee which should have been at first paid thereon

73 In case of letters of administration on which too low a court-fee has been paid at first, the said authority shall not cause the same to be duly stamped in manner aforesaid until the administrator has given such security to the Court by which the letters of administration have been granted as ought by law to have been given on the granting thereof in case the full value of the estate of the deceased had then been ascertained

Executors, &c., not paying full court-fee on probates, &c within six months after discovery of underpayment

74 Where too low a court-fee has been paid on any probate or letters of administration in consequence of any mistake, or of its not being known at the time that some particular part of the estate belonged to the deceased, if any executor or administrator acting under such probate or letters does not, within six months after the discovery of the mistake or of any effects not known at the time to have belonged to the deceased, apply to the said authority and pay what is wanting to make up the court-fee which ought to have been paid at first on such probate or letters, he shall forfeit the sum of one thousand rupees and also a further sum at the rate of ten rupees per cent on the amount of the sum wanting to make up the proper court-fee,

Collector to deliver or pay stamp or amount directed by Court

75 When any Court orders under this chapter any stamp to be substituted or amount to be refunded, such stamp or amount shall be delivered or paid by any Collector to the person producing the Court's order or certificate authorizing such delivery or payment

76. The provisions of this chapter shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to certificates granted under Act No XL of 1858 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of Minors in the Pre- sidency of Fort William in Bengal), or Act No XXVII of 1860 (for facilitating the collection of debts on successions, and for the security of parties paying debts to the representatives of deceased persons), or Act No XX of 1864 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of Minors in the Presidency of Bombay), or Bombay Regulation VIII of 1827 (to provide for the formal recognition of Heirs, Executors and Administrators, and for the appointment of Administrators and Managers of property by the Courts), and to the holders of such certificates

XIII of 1875	Probates and Letters of Administration	Section six

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The provisions of the law relating to stamp-duties and Court-fees are now contained in six different Acts, and numerous orders of the Governor General in Council notified from time to time in the Government Gazette during the last seven years It is desirable for the convenience of the public to bring these provisions within the compass of a single enactment, and it is proposed to take this opportunity to introduce measures for the improved working of the law, which experience has shown to be much needed, and at the same time to provide for the acquisition of a moderate increase of revenue from stamp-duties

2 Such increase is to be obtained partly by the amendment of those provisions of the law which are specially designed to protect the revenue from loss through evasion of the payment of the proper stamp-duty, and partly by the enhancement of the present rates of duty in certain cases

3 There is reason to believe that the obligation of stamping documents at the time of their execution is at present largely evaded Prosecutions for such evasion are rarely resorted to, and the criminal penalties provided by the existing law may be said to be almost inoperative, so that frauds upon the revenue are systematically practised in the belief that the worst result to be apprehended from their detection is the levy of a fine of a certain fixed amount, in addition to the unpaid duty The most important object to be kept in view consequently in the framing of a new Stamp Bill is to stop, as far as may be practicable, every hole of escape from the liability which the law imposes upon the executant of instruments subject to stamp-duty

4 The new preventive provisions are contained in sections 30, 31, 33, 35 and 37, and their main object is to secure the proper scrutiny of instruments liable to stamp-duty when produced by their possessors, and the effective working of the criminal penalty-clauses as a deterrent to wilful evasions

5 It has been shown that, in the present state of the law, the obligation to see that all documents produced in Courts and public offices are properly stamped is generally ignored unless and until the parties producing them desire to put the documents in evidence It is not an uncommon thing for persons to produce documents improperly stamped, and on being told that they will have to pay a specified amount by way of penalty, to withdraw the documents and forego putting them in evidence, and in such cases they are allowed to escape punishment or the offence which they have committed in not stamping or sufficiently stamping their instruments, and which is not the less an offence against the law and punishable as such, whether they wish to use the instrument or not

6. Further, where the presiding Judge or officer does take cognizance of the omission to use a proper stamp, some difficulty is found in securing the due punishment of the offender owing to the obscure and somewhat conflicting provisions of the existing law as to the constitution of an "offence" Whilst, on the one hand, the criminal penalty is declared to be incurred upon the mere fact of under-stamping, on the other the provisions relating to the procedure to be followed on the production of unstamped documents deal prominently with the question of intention on the part of the producer, and the Courts generally ignore the presumption of fraudulent intention in the absence of proof of the existence of such intention As such proof is not forthcoming, the producer of the instrument almost invariably escapes, mulcted only in the civil penalty which the Court is empowered to levy at its own discretion and without reference to other authority

7 To meet this state of things, it is provided in section 30 of the Bill that every Court and head of an office shall take notice of and examine all instruments produced before them, that they shall determine whether the instrument is properly stamped, and, if not, shall impound it Section 31 provides for dealing with an impounded instrument which is required to be put in evidence, so that there may be no obstruction to the administration of justice, whilst section 33, amongst other things, provides that this detention of the document and levy of a validating fine in the form of additional duty shall in no case protect the person responsible for the under-stamping from the criminal penalties to which his offence renders him liable Section 35 prescribes the course to be followed by the Collector when under-stamped documents or copies thereof come into his hands, and section 36 determines the effect of the realization of the deficient duty as regards the validity of the instrument, and provides for the ultimate disposal of the latter—according as a criminal prosecution may or may not be undertaken

8 Section 37 contains an entirely new provision and one that seems likely to stimulate the production of instruments liable to stamp-duty and not properly stamped

It frequently happens that the person interested in putting in evidence an insufficiently stamped document was not bound by law to bear the expense of the stamp that should have been used at the time of its execution, yet he has to bear the penalty incurred through the laches of the actual defaulter As a consequence of this state of the law, the person interested in producing the document is often deterred from so doing by the consideration of the penalty In such cases it cannot be doubted that production will be greatly facilitated by the provisions of this section which enable the producer to throw the cost of producing the unstamped or improperly stamped document upon another person

9 Important changes are proposed in regard to some of the instruments chargeable with ad valorem duties specified in the first Schedule, namely, Bills of Exchange payable otherwise than on demand, Bonds, Conveyances, Policies of Insurance and other instruments such as Promissory Notes, Leases and Mortgage deeds which are subject to the same duties as Bills of Exchange, Bonds and Conveyances respectively

10 Under the present law all Bonds and Conveyances in which the amount secured, or consideration stated, ranges between Rs 50 and Rs 10,000, and other instruments similarly chargeable, are subject to rates of stamp-duty equivalent to 1 and ½ per cent, respectively, on the maximum amount of each step in the scale of ascents by which the assessment is regulated So far, with one exception only, to be presently stated, the sliding scale of rates of stamp-duty follow the plan of the English stamp law, but the tax is as much heavier in proportion in this country as the rupee, half rupee, quarter rupee and one anna respectively exceed in value the shilling, its half and quarter, and one penny The exception adverted to is that, whereas in the English scale of ascents there is no intermediate step between £100 and £200 or £200 and £300, and so on, in the Indian stamp law the ascents between Rs 1,000 and Rs 10,000 are by steps of Rs. 500

11 When the amount involved in the instrument chargeable with stamp-duty exceeds Rs 10,000, the percentage of charge is, by the present stamp law in this country, diminished as the amount upon which the duty is assessed increases, whereas under the English law the same proportion of charge is maintained throughout, whatever may be the amount of the subject-matter of the instrument liable to stamp-duty

12. The rates of stamp-duty also charged on Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes other than those payable on demand are, relatively to the duties chargeable on Bonds and Conveyances under the Indian stamp law, lower than the English rates For, whilst the stamp law in England imposes on Conveyances, Bonds and Bills of Exchange the duty of 12*d*, 6*d*. and about 1⅛*d* for every £10, here the rates on those three classes of instruments are 16 annas, 8 annas and about 1 anna for every Rs 100 respectively

13 The principle of the changes now proposed may be said to be the equalisation of the existing rates of percentage of duty upon the amount taxed and their adjustment to the English standard—the rupee and its halves and quarters being taken as the equivalent of the shilling and its halves and quarters respectively, and the anna as equal to the penny

14 Some increase also in regard to the duty leviable on documents of certain amounts above Rs 1,000 but below Rs 10,000 is involved in the proposed conversion of the intermediate steps between those amounts from Rs 500 to Rs 1,000, for the purpose of bringing the Indian, into precise conformity with the English, scale of ascents

15 The minimum rate of stamp-duty now payable in the case of Bonds is to be omitted It is thought that all instruments of this class—however low may be the amount involved—can without any hardship bear a four annas tax, whilst so comparatively numerous are the Bonds or other instruments of obligation in respect of amounts not exceeding twenty-five rupees that the additional rate of two annas to which it is proposed to subject them is likely to produce a material increase of revenue.

16. It is proposed to include Policies of Insurance on life in the general class of instruments of insurance liable to stamp-duty, and to double the existing rates of charge on these instruments generally; this change is in fact nothing more than a reversion to the rates chargeable on these documents previously to the passing of the Stamp Act of 1869 Then there was no exception in favour of Life Policies, and instruments of insurance generally were charged at the rate of 8 annas per Rs 1,000 of the amount insured

17 Instruments guaranteeing the repayment of loans made upon the deposit of valuable securities are by the present law subjected to a small fixed duty of two rupees only, without reference to the amount of the loan or the extent of the accommodation obtained through the transaction. It seems more equitable and consistent with the general principles which govern the determination of stamp duties that these instruments should be taxed according to the amount involved in the transaction, hence it is proposed to substitute an ad valorem for a fixed duty, and, having regard to the short period for which the loan is granted, to assess the new duty at one-half of the rate applicable to Bills of Exchange

18 The Bill provides also for the revival of the rule, in regard to the duty leviable on certain promissory notes, which was in force previous to the passing of the Stamp Act of 1869, under which a promissory note made payable at some time exceeding one year from the date of the note was liable to the same rate of duty as a Bond As the obligatory instrument ordinarily executed in this country when loans are taken—the "tamassúk"—is more of the nature of a promissory note than a bond, it seems probable that some unnecessary sacrifice of revenue has resulted from the relinquishment of the former mode of assessment to which it is now proposed to revert in these cases.

19. The limit of amount within which cheques and other orders for the payment of money and receipts are exempted from any stamp-duty is to be reduced from twenty to ten Rupees The payment of one anna stamp-duty can hardly be considered an oppressive tax in such cases, whilst so comparatively numerous are the transactions of this kind involving small amounts, that the abolition of the exemption in respect of sums ranging between twenty and ten rupees is likely to secure a considerable increase of revenue Further, the Bill aims at the enforcement of the delivery of a receipt for the payment of any amount in excess of ten rupees in satisfaction of a debt Under the present law a person receiving money in payment of a debt above a certain amount is obliged to grant a receipt to the payer if the latter demands it This enactment has been found by experience to attain its object but very imperfectly, as the payers are generally too indifferent about the matter to exercise their legal right, and consequently the payee it is believed, in a large number, if not the majority, of cases, escapes his obligation As the obligation was imposed solely in the interest of the revenue, the principle on which it rests is not overstrained by the provision of the Bill which, upholding the obligation of the payee, dispenses with the antecedent condition for its enforcement

20 The duty chargeable on instruments evidencing an appraisement or an award is raised by the Bill to about five times its present amount Before 1869, these documents were not subject to any stamp-duty the tax then imposed was purely experimental The increase now proposed still leaves instruments of this description more lightly taxed than they are in England

21 The Bill substitutes an ad valorem rate of duty for the fixed amount now chargeable on Partition-deeds That amount is Rs 16 and in some cases proves such a heavy tax that the matter has been made the subject of a reference to Government, an equal charge on all partitions without reference to the value of the property divided must work unsatisfactorily. An ad valorem duty is a more equitable form of charge, and the rate has been assimilated to that of bonds, which is one-half of the rate to which ordinary deeds of conveyance are subject

22. An ad valorem charge is also proposed in lieu of a fixed duty for instruments of gift and exchange All fixed duties are more or less objectionable, as they must either be pitched so low as to bring in no appreciable amount of revenue, or they must press with undue severity in cases in which the property concerned is of inconsiderable value The difficulty of imposing ad valorem duties in these cases arises out of the want of a safe basis for their assessment, there being no consideration expressed in the instruments to be charged It is proposed to surmount this difficulty by imposing on the parties the obligation of stating truly—under heavy penalties for fraudulent statements—the approximate value of the subject of the deed of gift or exchange.

23 The stamp-duties heretofore chargeable on pleaders' and múkhtars' certificates under the Pleader's Act are included in the Bill as part of the scheme of consolidation It seems only just and consistent that advocates and attorneys should be similarly taxed in respect of the practice of their profession in the Courts of this country, and it is proposed to subject them to the payment of five hundred rupees, and two hundred and fifty rupees stamp-duty, respectively, on their enrolment as advocates and attorneys of a High Court The members of the faculty practising in the Courts of England, Ireland and Scotland are somewhat similarly taxed in respect of such practice

24 The only changes in the rates of Court-fees contemplated by the Bill are (1) in respect of suits instituted in the Courts of Small Causes, (2) the grant of probates of wills and letters of administration, and (3) the fees leviable for the service of processes

25 The new rates for Small Cause Court suits involve a decrease of 2½ per cent in the case of suits of this class instituted in the Presidency Towns, and a proportionate increase of the rates heretofore obtaining in such Courts situated outside those towns

The present rates in the Presidency Towns are 2 annas per rupee or 12½ per cent Elsewhere they are the same as in other Courts, namely, 7½ per cent on the average amount involved in the suit. The town rate is clearly too high and some relief is called for This, it is thought, may be

unobjectionably given by the application of the equalisation principle, and the enhancement of the rate heretofore levied in the Mufassal Small Cause Court is defensible on the ground that, as the judicial agency and general machinery of these Courts is more costly than those of the ordinary Civil Courts, whilst a complete determination of the matter in dispute is obtained in the one class of Courts and not in the other, equitable considerations admit of a higher rate of charge upon the litigants in the former case than in the latter

26 Up to 1870 no stamp-duty was charged on Letters of Administration to the effects of deceased persons or Probates of Wills. The rate of duty then fixed was tentative and expressly declared to be subject to revision on the occasion of the next amendment of the law on the subject, it is now proposed to increase it from two, to two and a half per centum

27 The fees now chargeable for the service of processes issuing from the Civil, Revenue and Criminal Courts are fixed by rules framed by the High Courts It is proposed to substitute for this procedure the fixed rates specified under Nos 20 and 21 of the fifth schedule of the Bill, and to discontinue the provisions of the existing law for the regulation of the process-serving establishments

The experience gained through the working of the present system, as to the actual cost of serving processes, renders possible the determination of the amount of the fee required in the case of each kind of process to cover the cost of its service, and it seems desirable not only that the Court fees of this class should, like all other fees leviable under the Court-fees Act, be fixed by the Act itself, but that the regulation of the establishments to be maintained for the service of processes should be under the exclusive control of the Executive authorities

28 It is often asserted that the provisions of the stamp law are so complicated as to be ill-understood by the public generally, and on this ground a disposition has been shown sometimes on the part of the administrators of the law to excuse, or take a very lenient view of, non-compliance with its requirements, the Bill has been framed therefore with the special endeavour to render the requirements of the law generally intelligible, by large additions to the interpretation-clauses, improved arrangement of its provisions and a simpler classification of the contents of the schedules

29 The other alterations of the existing law contained in the Bill relate chiefly to matters of detail or procedure, are of minor importance, and do not appear to call for any special explanation

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th October 1877, and was referred to a Select Committee —

A Bill to enable the District Judges of the Presidency of Fort Saint George to suspend and remove certain ministerial officers, and for other purposes

Preamble

Whereas it is expedient to empower the District Judges of the Presidency of Fort Saint George to suspend and remove ministerial officers of the Courts of Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs, and whereas it is also expedient to provide for the transfer of ministerial officers from one Court to another, It is hereby enacted as follows —

Amendment of Act III of 1873, section 23

1 For section 23 of the Madras Civil Courts Act, 1873, the following shall be substituted (that is to say) —

Appointment and removal of ministerial officers of subordinate Courts

"23. The ministerial officers of the Courts of the Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs shall be appointed by such Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs, respectively, subject to the approval or confirmation of the District Judge within whose jurisdiction such Courts are situate, and may be suspended or removed from office either by the said District Judge or (subject to his approval or confirmation) by such Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs respectively."

Transfer of ministerial officers

"24 A The Local Government may, at the instance of the District Judge, transfer from any Court, except the High Court, to any other Court, except the High Court, all or any of the ministerial officers of the Court of such Judge, or of any Subordinate Judge or District Munsif under his control

"The District Judge may transfer all or any of the ministerial officers of any Court under his control to any other such Court"

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Madras Government and the Madras High Court desire that the District Judges should have the power of suspending or removing ministerial officers of the Courts of the Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs in addition to the power which they now possess under Act III of 1873, section 23 of approving and confirming those officers The first section of the Bill is intended to effect this object

Powers, resembling those conferred by Act VI of 1871, section 37, are also given to transfer ministerial officers from one Court to another

[Second publication]

The following preliminary Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th October 1877 —

We, the undersigned members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to define and amend the law relating to Promissory Notes, Bills of Exchange and Cheques was referred, have considered the papers specified in the appendix, and have the honour to present this preliminary report

2 This Bill, of which a draft, hereinafter called the draft Bill, was prepared by the late Indian Law Commission, is intended to be one of the chapters of the Indian Civil Code, and was introduced and referred to a Select Committee in December 1867. The then mercantile members of Council, while admitting the desirability of codification, objected to the draft Bill on account of its deviations from English law In order to obviate this objection several alterations have now been made in its substantial provisions The Bill has also been re-arranged, and some additions have been made in order to supply omissions These changes, which embody most of the suggestions contained in the papers mentioned in the appendix, will appear in detail from this report

3 It may, however, be convenient, before proceeding further, to notice briefly the alterations which have been made in order to render the Bill conformable to English law

4 The draft Bill provided that an indorsee for value after maturity should have only the rights of his indorser This does not except the case of a bill of exchange drawn or accepted for the purpose of enabling some party thereto to raise money thereon we have added an exception in section 80 in order to meet this case

5. The draft Bill discarded days of grace we have recognised this usage in sections 87 and 88 of the present Bill The change has involved (in section 22) a slight alteration of the definition of "maturity"

6 The draft Bill also made all instruments which fell due upon a holiday payable on the next succeeding business day instead of, as in English law, on the next preceding business day, except in the case of a public holiday We have in section 26 adhered to the English law, and have provided that, besides the usual public holidays, such days shall be public holidays within the meaning of the Act as the Local Government may declare

7 The draft Bill made no provision for the case in which interest at a specified rate is expressly made payable on a note or bill It merely provided that interest at the current rate should be payable on a bill dishonoured by non-acceptance, but only from the maturity of the instrument The same rule was adopted in the case of dishonour by non-payment of a note, bill or cheque We have substituted the English law on this subject by declaring (section 101) that, where interest is expressly provided for in the note or bill, it shall be calculated, as against all parties, at the specified rate from the date of the instrument until tender or realization of the amount due. Where no interest is specified we have declared (section 101), that, except in cases within section 532 of the Civil Procedure Code, interest shall run at six per cent per annum from the date at which the amount ought to have been paid by the party charged We have also added an explanation that an indorser can only be charged with such interest from the date of the receipt by him of notice of dishonour

8 We have restored (section 117) the rule, which the draft Bill omitted, that a notice of dishonour must inform the party to whom it is given that he will be held liable

9 The draft Bill provided that when a note, bill or cheque had been lost, or would not be produced by the owner, he might nevertheless enforce his claim against the maker or acceptor if he gave security, to the satisfaction of the Court, to indemnify the defendant against the claims of any other person upon the instrument No provision was made for an action against the indorser. The English law, however, provides (17 & 18 Vict, c 125, section 87=Act V of 1866, section 14) that, in any action upon a negotiable instrument, the loss of it shall not be set up as a defence if an indemnity is given, to the satisfaction of the Court, against the claims of any other person And the owner of such a document was always entitled in equity to demand payment on giving a sufficient indemnity We have, therefore, considered that we should correctly embody the English law by providing (section 103) that any person liable to pay and paying the amount due on a note, bill or cheque shall be entitled to be indemnified, and by leaving (section 8) the liability of all parties the same as if the instrument had been forthcoming

10 The draft Bill extended to instruments payable to order the principle upon which protection is afforded by English law to the party primarily liable upon an instrument payable to bearer The acceptor, maker or indorser of a negotiable instrument payable to bearer, but not of an instrument payable to order, is, by English law, discharged by payment to any person in possession of the instrument, if the payer has no reason to believe the possessor is not the true holder. We have in section 104, clause (c), restricted the protection to such instruments

11 The Bill as now altered consists of fourteen chapters In the first chapter we have inserted the usual preliminary matter We have (section 1) excluded hundis from the operation of the Bill We have provided (section 2) for the repeal of some enactments which are replaced by the provisions of the Bill

12 Section 8 contains a definition of the term "banker" drawn from 39 & 40 Vict, c 80, s 8, and of "Notary Public" Notaries are seldom found in the Mufussal, and the Bill provides that their functions may be exercised by persons appointed for that purpose by the Governor General in Council.

13 Chapter II deals with notes, bills and cheques, bills in sets and crossed cheques We have here substituted definitions which appear to be more comprehensive and accurate than those in the draft Bill For instance, according to the original definitions, a bill of exchange differs from a cheque only in requiring that the money ordered by the instrument to be paid should be held at the disposal of the drawer—a distinction which appears to us inaccurate, as a bill of exchange is in law, equally with a cheque, assumed to be drawn against funds in the hands of the drawee. Again, the definition of a cheque would include such an instrument as a tradesman's bill on which the debtor writes an order to pay for presentation to a cash-keeper—the ordinary mode of paying bills in mercantile houses, at least in Calcutta, and one adopted by many private persons According to the draft Bill such an instrument would apparently be negotiable—a very serious result indeed Again, the definition of a cheque does not require that it should be drawn upon a banker or a person acting as such, nor that it should be payable on demand. These are only a few of what seemed to us the more obvious omissions We have, therefore, framed definitions which we think will include all the essentials of these instruments

14 Section 8 defines the holder of a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque as a person entitled in his own name to the possession of it and to receive or recover the amount due thereon from the parties thereto The holder of an instrument at the time of its loss or destruction also comes within the definition The corresponding provision of the draft Bill seemed to us vague and unsatisfactory in its definition of "holder," and it was not consistently applied in the substantive provisions of the Bill

15 In section 15 we have modified the definition of indorsement in the draft Bill by providing that it must be made for the purpose of negotiation We have also included in the definition a like signature upon a stamped paper intended to be completed as a negotiable instrument

16 We have added a section (17) providing, in accordance with English law, that, when an instrument may be construed either as a promissory note or bill of exchange, it shall be taken to be that which the holder elects

17 In section 19 we have supplied an omission in the draft Bill by providing that an instrument in which no time for payment is specified and all cheques are payable on demand

18 Section 20 provides for the filling up by the holder of blanks in a stamped paper intended to be completed as a negotiable instrument, but not completed when issued The holder may complete the instrument for any amount covered by the stamp. To this section is added as an illustration section 9 of the draft Bill

19 To the four presumptions as to negotiable instruments contained in the draft Bill and stated in section 27 of the present Bill, we have added presumptions that an accepted bill was accepted within a reasonable time after date and before maturity, that every bill or note receipted on the back was paid by the acceptor or maker, that is, by the party primarily liable to pay, and that a lost instrument was duly stamped

20 In addition to the provisions of the draft Bill as to bills in sets, we have (section 29) provided for the right of that holder of one of the parts who first acquires title to his part to possession of the other parts We have also defined an acceptor in section 7 so as to include an acceptor of a set of bills.

21 In sections 30 to 37 (both inclusive) we have substituted the provisions of the recent English Act (39 & 40 Vict, c 81) for the sections of the draft Bill relating to crossed cheques

23 Section 38, after providing that all persons capable of contracting may be parties to notes, bills and cheques, adds that a minor may draw, indorse, deliver and negotiate such instruments so as to bind all parties except himself

24 Section 39 provides for persons binding themselves through their authorized agents, and adds that a general authority is not sufficient for this purpose, and that an authority to draw a bill does not of itself authorize an indorsement

25 Sections 41 and 42 provide for the liability of partners on notes, bills and cheques, and section 43 applies the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, sections 42, 43 and 45 and chapter XI, to the rights and liabilities of partners created thereby, as well as to joint rights and liabilities

27 Section 46 extends to the case of the maker of a note, a definition contained in section 60 of the draft Bill of the liability of the acceptor of a bill of exchange

28 Section 47 adds to the category of persons who (according to section 61 of the draft Bill) can accept a bill, all or some of several joint drawees

29 Section 49 provides that every prior party to a negotiable instrument is liable thereon to a holder in due course, that is, to a bonâ fide holder for value

30 Section 50 lays down that the maker of a note or cheque, the drawer of a bill until acceptance, and the acceptor are ordinarily the principal parties to the bill and the other parties their sureties, and section 51 adds that each prior party is a principal as regards the holder, and that the intermediate parties between such prior party and the holder are sureties for him By section 52 the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, sections 132 to 147 (both inclusive) are rendered applicable to these relations of suretyship

31 We have added a section (54) estopping the maker of a note, the drawer of a bill or cheque and the acceptor of a bill for the honour of the drawer from denying the original validity of the instrument

32 Section 55 adopts, with modifications, the provisions of section 117 of the Evidence Act, 1872, and of sections 36 and 62 of the draft Bill, which estop the acceptor from denying

the drawer's signature The estoppel is, we think, properly confined by this section to suits by holders other than the drawer

33 Section 56 estops the maker of a note and the acceptor of a bill payable to order from denying the payee's capacity to indorse

34 Section 57 adds to the estoppel against denying false signatures, contained in section 35 of the draft Bill, an estoppel against denying the capacity to contract of any prior party to a negotiable instrument in suit

35 Section 58 also carries on the same subject by declaring the acceptor of a bill with a forged indorsement not to be thereby relieved from liability if he knew it to be forged at the time of acceptance, and section 59 declares that the acceptor of a bill drawn in a fictitious name is not thereby relieved from liability to pay upon an indorsement by the same hand as the drawer's signature, and purporting to be made by the drawer.

36 These sections supply some omissions in the draft Bill, and, we think, adequately provide for the due currency of negotiable instruments when once put into circulation and for the protection of their holders

37 The Bill then goes on to deal with the consideration for negotiable instruments and to protect the holder for value of instruments with respect to which there may have been originally no consideration, or a subsequent failure of consideration, wholly or in part

38 These sections (60 to 63, both inclusive) are substantially taken from the draft Bill We have added an illustration to section 62

40 To section 64, which is substantially the same as section 18 of the draft Bill, we have added an explanation to the effect that an instrument delivered upon a condition which has not happened is not negotiable except by a holder for value and without notice of such condition

41 Where the holder of a note or bill payable to or to the order of a specified person delivers it to another person without indorsing it, but with intent to transfer his title thereto, we think that (with reference to the Code of Civil Procedure, sections 36 and 37) the transferee should not be required to sue in the name of his transferor We have framed section 66 accordingly

42 In section 67 we have, in substantial accordance with section 40 of the draft Bill, dealt with the case of a bonâ fide holder for value of a bill transferred without indorsement In such a case we have declared the holder entitled to a return of the consideration if the bill is, after the transfer, avoided on account of any matter prior to the transfer, provided such return is claimed within a reasonable time

43 Section 71 describes the parties who may indorse and negotiate negotiable instruments The draft Bill does not appear to provide with sufficient clearness for this matter

44 Section 76 embodies section 23 of the draft Bill but completes that section by enacting that an indorsement of a negotiable instrument for part of the amount due thereon transfers a right to retain the instrument and to receive and recover such part in the name of the indorser

45 Section 77 provides that no agreement which is not expressed on the instrument or which is collateral thereto shall be binding upon holders for value or those deriving title from such holders This section embodies and supplements the corresponding provisions of the draft Bill of which section 42 provided that the title of an indorsee should not be affected by transactions independent of the instrument, and section 99 that a holder in due course should not be affected by any agreement between two signers as to the order of their liability unless such agreement appeared on the face of the instrument The section as now drawn extends the draft sections to holders for value and to holders deriving title from holders for value, and also extends section 99 to all agreements not expressed on the instrument

47. Section 82 states the essentials of presentment for acceptance in the case of bills payable at or after sight, to which the draft Bill, section 56, clause (1), refers as bills payable after demand We have added a provision that presentment must be made by a person entitled to demand acceptance, and we have provided for the case in which the drawee cannot after reasonable search be found, and also for the case of a bill directed to the drawee at a particular place

48. Section 83 provides for presentment for sight of a promissory note payable at a certain period after sight—a matter unnoticed by the draft Bill

49 Section 84 alters section 56, clause (3), of the draft Bill by restricting the time allowed to the drawee for deliberation to the departure of the next post, if that should happen within the twenty-four hours otherwise allowed This is the English rule upon the subject

50 Sections 85 and 86 lay down the general rule for presentment for payment, which is not distinctly laid down in the draft Bill

51 Section 87, as to presentment for payment of inland instruments payable after date or sight, embodies section 133 of the draft Bill, but we have excluded cheques from this section, as we have provided (section 19), in accordance with English law, that such instruments are only payable on demand.

52 Section 88 provides for presentment for payment of an inland note payable by instalments—a matter omitted from the draft Bill

53 Section 90 modifies sections 139 and 140 of the draft Bill by requiring, in accordance with English law, that an instrument drawn or accepted payable at a specified place must,

in order to charge the maker or drawer, be presented for payment at that place The draft Bill allows presentment to be made in such cases at the place of business or residence of the maker or acceptor

55 Section 92 extends the rule in section 141 of the draft Bill as to personal presentment to the case of presentment for acceptance

56 Section 93 taken together with section 105 embodies section 101 of the draft Bill, with the modification that the presentment of a cheque must be made before the relation between the drawer and his banker has been altered to the prejudice of the drawer, or the drawer will be discharged from liability The draft Bill discharges the drawer only to the extent of his actual loss, but, according to the English cases, he is discharged altogether by such delay, the payee of the cheque being considered as having, by such delay, treated the cheque as payment, and as thereby electing to look to the drawee alone (see Hopkins v Ware, L R 4 Ex 268)

57 Section 96 is new It provides that presentment for acceptance or payment may be made by or to a duly authorized agent, or the representative of a deceased party or the assignee of an insolvent party

58 Section 98 states the cases in which presentment for payment is excused It embodies sections 89 and 91 of the draft Bill, and adds the case in which the drawer could not suffer damage by want of presentment, in which case presentment is by English law not necessary as against him

59 Chapter VI treats of payment and interest Section 100 declares that payment should be made to the holder, for payment to any other party does not of itself discharge the maker or acceptor The next two sections, 101 and 102, provide for interest upon notes, bills and cheques, and section 103 for indemnity to the payer of an instrument lost or which cannot be produced

61 Section 104 provides for the discharge of a maker, acceptor or indorser, not only when the holder cancels the acceptor's or indorser's name, and when the maker, acceptor or indorser pays the amount due (sections 38, 85, 87, and 88 of the draft Bill), but also where the holder releases or otherwise discharges the maker, acceptor or indorser.

62 Section 107 adopts the provisions of 16 & 17 Vict, c 59, section 19 by which the drawer of a cheque payable to order and purporting to be indorsed by or on behalf of the payee is discharged by payment in due course

63 To section 110, which embodies sections 109 and 110 of the draft Bill, we have added an explanation showing what are material alterations in a negotiable instrument

64 Section 111 is new, and provides that in special cases, such as that of a blank stamped instrument, an uncrossed cheque and an instrument endorsed in blank, a material alteration made by an indorsee discharges his indorser from liability to him in respect of the consideration as well as of the instrument

65 Section 113 embodies section 115 of the draft Bill and section 11 of 39 & 40 Vict, c 81, relating to crossed cheques

67 Section 116 substantially agrees with sections 125, 127 and 131 of the draft Bill, but we have altered the description of the parties to whom notice of dishonour by non-acceptance or non-payment must be given the description now adopted is that those parties must include all whom the holder seeks to make severally liable on the instrument, and some one of any parties jointly liable, but notice to the maker, drawee or acceptor is unnecessary.

68 Section 117 collects into one section a number of provisions as to the form of notice and the mode of giving it These provisions are scattered over sections 126, 127, 128 and 130 of the draft Bill. We have already pointed out that this section differs from the draft Bill in requiring notice to the party addressed that he will be held liable

69 Section 119 adds to section 132 of the draft Bill the provision that a party receiving notice of dishonour through his agent for presentment is entitled to the same period after such receipt for the purpose of giving notice as the holder has for giving notice

70 Section 121 describes the cases in which no notice of dishonour is necessary These cases include, besides those of dispensation by the party entitled to notice and of inability to give the notice (which are provided for in sections 66, 67, 68, 92 and 93 of the draft Bill), the case of the drawer countermanding payment, the case where the party charged could not suffer from want of such notice, the case of an acceptor who is also a drawer, the case of a promissory note which is not negotiable, and the case in which the party knowing the facts unconditionally promises to pay the amount due on the instrument

72 Section 122 substantially corresponds with section 119 of the draft Bill, but it allows the noting to be made either upon the instrument, or upon a paper attached thereto, or partly upon each And the rules as to noting and protest are confined to bills and notes, whereas the draft Bill extended them to cheques—an extension for which there is apparently no authority.

73 We have inserted in sections 123 and 124 provisions regarding protest for better security.

74 In section 126 we have reproduced the provisions of Act VI of 1840, section 4, and of 2 & 3 Wm 4, c 98, as to protest for non-payment after dishonour by non-acceptance

75 Chapter X contains rules for calculating the reasonable time for presentment for acceptance or payment, for giving notice of dishonour and for noting We have added in section 129 a provision that, in the case of notice of dishonour, when the parties carry on business or live in the same place, such notice is given within a reasonable time if it is despatched in time to reach its destination on the day next after the day of dishonour

76 Chapter XI deals with acceptance and payment for honour We provide (section 131) for the case of protest for better security In accordance with a recent case (In re Overend, Gurney and Company, L R 6 Eq 344), we have declared (section 136) that the payer for honour shall have all the rights, in respect of the bill, of the holder at the time of such payment

77 Chapter XII, which treats of compensation, retains (section 137) the provisions of the draft Bill (section 65) substantially unaltered

78 Chapter XIII treats of foreign bills and restricts to foreign bills the section (73) of the draft Bill, which deals with the dishonour of a bill naming a drawee in case of need

79 The provisions of chapter XIV as to international law are substantially those of the draft Bill

80 In conclusion, we desire to express our obligations to the following honourable and learned Judges, namely, Messrs Turner, Kennedy, West and Nánábhái Haridás to the Madras Chamber of Commerce to Mr Stewart Gladstone, Mr R Stewart, Mr Dickson (late Secretary and Treasurer to the Bank of Bengal), and Mr Scrymgeour, the Calcutta Agent of the Oriental Bank Corporation We recommend that the Bill as now altered be republished in the Gazette of India and the local Gazettes, that the opinions of the Local Governments, the High Courts and the mercantile community be invited thereon, and that its further consideration be stayed till the Council re-assembles in Calcutta

PARTIES TO NOTES, BILLS AND CHEQUES

Capacity to make, &c, promissory notes, &c

38 Every person capable of contracting, according to the law to which he is subject, may bind himself and be bound by the making, drawing, acceptance, indorsement, delivery and negotiation of a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque

Minor

A minor may draw, indorse, deliver and negotiate such instruments so as to bind all parties except himself

Agency

39 Every person capable of binding himself or of being bound, as in the last preceding section mentioned, may so bind himself or be bound by a duly authorized agent acting in his name

A general authority to transact business and to receive and discharge debts does not confer upon an agent the power of accepting or indorsing bills of exchange so as to bind his principal

An authority to draw bills of exchange does not of itself import an authority to indorse

Liability of agent signing

40. An agent who signs his name to a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque, without indicating thereon that he signs as agent, or that he does not intend thereby to incur personal responsibility, is liable personally on the instrument, except to those who know that he signed as agent, or that he had no such intention

Acceptance by several drawees not partners

41 Where there are several drawees of a bill of exchange who are not partners, each of them can accept it for himself, but none of them can accept it for another without his authority

When partnership bound by promissory notes, &c.

42. When it is within the scope of the business of a partnership to make, draw, accept, indorse or negotiate promissory notes, bills of exchange or cheques, any partner may bind his firm by making, drawing, accepting, indorsing or negotiating such instruments in the name of his firm, but not otherwise

Exception.—A partner may bind his firm by accepting in his own name, for partnership purposes, a bill drawn upon the firm

Partnership and joint rights and liabilities

43 In the absence of a contract to the contrary, the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, sections 42, 43 and 45, and those of chapter XI of the same Act shall respectively apply to all joint rights and liabilities created by promissory notes, bills of exchange and cheques, and to the rights and liabilities thereon of partners

Liability of drawer

44 The drawer of a bill of exchange or cheque is bound, in case of dishonour by the drawee or acceptor thereof, to compensate the holder for any loss or damage caused thereby, provided due notice of dishonour has been given to, or received by, the drawer as hereinafter provided

Liability of drawee

45. The drawee of a bill of exchange or cheque, having sufficient funds of the drawer in his hands properly applicable to the payment of such bill or cheque, must accept the bill or pay the cheque when duly required so to do, and, in default of such acceptance or payment, must compensate the drawer for any loss or damage caused by such default

Liability of maker of note and acceptor of bill

46 Except as provided in sections 38, 61, 62, 63, 79, 80, 89, 90, 104 and 109, and in the absence of a contract to the contrary,—

(a) the maker of a promissory note and the acceptor before maturity of a bill of exchange, are bound to pay the amount thereof according to the apparent tenor of the note or acceptance respectively, and

(b) the acceptor of a bill of exchange at or after maturity is bound to pay the amount thereof to the holder on demand

In default of such payment as aforesaid, such maker or acceptor is bound to compensate any party thereto for any loss or damage sustained by him, and caused by such default

Only drawee can be acceptor except in need or for honour

47 No person except the drawee of a bill of exchange, or all or some of several joint drawees, or a person named therein as a drawee in case of need, or an acceptor for honour, can bind himself by an acceptance

Liability of indorser

48 Except as provided in sections 38, 61, 62, 63, 75, 76, 79, 82, 83, 85, 89, 93, 104, 105, 106, 108, 109, 110 and 121, clause (a), and in the absence of a contract to the contrary, every person who indorses and delivers a negotiable instrument before maturity, without, in such indorsement, expressly excluding or making conditional his own liability, is bound thereby to every subsequent holder, in case of dishonour by the drawee, acceptor or maker, to compensate such holder for any loss or damage caused to him by such dishonour, provided due notice of dishonour has been given to, or received by, such indorser as hereinafter provided

Every indorser after dishonour is liable as upon an instrument payable on demand

Liability of prior parties to holder in due course

49 Every prior party to a negotiable instrument is liable thereon to a holder in due course

Maker, drawer and acceptor principals

50 The maker of a promissory note or cheque, the drawer of a bill of exchange until acceptance, and the acceptor are, as between themselves and any other parties thereto, in the absence of any contract to the contrary between themselves and such parties, liable thereon as principal debtors, and the other parties thereto are liable thereon as sureties for them

Prior party a principal in respect of each subsequent party

51 Every prior party to a negotiable instrument is, as between himself and the holder thereof, in the absence of any contract to the contrary between himself and the holder, liable thereon as a principal debtor, and the parties thereto, subsequent to him and prior to such holder, are liable to the holder as sureties for such prior party

Illustration

Suretyship

52 The provisions of sections 132 to 147, both inclusive, of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, shall apply to the relations of suretyship between parties to negotiable instruments

Discharge of indorser's liability

53 The indorser of a negotiable instrument is not discharged from his liability thereupon by the holder having merely forborne to sue a prior party, but where the holder, without the consent of the indorser, destroys or impairs the indorser's remedy against a prior party, the indorser is discharged from liability to the holder to the same extent as if the instrument had been paid at maturity

Illustration

A is the holder of a bill of exchange made payable to the order of B which contains the following indorsements in blank —

First indorsement, "John De Souza"
Second indorsement "Peter Williams"

Estoppel against denying signature or capacity of prior party

57. No indorser of a negotiable instrument shall, in a suit thereon by a subsequent holder, be permitted to deny the signature or capacity to contract of any prior party to the instrument

Acceptor bound although indorsement forged

58 An acceptor of a bill of exchange is not relieved from liability, by reason that an indorsement thereon is forged, if he knew or had reason to believe such indorsement to be forged when he accepted the bill

Acceptance of bill drawn in fictitious name

59 An acceptor of a bill of exchange drawn in a fictitious name is not, by reason that such name is fictitious, relieved from liability to any holder claiming under an indorsement by the same hand as the drawer's signature, and purporting to be made by the drawer

Party receiving consideration liable to subsequent parties

60. If at any time there has been valuable consideration between any parties to a negotiable instrument for the making, drawing, acceptance, indorsement, negotiation or transfer thereof, the party receiving such consideration is, except as provided in sections 38, 62, 63, 75, 82, 83, 85, 89, 90, 93, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110 and 111, and in the absence of any contract to the contrary, liable upon the instrument to all subsequent parties thereto, and every subsequent holder is a holder for consideration

Illustrations

(a) A indorses a bill of exchange to B, at the request of C, for C's account with B B is a holder of the bill for consideration, and if he indorses it as a present to D, D is a holder for consideration

(b) A, the holder of a negotiable instrument, indorses it in full to B, in the belief that B has done something which he has not done B, for consideration, indorses the instrument in blank to C, and C indorses it to D D is a holder of the instrument for consideration

(c) A, the holder of a negotiable instrument indorses it in full to B, in the belief that B has done something which he has not done B, for consideration proceeding from C, indorses the instrument in blank to C, and C indorses it to D, D strikes out C's indorsement D is a holder of the instrument for consideration

Party not liable to one from whom no consideration moved

61. When there was no consideration for the making, drawing, acceptance or indorsement of a negotiable instrument, or when the consideration has wholly failed, the maker, drawer, acceptor or indorser is not liable thereon to the party in whose favour the instrument was so made, drawn, accepted or indorsed, or to any party claiming through such party, unless valuable consideration moved from the claimant or from some party through whom he derives title But the maker, drawer, acceptor or indorser is liable to compensate any subsequent party who, being liable on such instrument, pays the amount due thereon

Partial absence or failure of money consideration

62. When the consideration for which a person signed a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque consisted of money, and was originally absent in part or has subsequently failed in part, the sum which a holder standing in immediate relation with such signer is entitled to receive from him is proportionally reduced

Explanation —The drawer of a bill of exchange stands in immediate relation with the acceptor The maker of a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque, stands in immediate relation with the payee, and the indorser with his indorsee Other signers may by agreement stand in immediate relation with a holder

A draws a bill on B for Rs 500 payable to the order of A B accepts the bill but subsequently dishonours it by non payment A sues B on the bill B proves that it was accepted for value as to Rs 400 and as an accommodation to the plaintiff as to the residue A can only recover Rs 400

Partial failure of consideration not consisting of money

63. Where a part of the consideration for which a person signed a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque, though not consisting of money, is readily ascertainable in money, and there has been a failure of that part, the sum which a holder standing in immediate relation with such signer is entitled to receive from him, is proportionally reduced

64 Subject to the provisions of section 79, a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque payable to bearer is negotiable by delivery thereof

Exception —A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque delivered on condition that it is not to take effect except in a certain event is not negotiable (except in the hands of a holder for value without notice) unless such event happens

Illustrations

(a) A the holder of a negotiable instrument payable to bearer delivers it to B s agent to keep for B The instrument has been negotiated

(b) A, the holder of a negotiable instrument payable to bearer which is in the hands of A s banker, who is at the time the banker of B directs the banker to transfer the instrument to B s credit in the banker s account with B The banker does so, and accordingly now possesses the instrument as B s agent The instrument has been negotiated, and B has become the holder of it

65 Subject to the provisions of section 79, a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque payable to, or to the order of, a specified person is negotiable by the holder by indorsement and delivery thereof

Transfer without indorsement.

66 If the holder of such an instrument as in the last preceding section mentioned, delivers it to another person without indorsing it, but with intent to transfer his title thereto, the transferee acquires by such delivery all the rights which the transferor had as holder except the right of negotiation, and he may sue upon the instrument in his own name

67 If such transfer, as in the last preceding section mentioned, is made for valuable consideration to a person having no reason to believe in the existence of any matter affecting the validity of the instrument or of the transfer thereof, and the instrument is thereafter avoided as against any party on account of matters prior to such transfer, the transferor is bound to return to the transferee the consideration received, provided that such return is claimed within a reasonable time

Conversion of indorsement in blank into indorsement in full

68 The holder of a negotiable instrument indorsed in blank may, without signing his own name, by writing above the indorser's signature a direction to pay to any other person as indorsee, convert the indorsement in blank into an indorsement in full, and the holder does not thereby incur the responsibility of an indorser

69 The indorsement of a negotiable instrument transfers to the indorsee the property therein with the right of further negotiation, but the indorsement may, by express words, be restrained to a transfer of the property without such right, or may merely constitute the indorsee an agent to indorse the instrument, or to receive its contents for the indorser, or for some other specified person

Negotiability may be restricted or excluded

70 The indorser of a negotiable instrument may, by express words in the indorsement, restrict or exclude the right of the indorsee to negotiate the instrument, although the instrument was, at the time of such words being written, payable to the bearer thereof

B signs the following indorsements on different negotiable instruments —

(a) "Pay the contents to C only

(b) "Pay C for my use

(c) "Pay C or order for the account of B

(d) "The within must be credited to C

These indorsements exclude the right of further negotiation by C

(e) "Pay C"

(f) "Pay C value in account with the Oriental Bank

(g) "Pay the contents to C bein part of the consideration in a certain deed of assignment executed by C to the indorser and others

71 Every sole maker, drawer, payee or indorsee, or all of several joint makers, drawers, payees or indorsees of a negotiable instrument may, if the negotiability of such instrument has not been restricted or excluded, as in the last preceding section mentioned, indorse and negotiate the same

Explanation —Nothing in this section enables a maker or drawer to indorse or negotiate an instrument, unless he is in lawful possession or is holder thereof, or enables a payee or indorsee to indorse or negotiate an instrument, unless he is holder thereof,

Illustration

A bill is drawn payable to A or order A indorses it to B, the indorsement not containing the words 'or order,' or any equivalent words B may negotiate the instrument

72 The indorser of a negotiable instrument may, by express words in the indorsement, exclude his own liability thereon, or make such liability or the right of the indorsee to receive the amount due thereon, depend upon the happening of a specified event, although such event may never happen

Where an indorser so excludes his liability and afterwards becomes the holder of the instrument, all intermediate indorsers are liable to him

(a) The indorser of a negotiable instrument signs his name, adding the words—

"Without recourse to me"

Upon this indorsement he incurs no liability

(b) A, the payee and holder of a bill of exchange, indorses it to B, and B to C C then indorses it back to A, each of these indorsements being in due course A is reinstated in his former rights upon the instrument, but has not acquired any rights against B or C

(c) A is the payee and holder of a negotiable instrument Excluding personal liability by an indorsement "without recourse," he transfers the instrument to B, and B indorses it to C, who indorses it to A A is not only reinstated in his former rights, but has the rights of an indorsee against B and C.

Holder deriving title from holder in due course

73. A holder of a negotiable instrument who derives title from a holder in due course has the rights thereon of that holder in due course

Instrument indorsed in blank

74. A negotiable instrument indorsed in blank is payable to the bearer thereof even although originally payable to order

Conversion of indorsement in blank into indorsement in full

75. If a negotiable instrument after having been indorsed in blank is indorsed in full, the amount of it cannot be claimed from the indorser in full, except by the person to whom it has been indorsed in full, or by one who derives title through such person

Indorsement for part of sum due

76. Where a negotiable instrument is indorsed for part of the sum due thereon to the indorser, the indorsement transfers only a right to retain the instrument, and to receive or sue for such part in the name of the indorser

Collateral agreements

77 No agreement between any parties to a negotiable instrument which is not expressed thereon, or which is collateral thereto, is binding upon any other holder thereof for valuable consideration, or upon any holder deriving title from a holder for valuable consideration

Illustration

A person who is a creditor of A signs, as acceptor, a bill of exchange in A's favour for 3,000 rupees A being the holder indorses it for value to B who is aware that the acceptor was a creditor of A A's debt to the acceptor can not be set off against B's claim on the bill.

Legal representative cannot by delivery only negotiate instrument indorsed by deceased

78 The legal representative of a deceased person cannot negotiate by delivery a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque payable to order and indorsed by the deceased but not delivered

Instrument obtained by unlawful means or for illegal consideration

79. When a negotiable instrument has been lost, or has been obtained from any maker, acceptor or holder thereof by unlawful means, or for an illegal consideration, no possessor or indorsee, who claims through the person who so obtained the instrument, is entitled to receive the amount due thereon from such maker, acceptor or holder, or from any party prior to such holder, unless such possessor or indorsee is, or some person through whom he claims was, a holder thereof in due course

Instrument acquired after dishonour or when overdue

80 The holder of a negotiable instrument, who has acquired it after dishonour, whether by non-acceptance or non-payment, with notice thereof, or after maturity, has only the rights thereon of his transferor

Accommodation note or bill

Provided that any person who, in good faith and for valuable consideration, becomes the holder, after maturity, of a promissory note or bill of exchange made, drawn or accepted without consideration for the purpose of enabling some party thereto to raise money thereon, may recover the amount of the note or bill from any prior party

The acceptor of a bill of exchange, when he accepted it, deposited with the drawer certain goods as a collateral security for the payment of the bill, with power to the drawer to sell the goods and apply the proceeds in discharge of the bill if it were not paid at maturity The bill not having been paid at maturity, the drawer sold the goods and retained the proceeds, but indorsed the bill to A A's title is subject to the same objection as the drawer's title

Instrument negotiable till payment or satisfaction

81. A negotiable instrument may be negotiated (except by the maker, drawee or acceptor after maturity) until payment or satisfaction thereof by the maker, drawee or acceptor at or after maturity, but not after such payment or satisfaction

CHAPTER V

Presentment for acceptance

82. A bill of exchange payable at or after sight must, if no time or place is specified therein for presentment, be presented to the drawee thereof for acceptance, if he can, after reasonable search, be found, by a person entitled to demand acceptance, within a reasonable time after it is drawn, and in business hours on a business day In default of such presentment, no party thereto is liable thereon to the person making such default

Drawee's time for deliberation

84. The drawee of a bill of exchange presented to him for acceptance may retain the same until the end of twenty-four hours, or until the next post to the holder, whichever first happens, to consider whether he will accept it

Explanation.—In calculating the twenty-four hours mentioned in this section, days which are not business days shall be excluded

Presentment for payment

85. Promissory notes, bills of exchange and cheques must be presented for payment to the maker, acceptor or drawee thereof respectively, by or on behalf of the holder as hereinafter provided In default of such presentment, the other parties thereto are not liable thereon to such holder

Exception.—No presentment is necessary of a promissory note payable on demand in order to charge the maker thereof

Hours for presentment

86 Presentment for payment must be made during the usual hours of business, and, if at a banker's, within banking hours

Presentment when maker, &c, has no known place of business or residence

92. If the maker, drawee or acceptor of a negotiable instrument has no known place of business or fixed residence, and no place is specified in the instrument for presentment for acceptance or payment, such presentment may be made to him in person wherever he can be found

Presentment of cheque to charge drawer

93. A cheque must, in order to charge the drawer, be presented at the bank upon which it is drawn within a reasonable time after it was first received from the drawer, or before the relation between the drawer and his banker has been altered to the prejudice of the drawer

(a) if the maker, drawee or acceptor closes his place of business, or cannot after reasonable search be found,

or intentionally prevents the presentment of the instrument,

or access to him cannot be obtained during business hours,

(b) as against any party if, after maturity with knowledge that the instrument has not been presented—

he makes a part payment on account of the amount due on the instrument,

or promises to pay the amount due thereon in whole or in part,

or otherwise waives his right to take advantage of any default in presentment for payment,

(c) as against the drawer, if the drawer could not suffer damage from the want of such presentment

Liability of banker for negligently dealing with bill presented for acceptance

99 When a bill of exchange, accepted payable at a specified bank, has been duly presented there for payment and dishonoured, if the banker so negligently keeps, deals with or delivers back such bill as to cause loss to the holder, he must compensate the holder for such loss

OF PAYMENT AND INTEREST

To whom payment should be made

100 Subject to the provisions of section 104, clause (c), payment of the amount due on a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque must, in order to discharge the maker or acceptor, be made to the holder of the instrument

Interest when rate specified

101. When interest at a specified rate is expressly made payable on a promissory note or bill of exchange, interest shall be calculated at the rate specified, on the amount and from the date of the instrument, until tender or realization of the amount due thereon

Interest when no rate specified

102. When no rate of interest is specified in the instrument, interest on the amount thereof shall, except in cases provided for by the Code of Civil Procedure, section 532, be calculated at the rate of six per centum per annum, from the date at which the same ought to have been paid by the party charged, until tender or realization of the amount due thereon

Explanation.—When the party charged is the indorser of an instrument dishonoured by non-payment, he is liable to pay interest only from the time that he receives notice of the dishonour

Delivery of instrument on payment, or indemnity in case of loss

103. Any person liable to pay, and called upon by the holder thereof to pay, the amount due on a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is before payment entitled to have it shown, and is on payment entitled to have it delivered up, to him, or, if the instrument is lost or cannot be produced, to be indemnified against any further claim thereon against him

OF DISCHARGE FROM LIABILITY ON NOTES, BILLS AND CHEQUES

Discharge from liability,

104 The maker, acceptor or indorser respectively of a negotiable instrument is discharged from liability thereon—

by cancellation,

(a) to a holder thereof cancelling such acceptor's or indorser's name with intent to discharge him, and to all parties claiming under such holder,

by release,

(b) to a holder thereof otherwise discharging such maker, acceptor or indorser, and to all parties deriving title under such holder after notice of such discharge,

by payment

(c) to all parties thereto, if the instrument is payable to bearer, and such maker, acceptor or indorser pays in due course the amount due thereon

Discharge by allowing drawee more than twenty four hours to accept

105. If the holder of a bill of exchange allows the drawee more than twenty-four hours to consider whether he will accept the same, all previous parties not consenting to such allowance are thereby discharged from liability to such holder

When cheque not duly presented and drawer damaged thereby

106. When a cheque has not been duly presented for payment, and the drawer thereof has thereby sustained loss or damage, he is discharged from liability to the holder making default in presentment

Cheque payable to order

107. Where a cheque, payable to order, purports to be indorsed by or on behalf of the payee, the drawee is discharged by payment in due course

Parties not consenting discharged by conditional or limited acceptance

108. If the holder of a bill of exchange acquiesces in a conditional acceptance, or one limited to part of the sum mentioned in the bill, or which substitutes a different place or time for payment, or which is not signed by all the drawees (not being partners), all previous parties whose consent is not obtained to such acceptance are discharged as against the holder and those claiming under him

Alterations by stranger in note or bill

109 Alterations made in a promissory note or bill of exchange by a person not a party to such note or bill have no effect upon the liability of a party who signed the instrument as maker or acceptor before such alterations were made

110. Save as provided in sections 20, 32, 68 and 108, any material alteration of a negotiable instrument renders the same void as against any party thereto at the time, and not consenting to such alteration, unless such alteration was made in order to carry out the common intention of the original parties

Explanation.—The following are material alterations within the meaning of this section, namely an alteration of date, amount, or of time or place of payment, the insertion in the body of the instrument of words authorising the transfer thereof, or stating the value thereof to have been received on a particular account, the addition of a name as that of a maker or drawer, obliteration of, addition to, or alteration of, the crossing of a cheque

Alteration by indorsee

111. Save as last aforesaid, any such alteration as in the last preceding section mentioned, if made by an indorsee, discharges his indorser from all liability to him in respect of the instrument or the consideration thereof

Acceptor or indorser bound notwithstanding previous alteration

112. An acceptor or indorser of a negotiable instrument is bound by his acceptance or indorsement notwithstanding any previous alteration of the instrument

Payment of instrument on which alteration is not apparent

113. Where a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque has been materially altered, but does not appear to have been so altered, or where a cheque has been crossed but does not appear to have been crossed, payment thereof by a person or banker liable to pay and paying the same according to the apparent tenor thereof at the time of payment and otherwise in due course, shall discharge such person or banker so paying from all liability thereon, and such payment shall not be questioned by reason of the instrument having been altered or the cheque crossed

Dishonour by non-acceptance

114 A bill of exchange is said to be dishonoured by non-acceptance when the drawee, or one of several drawees not being partners, makes default in acceptance upon being duly required to accept the bill

Dishonour by non-payment

115 A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is said to be dishonoured by non-payment when the maker of the note, acceptor of the bill, or drawee of the cheque makes default in payment upon being duly required to pay the same

By and to whom notice should be given

116. When a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment, the holder thereof, or some party thereto who remains liable thereon, must give notice that the instrument has been so dishonoured to all other parties whom the holder seeks to make severally liable thereon, and to some one of several parties whom he seeks to make jointly liable thereon

Nothing in this section renders it necessary to give notice to the maker of the dishonoured promissory note, or the drawee or acceptor of the dishonoured bill of exchange or cheque

Mode in which notice may be given

117. Notice of dishonour may be given by or to a duly authorised agent of the person by or to whom it is required to be given, or, where he has died, to his legal representative, or, where he has been declared an insolvent, to his assignee, may be oral or written, may, if written, be sent by post, and may be in any form, but it must inform the party to whom it is given, either in express terms or by reasonable intendment, that the instrument has been dishonoured, and in what way, and that he will be held liable thereon, and it must be given within a reasonable time after dishonour, at the place of business, or (in case such party has no place of business) at the residence, of the party for whom it is intended

118 Any party receiving notice of dishonour must, in order to charge any prior party, transmit it to such party within a reasonable time, unless such party otherwise receives due notice as provided by section 116

119 When the instrument is deposited with an agent for presentment, the agent is entitled to the same time to give notice to his principal as if he were the holder giving notice of dishonour, and the principal is entitled to a further like period to give notice of dishonour

When party to whom notice given is dead

120 When the party to whom notice of dishonour is despatched is dead, but the party despatching the notice is ignorant of his death, the notice is sufficient

(a) when it is dispensed with by the party entitled thereto,

(b) in order to charge the drawer, when he has countermanded payment,

(c) when the party charged could not suffer damage from want of notice,

(d) when the party entitled to notice cannot after due search be found, or the party bound to give notice is, for any other reason, unable without any fault of his own to give it,

(e) to charge the drawers, when the acceptor is also a drawer,

(f) in the case of a promissory note which is not negotiable,

(g) when the party entitled to notice, knowing the facts, promises unconditionally to pay the amount due on the instrument

122 When a promissory note or bill of exchange has been dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment, the holder may cause such dishonour to be noted by a notary public upon the instrument or upon a paper attached thereto, or partly upon each

Such note must be made within a reasonable time after dishonour, and must specify the date of dishonour, the reason, if any, assigned for such dishonour, or, if not expressly dishonoured, the reason why the holder treats the instrument as dishonoured, and the notary's charges

123 When a promissory note or bill of exchange has been dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment, the holder may, within a reasonable time, cause such fact to be noted and certified by a notary public Such certificate is called a protest and shall, in the absence of proof to the contrary, in a suit upon the instrument, be deemed evidence of the fact of dishonour

Protest for better security

When the acceptor of a bill of exchange has become insolvent, or his credit has been publicly impeached, before the maturity of the bill, the holder may, within a reasonable time, cause a notary public to demand better security of the acceptor, and on its being refused may, within a reasonable time, cause such facts to be noted and certified as aforesaid Such certificate is called a protest for better security

(a) either the instrument itself, or a literal transcript of the instrument and of everything written or printed thereupon,

(b) the name of the person for whom and against whom the instrument has been protested,

(c) a statement that payment or acceptance, or better security, as the case may be, has been demanded of such person by the notary public, the terms of his answer, if any, or a statement that he gave no answer, or that he could not be found,

(d) when the note or bill has been dishonoured, the place and time of dishonour, and when better security has been refused, the place and time of refusal,

(e) the subscription of the notary public making the protest,

(f) in the event of an acceptance for honour or of a payment for honour, the name of the person by whom, of the person for whom, and the manner in which, such acceptance or payment was offered and effected

Notice of protest

125 When a promissory note or bill of exchange is required by law to be protested, notice of such protest must be given instead of notice of dishonour, in the same manner and subject to the same conditions, but the notice may be given by the notary public who makes the protest

Protest for non payment after dishonour by non acceptance

126 All bills of exchange drawn payable at some other place than the place mentioned as the residence of the drawee, and which are dishonoured by non-acceptance, may, without further presentment to the drawee, be protested for non-payment, in the place specified for payment, unless paid before maturity

Reasonable time

127. In determining what is a reasonable time for presentment for acceptance or payment, for giving notice of dishonour and for noting, regard shall be had to the nature of the instrument and the usual course of dealing with respect to similar instruments, and in calculating such time, days which are not business days shall be excluded

Reasonable time for presentment

128 Presentment is made within a reasonable time, within the meaning of sections 82, 93, 94 and 95, if it is made on the business day next after that on which the holder received the bill, negotiable instrument or cheque referred to, or when there is no more delay than is occasioned by the residence of the parties to the bill, negotiable instrument or cheque in different places

Illustration

A draws on B, resident at Calcutta a bill of exchange in favour of C payable at sight and sends it to C at Benares C, the day after he receives it indorses it to D, and despatches it to D at Calcutta D, the day after he receives the bill, presents it for payment The delay which has taken place in presenting the bill is not unreasonable

Reasonable time for giving notice of dishonour

129. If the holder and the party to whom notice of dishonour is given carry on business or live (as the case may be) in different places, such notice is given within a reasonable time if it is despatched by the next post or on the day next after the day of dishonour

If the said parties carry on business or live in the same place, such notice is given within a reasonable time if it is despatched in time to reach its destination on the day next after the day of dishonour

Reasonable time for transmitting such notice

130. A party receiving notice of dishonour transmits the notice within a reasonable time if he transmits it within the same time after its receipt as he would have had to give notice if he had been the holder

Acceptance for honour

131. When a bill of exchange has been noted or protested for non-acceptance or for better security, any person may, with the consent of the holder, by writing on the bill, accept the same for the honour of any party thereto

Acceptance not specifying for whose honour it is made

132 Where the acceptance does not express for whose honour it is made, it shall be deemed to be made for the honour of the drawer

133 An acceptor for honour binds himself to all parties subsequent to the party for whose honour he accepts to pay the amount of the bill if the drawee do not, and such party, and all prior parties, are liable in their respective capacities to compensate the acceptor for honour for all loss or damage sustained by him in consequence of such acceptance

But an acceptor for honour is not liable to the holder of the bill unless it is presented, or (in case the address given by such acceptor on the bill is a place other than the place where the bill is made payable) forwarded for presentment, not later than the day next after the day of its maturity

134 An acceptor for honour cannot be charged unless the bill has at its maturity been presented to the drawee for payment and has been dishonoured by him, and noted or protested for such dishonour

Payment for honour

135 When a bill of exchange has been noted or protested for non-payment, any person may pay the same for the honour of any party liable to pay the same, provided that the person so paying has previously declared before a notary public the party for whose honour he pays, and that such declaration has been recorded by such notary public

Right of payer for honour

136 Any person so paying, as in the last preceding section provided, is entitled to all the rights, in respect of the bill, of the holder at the time of such payment, and may recover from the party for whose honour he pays all sums so paid, with interest thereon and with all expenses properly incurred in making such payment

[First publication]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 17th October 1877, and was referred to a Select Committee —

A Bill to amend the North-Western Provinces Land Revenue Act, 1873

Addition to Act XIX of 1873, s 29

1 To section 29 of the same Act the following clause shall be added —

"EXPLANATION —Charges incurred in the preparation of village-maps shall be deemed to be charges within the meaning of this section"

Amendment of Act XIX of 1873, s 191

2 In section 191 of the said Act, for the words "otherwise rendered" the words "declared by the Local Government" shall be substituted

3 To section 199 of the same Act the following clause shall be added (namely) —

"Persons whose property is under the superintendence of the Court of Wards shall not be competent to create, without the sanction of the Court, any charge upon, or interest in, such property or any part thereof"

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The primary object of this Bill, which has been recommended by the Local Government, is to deprive persons whose estates are under the management of the Court of Wards of power to charge or alienate those estates The opportunity has been taken to make a slight improvement in the wording of section 194 of the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873, and to remove a doubt as to the power of applying the patwári-fund raised under section 29 to defray the cost of preparing those village-maps, on which the correctness of the Patwári's records mainly depends

The following Report of the Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 17th October 1877 —

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the law relating to the management and preservation of Government forests, to the transit of forest produce and to the duty leviable on timber was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the Bill and the papers specified in the margin

2. As Act VII of 1865 has never been extended to Madras or Bombay, and much confusion and uncertainty might be created by its continuing in force in so far as not superseded by the present Bill, we have provided (section 1) for its repeal, as also that of Acts VII of 1869 and XIII of 1873, in any territories to which the present Bill may be extended.

From the Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, No 1264 F, dated 6th October 1877, and enclosure
Note by the Hon'ble T C Hope, dated 9th October 1877

We have also provided that such extension shall be of the whole Bill, and not of parts only since it will always remain optional with Local Governments to exercise or not the powers which any chapter or section confers

3 We have improved the definitions of "Forest-officer" and "Forest-produce," and have assimilated that of "cattle" to the definition in the Cattle Trespass Act

4 In order to avoid the delay and expense of an elaborate preliminary demarcation, which was objected to in many quarters, we have provided (section 4) that the notification of the proposal to constitute a Reserved Forest may be in general terms, but have indicated more clearly (section 19) that the final demarcation must be precise

5 We have made more clear (section 4) the intention that the Forest Settlement Officer should not, except under very exceptional circumstances, be a Forest officer But, in deference to representations from British Burma and the North-West Provinces, we have provided an option of entrusting the forest settlement to two or three officers instead of one

6 In order to meet the case of the wild tribes and illiterate persons who will in many instances be the possessors of rights over forest lands, we have allowed (section 6) claims to be preferred orally to the Forest Settlement Officer and made it obligatory on him to take such statements down in writing

7 With the same view we have required (section 7) the Forest Settlement Officer to inquire into the existence of rights, by searching the Government records and taking evidence, even though the people themselves, through ignorance or neglect, may not appear to claim them

8 We have also provided (section 9) for the hearing of claims not preferred within the time prescribed by section 6, whenever claimants can shew sufficient cause for their delay

9 In section 10 we have made more clear the alternative courses which may be pursued in the case of claims to or over land, and have also provided for compensation being given wholly or partly in land where the parties prefer land to money.

10 From section 12 the provisions contained in section 10 of the Bill as introduced for the rejection of rights which were not habitually exercised by the claimants at the time of the notification under section 4, or which were not required for the beneficial use of the land or premises or of the person claiming the same, have been omitted

11 Sections 16 and 17 express more clearly than section 15 of the Bill as introduced the intention of the latter as to the authorities by whom and the manner in which appeals are to be heard

12 We have made a new provision (section 21) for the revision by the Local Government, at any time not exceeding five years from the date of the Notification under section 19, of any settlement effected under section 14 which experience has shewn to be unworkable

13 We have provided (section 24) that rights appendant to any land or house may be freely alienated therewith

14 Section 28 has been amended in phraseology, so as to admit of forests, the use of which is essential to village communities, or in which such communities have rights jointly with Government, being assigned to such communities, under suitable precautions against waste or misappropriation

15 In section 32 of the Bill as introduced it was provided that the provisions of chapter IV, regarding district or (as we prefer to term them) Protected forests, should be without prejudice to all existing rights of individuals or communities In order, however, that holders of rights may not be put to the inconvenience and expense of proving them in order to establish their immunity from the restrictions of the chapter, we have provided (section 29) that no land shall be constituted a Protected Forest unless the nature and extent of the rights of Government and other persons in it have been enquired into and recorded at a survey or settlement or in some other sufficient manner At the same time it has been left open to any person to dispute the correctness of such record

16 In section 30 we have inserted a provision to permit of the closing of portions of a Protected Forest for a limited period, provided the remainder of the forest be sufficient and convenient for the exercise of rights thus temporarily suspended in the portion closed This provision is in accordance with the rules in the North-West Provinces made under the existing law, and is generally considered necessary for purposes of renovation

17 In section 32 we have given power to make rules to regulate the exercise of recorded rights, so as to prevent, in the interest of the community, waste and injury to the forest

18 In order to preclude hardship to the owners of private forests from the operation of chapter V, we have enabled such owners (section 37) to require the Government to acquire the and for public purposes

19 We have added a section (38) to enable Government, at the request of owners of land, either to administer such land as a Reserved or Protected Forest, or to apply to it all or any of the provisions of the Bill This improvement has been made at the suggestion of the Panjáb Government, with special reference to sacred and other private forests in that province, but we have reason to believe that the option of obtaining for their forest property the same legal protection, and also (if desired) the same skilled administration, as the Government provides for its own, is likely to be welcomed by the owners of rent-free estates and other private property in many parts of India.

20. We have restricted (section 39) the power of levying a duty on timber produced in British India to timber in respect of which the Government has any rights The holders of lands under lákhiráj, inámi or other tenures in which forest rights are included will thus not be interfered with We have likewise validated the levy of such duties now existing, which are numerous in certain parts of India

21 In section 45 we have empowered the Local Government to exempt any particular class of timber from the operation of the section, partly in order not to interfere with the collection of drift wood for fuel, which is common among the poorer classes in certain localities

22 We have recast the earlier sections of chapter IX, so as to bring them into closer conformity with similar provisions in other special laws

23. In section 63 we have inserted a provision that no person shall be arrested for any act which is an offence under chapter IV, excepting for a violation of a prohibition under clause (c) of section 30.

24 In section 67 we have restricted the power of Forest-officers, as regards compounding, to the receipt of compensation for damage committed.

25 We have enlarged section 73 by empowering the Local Government to make rules regarding the rewards to be paid to officers and informers out of the proceeds of fines and confiscations, and for the preservation, reproduction and disposal of trees and timber belonging to Government but grown on lands belonging to, or in the occupation of, private persons

26 We have inserted a new section (77) to enable the Government to enforce service in cases where persons are entitled to a share in the produce of forests on the condition of duly performing service in connection with such forests

27 We have carefully considered the objections made by the Government of Madras to the original draft of the Bill which was circulated previous to its introduction into the Council We are of opinion that the improvements which have now been made in both the language and matter of the Bill are so material as substantially to meet these objections, some of which were based on a misapprehension of what was intended It appears to us that the Bill, especially considering the latitude for meeting local peculiarities which the power of making rules affords, is now not unsuitable to the circumstances of the Madras Presidency, and is such as might be accepted by the Local Government At the same time, being permissive in its application, it contains nothing to prevent separate local legislation, if that course should be eventually preferred

28 The publication ordered by the Council has taken place, but we consider republication to be desirable

29 We recommend that the Bill as now amended be passed

OF RESERVED FORESTS

3 The Local Government may, from time to time, constitute any forest-land or waste-land which is the property of Government, or over which the Government has proprietary rights, or to the whole or any part of the forest-produce of which the Government is entitled, a Reserved Forest in the manner hereinafter provided

Power to reserve forests

4 Whenever it is proposed to constitute any land a Reserved Forest, the Local Government shall publish a notification in the official Gazette—

Notification by Local Government

(a) declaring that it is proposed to constitute such land a Reserved Forest,

(b) specifying the limits of such forest,

(c) appointing an officer (hereinafter called "the Forest Settlement Officer") to enquire into and determine the existence, nature and extent of any rights alleged to exist in favour of any person to or over any land comprised within such limits, or to or over any forest-produce, and to deal with the same as provided in this chapter

Explanation 1 —For the purpose of clause (b) of this section it shall be sufficient to describe the limits of the forest by roads, rivers, ridges or other well-known or readily intelligible boundaries

Explanation 2 —The officer appointed under clause (c) of this section shall ordinarily not be a Forest-officer

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Local Government from appointing any number of officers not exceeding three, not more than one of whom shall be a Forest-officer, to perform the duties of a Forest Settlement Officer under this Act.

5 During the interval between the publication of such notification and the date fixed by the notification under section nineteen, no right shall be acquired to, over, or in respect of the land comprised in such notification, except under a grant or contract in writing made or entered into by or on behalf of Government or of some person in whom such right was vested when the former notification was issued, and no fresh clearings for cultivation or for any other purpose shall be made in such land

Bar of accrual of forest-rights

6 When a notification has been issued under section four, the Forest Settlement Officer shall publish in the language of the country in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the land comprised therein, a proclamation —

Proclamation by Forest Settlement Officer

(a) specifying the limits of the proposed forest,

(b) explaining the consequences which, as hereinafter provided, will ensue on the reservation of such forest, and

(c) fixing a period of not less than three months from the date of such proclamation, and requiring every person claiming any right as aforesaid either to present to such officer within such period a written notice specifying, or to appear before him and state, the nature of such right and the amount and particulars of the compensation (if any) claimed in respect thereof.

7. The Forest Settlement Officer shall—

Enquiry by Forest Settlement Officer

(a) take down in writing all statements made under section six, and shall, at some convenient place, enquire into—

(b) all claims duly preferred under section six, and

(c) the existence of any rights as aforesaid, so far as the same may be ascertainable from the records of Government and the evidence of any persons likely to be acquainted with the same

8. For the purposes of such enquiry, the Forest Settlement Officer may exercise the following powers, that is to say —

Powers of Forest Settlement Officer

(a) power to enter, by himself or any officer authorized by him for the purpose, upon any land, and to survey, demarcate, and make a map of the same,

Extinction of rights

9 The following rights shall be extinguished —

(a) rights in respect of which no such claim has been so preferred, if the person claiming them fails, before the notification under section nineteen is published, to satisfy the Forest Settlement Officer that he had sufficient cause for not preferring such claim within such period, and

(b) rights of the existence of which no knowledge has been acquired by enquiry under section seven, clause (c)

10. In the case of a claim to a right to or over any land, the Forest Settlement Officer shall pass an order admitting or rejecting the same in whole or in part

Power to acquire land over which right is claimed

If such claim is admitted in whole or in part, the Forest Settlement Officer shall either (1) exclude such land from the limits of the proposed Forest, or (2) come to an agreement with the owner thereof for the surrender of his rights, or (3) proceed to acquire such land in the manner provided by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870

For the purpose of so acquiring such land—

(a) the Forest Settlement Officer shall be deemed to be a Collector proceeding under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870,

(b) the claimant shall be deemed to be a person interested and appearing before him in pursuance of a notice given under section nine of that Act,

(c) the provisions of the preceding sections of that Act shall be deemed to have been complied with, and

(d) the Collector, with the consent of the claimant, or the Court, with the consent of both parties, may award compensation in land or partly in land and partly in money.

11. In the case of a claim to rights of pasture or to forest-produce, the Forest Settlement Officer shall pass an order admitting or rejecting the same in whole or in part.

Order on claims.

12. The Forest Settlement Officer, when passing any order under section eleven, shall record, so far as may be practicable, Record to be made by Forest Settlement Officer.

(a) the name, father's name, caste, residence and occupation of the person claiming the right,

(b) the designation, position and area of all fields or groups of fields, and the designation and position of all buildings in respect of which the exercise of such rights is claimed

13 If the Forest Settlement Officer admits in whole or in part any claim under section eleven, he shall also record the extent to which the claim is so admitted, specifying the number and description of the cattle which the claimant is from time to time entitled to graze in the forest, the season during which such pasture is permitted, the quantity of timber and other forest-produce which he is from time to time authorised to take or receive, or such other particulars as the case may require He shall also record whether the timber or other forest-produce obtained by the exercise of the rights claimed may be sold or bartered

Record where he admits claim

14 After making such record, the Forest Settlement Officer shall, to the best of his ability, and having due regard to the maintenance of the Reserved Forest in respect of which the claim is made, pass such orders as will ensure the continued exercise of the rights so admitted or modified. For this purpose the Forest Settlement Officer may—

Exercise of rights admitted or modified

(a) set out some other forest-tract of sufficient extent, and in a locality reasonably convenient for the purposes of such claimants, and record an order conferring upon them a right to pasture or to forest-produce (as the case may be) to the extent so admitted, or

(b) so alter the limits of the proposed Forest as to exclude forest-land of sufficient extent, and in a locality reasonably convenient for the purposes of the claimants, or

(c) record an order, continuing to such claimants a right to pasture or to forest-produce (as the case may be), to the extent so admitted, at such seasons, within such portions of the proposed Forest and under such rules as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government

15 In case the Forest Settlement Officer finds it impossible, having due regard to the maintenance of the Reserved Forest, to make such settlement under section fourteen as shall ensure the continued exercise of the said rights to the extent so admitted, he shall (subject to such rules as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe in this behalf) commute such rights, either by the payment to such persons of a sum of money in lieu thereof, or by the grant of land, or in such other manner as he thinks fit

Commutation of rights

16 Any person who has made a claim under this Act, or any Forest Officer or other person generally or specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, may, within three months from the date of the order passed on such claim by the Forest Settlement Officer under section ten, eleven, fourteen or fifteen, present an appeal from such order to—

Weekly condition report of the distressed districts of the Mysore Province

Special famine report for the week ending 29th September 1877

Statement No 34, regarding famine relief operations in the Province of Mysore, for the week ending the 29th September 1877

Prospects continue favorable During the past week there have been frequent and heavy showers, the rainfall averaging throughout the Province from 2 to 3½ inches, and therefore generally heavier than in the previous week The tanks have in most places received a good supply, and in many there has not been so much water for several years The harvesting of the early crops continues, the crops still in the ground are promising, and agricultural operations for late sowings active

2 The imports of grain by rail amounted to 4,734 tons, or 534 tons more than for the week ending the 22nd instant The markets are fully supplied The imports were received from the following quarters.—

	Tons
Madras	4,309
Beypore and Malabar	94
Trichinopoly, Tanjore and Negapatam .. .	154
Other places . . .	87
Total .	4,734

From Bangalore 1,751 tons were exported to places in the interior, or 145 tons less than last week. The export was to the following quarters —

Bellary and Chitaldroog .	239
Mysore	518
Oossoor (Salem district) .	55
Total ..	1,751

3 Prices are again a little easier, the tendency to a slight fall having continued in most districts The following statement shews the maximum and minimum prices in the districts of the Province —

	Maximum in lbs per rupee		Minimum in lbs per rupee
	2nd sort rice	Ragi	2nd sort rice	Ragi
Bangalore district	12	14	9	13
Kolar ,,	12	16	9½	12

Kadur ,,	9	14	8	10
Shimoga ,,	11	14	8	9½
Chitaldroog ,,	12	16	8	10½

In Bangalore there has been a material fall in rice and ragi in both the maximum and minimum scales, ragi now selling at 14 and rice at 12 lbs per rupee Rice is cheapest in Bangalore, Kolar and Chitaldroog, and ragi in Kolar, Chitaldroog and Túmkúr. Local stores of ragi have been produced for sale in several districts.

4 The number of laborers on civil relief works was 31,038, or 242 less than in the previous week, but the returns having come in for the first time in a new form, the figures are not quite accurate There was an increase of 1,524 laborers in Bangalore and of 1,766 in Mysore, and a decrease of 1,066 in Túmkúr and of 1,015 in Chitaldroog The other variations were not remarkable.

5 Under the Public Works Department 27,655 laborers were employed, or an increase of 2,384 The increase was chiefly in Bangalore, whilst Kolar, Túmkúr, Hassan and Kadur shew a decrease Laborers continue to leave the works for field occupation, and officers report that in parts where prospects are most encouraging, people neither seek the works nor relief camps.

The State Railway is the only very large work in progress, and more than 7,000 are now working upon it The Bangalore and Mysore water-supply projects occupy 3,000 between them the other works are chiefly roads and tanks, some of which have only been recently commenced

6 The numbers gratuitously fed in relief camps have again fallen and now amount to 126,204, or about the number returned for the week ending 7th July. The decrease is very general, but it is largest in the Bangalore, Túmkúr, and Kolar districts In the Bangalore Municipality there was a small increase —

	Week ending—

7 The net decrease amounts to 35,688, and is due to the same causes which operated last week, namely, improved prospects, resumption of ordinary occupations, and stricter supervision of the camps It is most marked in the districts to most benefited More than 12,000 people are being employed near Bangalore, and as more work becomes available, further transfers from the relief camps can be made The condition of the people on the works continues a marked contrast to their appearance in the relief camps The orders to refuse no applicant continue in force

* These figures include all the labourers upon the Dhond Manmad Railway a large number of whom are not relief but ordinary labourers † Ordinary labourers excluded.
‡‡ These figures are for the weeks ending 22nd and 29th September respectively § For details and dates see table appended.

The season continues to improve Eight talukas were mentioned last week as requiring more rain, and this week the number is reduced to four—three in Khandesh and one in Nasik The kharif crops have generally failed in those talukas in the north-west of Ahmednagar mentioned in the last statement but one as the worst

2 Prices are more fluctuating, but on the whole show further improvement

3 A decrease of 63,902 in the number of labourers upon relief works follows this week upon the decreases of 22,938 and 36,758 shown in the last two statements But about 25,000 of this week's decrease should strictly be divided among several preceding weeks, as it consists of the number of ordinary labourers engaged upon the Dhond and Manmad Railway, who have now for the first time been distinguished from the relief labourers upon the same work, and left out of account It is satisfactory to notice that the numbers are now getting less in every one of the nine districts

4 Cholera has now disappeared from all the affected districts, except Nasik and Ahmednagar In the last named district the number of deaths is increasing.

5 Weekly written reports received since the date of the last statement bring the detailed information in the case of the Nasik, Poona, Sholapur and Satara Collectorates up to the 6th October, and in the case of the other five affected districts to the 29th September The usual rainfall table compiled from these reports is appended The kharif crops continue in good condition almost everywhere, but are suffering for want of rain in the south and the east of Khandesh, and in the north of Ahmednagar The same cause prevents the sowing of winter crops in some places in the same districts, while in others, particularly in Sholapur, Satara and Kaladgi, that work is impeded by excessive rain On the whole, however, the sowing of winter crops progresses satisfactorily, and where the only impediment is excessive rain, the same cause which now delays sowings serves also to extend the time for possible sowing

6 The following table gives the expenditure by Government, during the week ending 22nd September, upon gratuitous relief, and in payments made to the young children of labourers employed upon relief works. Comparing the results shown in the table below with those shown in the last statement, it will be seen that the number of persons in receipt of Government charitable relief has decreased from 97,694 to 96,083, while the number of children under 7 years of age has decreased from 64,654 to 55,972 The number of people charitably relieved was thus just half as many as the labourers upon relief works during the same week

STAMP BILL

The Hon'ble MR COCKERELL introduced the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Stamps and Court-fees and moved that it be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon He said that, as a considerable period—nearly two years—had elapsed since leave was given to introduce a Bill on this subject, it seemed expedient that he should remind the Council of the scope of the former project of legislation and give some explanation of the circumstances which had delayed its progress and led to the proposal of the several further modifications of the present law provided for in the Bill now introduced When their late colleague, Mr. Inglis, moved for leave to introduce a Bill for the alteration of the stamp law it was proposed to bring together the Stamp Act of 1869, the Court-fees Act, so much of Act XIII of 1875 as related to the fees leviable on probates and letters of administration, and the several exemptions and remissions of duty and fees which the Governor General in Council had in the exercise of the powers vested in him by the Stamp and Court-fees Acts from time to time allowed, and also to explain and amend the provisions of the existing law in regard to which questions had been raised, and interpretations and constructions laid down through the decisions and rulings of the Courts

Such a measure of consolidation and amendment was in itself very necessary in the interest of the public convenience alone, for, between the year 1870 and the time when the Council was asked to sanction the introduction of a Bill relating to stamps and Court-fees, there had been hardly less than forty cases of remissions and reductions of duty and fees and other orders of Government relating to this subject, all constituting amendments of the existing law and scattered over numerous editions of the Gazette of India

Before further progress in the desired legislation could be made, the much vexed question of the propriety and expediency of substituting the use of impressed for adhesive stamps, with the object of checking the frauds which were alleged to be prevalent to such an extent as to imperil the security of the revenue, became ripe for decision, and was referred to a Committee of which his honourable colleague (Mr Hope) and he (Mr. COCKERELL) were members As the complete abandonment of the use of adhesive stamps in judicial proceedings would have necessitated very material alterations in the law relating to Court-fees, further action in the Legislative Department in respect of the Stamp Bill was suspended until the Committee had made its report. The opportunity was taken of referring also to the consideration of this Committee the question of the feasibility of such amendments of the stamp law as would conduce to its improved working and the acquisition of a larger revenue

About the same time that these questions were referred to the Committee, the Government of India through its Financial Department circulated certain proposals for the amendment of the law and directed the several Local Governments, after consulting their subordinate officers, to report thereon Suggestions as to the propriety or expediency of other amendments were also invited The main points referred thus for the opinion of the Local Governments were—(1) the omission from the Stamp Act of any specification of the description of stamp to be used for the realization of stamp duties or Court-fees, and the substitution therefor of a power to the Government to regulate the use of a particular description of stamp for specified purposes by rules; (2) the specification in the Act of fees of fixed amount chargeable for the service of processes in lieu of the present system under which those fees are determined by rules framed by the High Courts, and the restoration to the executive of the same power of regulating the process-serving establishments as it has in regard to all other establishments, and (3) the reservation to the Governor General in Council of the power of making rules under the Stamp and Court-fees Act, now exercised by the Local Governments subject to the sanction of the Government of India

The local authorities returned an almost unanimous assent to the propriety and expediency of these proposals, and at the same time submitted their views as to other amendments of the law The Committee specially appointed for the consideration of the questions above referred to submitted their report, this report was sent by the Home Department to the several Local Governments, and a fresh set of opinions on all the matters treated of in it was thus elicited

The result of all this was that the entire subject of the revision of the stamp law had been considered and discussed in much detail by the local authorities, and he (MR COCKERELL) had thus had the great advantage in framing those provisions of the Bill, which embraced amendments of the existing law, of consulting the two sets of opinions elicited from local officers engaged in the administration of the law and best qualified from their experience of its operation both to point out its practical defects and to suggest appropriate remedies The proposed alterations of the law contained in the Bill were for the most part based upon such recommendations of the Committee as had met with the approval of the local authorities, and the suggestions of various officers, and he (MR COCKERELL) had much confidence therefore in presenting the Bill to the Council as a measure which was, as regards its main features at least, in complete accordance with the views of the chief administrative officers of the several parts of the empire to which a general law on this subject would apply.

Though there was a general consensus of opinion in favour of the proposed legislation, objections had been raised in some quarters For instance the expediency of reuniting in one Act the provisions of the law relating to stamp duties, and that by which Court-fees are regulated was questioned It was said that the present practice of keeping these two subjects distinct had worked smoothly and satisfactorily, and was best adapted to public convenience, inasmuch as the classes of persons who were chiefly affected by, and interested in knowing the requirements of the law in regard to the use of general stamps, were not much concerned in litigation and the liabilities of suitors in the matter of the payment of Court-fees

Now he (MR COCKERELL) regarded stamp duties and Court-fees rather as different branches of the same subject than as two distinct subjects The duties and the fees were both levied by means of stamps the sale proceeds of which were entered under the same head in the public accounts, and both were regulated by the same administrative agency Nor could he agree with the conclusion that the persons who had to do with general stamps had little or no interest in the subject of Court-fees, he thought on the contrary that, a few purely commercial transactions involving the use of bills of exchange, bills of lading, &c., excepted, the agency employed for determining the proper stamp duties chargeable on instruments executed in connection with the conveyance of interests in property, or obligations for the payment of money, was generally the same as that to which persons about to engage in litigation would have recourse, for he believed that it was no more the practice to frame instruments evidencing the transfer of any interest in property, than to draw up a plaint in a suit or an application to a Court, without the aid of legal practitioners On the other hand, there were distinct advantages in the combination of the existing enactments relating to stamp duties and Court-fees as the provisions of the law regarding the description of stamps to be used, the refund of the value of spoiled stamps, the sale of stamps and the general administration of these sources of revenue were common to both, so that a considerable saving in the enacting provisions would be effected by the proposed consolidation.

Then it had been urged that further legislation at the present time on the subject of stamps and Courts' fees was premature, and that these repeated alterations of laws affecting the transactions of a very large number of persons were extremely harassing and detrimental to public convenience He would read to the Council what had been written by the person who might be said to be the most prominent if not the only exponent of this feeling —

"I hope that the Government will deprecate the passing of this measure When the last General Stamp Act was passed in 1869 and the Court Fees Act in 1870, it was hoped that the wearisome and vexatious alterations of the law on these two subjects (of which there have been so many) had come to an end The law of 1866,* to which the public and the profession were beginning to get accustomed, was completely altered in form, and the system of separating ordinary stamps from Court Fees adopted I see no reason now for altering this system and re-uniting the Stamp Act with the Court Fees Act"

The writer of these remarks was a person who might reasonably have been expected to be better acquainted with the facts of the case If it were true in any measure that the stamp laws did come under the frequent revision of the Legislature, it could hardly be a matter for surprise or reprobation, because the very fact that the law on such a subject affects the transactions of a very large number of persons and is on that account more used and subjected to greater wear and tear probably than any other Act on the Statute-book, indicates in itself the necessity for its periodical repair But in order to show how much at variance with the real facts was the statement which he had just read, he (MR COCKERELL) must crave the indulgent forbearance of the Council whilst he entered into a very brief retrospect of past legislation in regard to stamps

Up to 1860, the law regarding both branches of the stamp revenue was distinct in the different Presidencies, having been contained in certain Regulations of the Madras, Bombay and Bengal Codes respectively Previously to that year the law had undergone no alteration in Bengal for a period of 31 years, in Bombay for 33, and Madras for 44 years, in the year 1860, the first general stamp law for all India was enacted, the Council would remember that the period was one of great financial pressure, when the Income-tax was first introduced and the tax-yielding resources of the Empire were being strained to the utmost limit feasible The gross stamp revenue, which up to that time had not exceeded seventy lakhs of rupees, was in the first year's operation of Act XXXVI of 1860 almost doubled It was hardly to be expected that such a great and sudden change of the law should be made without some mistakes, and accordingly in 1862 it was found necessary to amend the law for the purpose of remedying certain inequalities of taxation and undue pressure of particular duties caused by the previous Act, but the fresh legislation then adopted was entirely in the direction of the relief of the tax-payer and created no new burdens

In 1866 there was a demand for strengthening judicial establishments, and it was thought that the cost of the measure might be met by a corresponding increase of the stamp-fees leviable on the institution of suits A Committee was appointed in that year for the consideration of the subject, and the Act relating to stamp-fees levied in the Courts passed in 1867 was based on that Committee's recommendations The Act of 1867 related to fees levied in the Courts by means of stamps and left untouched the law relating to general stamps.

In 1868, fresh legislation was commenced in regard to the subject of general stamps and resulted in the passing of the General Stamp Act of 1869. The object of the Act of 1867 had been not merely to provide for the cost of improving and strengthening the judicial establishments, but also to repress to a certain extent litigation of a frivolous and vexatious character which was said to have been partly encouraged by too low rates of Court-fees The decrease in litigation, however, resulting apparently from the operation of the Act of 1867, was found to be so excessive as to justify the apprehension that the tentative rates of fees imposed thereby had over-reached the mark and amounted to a practical prohibition in many cases of legitimate redress of actual wrongs Accordingly in 1870 a relieving measure was adopted, designated the "Court-fees Act," by which the fees theretofore chargeable on the majority of suits were reduced to the extent of about 2½ per centum The Stamp Act of 1869 and the Court-fees Act of 1870 contained the law in force on these matters up to the present time It would be seen therefore that the sum total of stamp-legislation during the last half century consisted of three Acts for the imposition of stamp duties and four Acts relating to Court-fees, whilst some of these measures had been adopted exclusively in the interest of the tax-payer This indicated, in his opinion, the very reverse of a meddlesome spirit on the part of the legislature in dealing with this important subject, and established the groundless character of the animadversions upon the past legislation in connection with stamps of the writer of the letter which had been read, and the objection to the present measure founded thereon

With these introductory remarks by way of explanation of the circumstances attending the proposed legislation on this subject, he would now pass to the consideration of the Bill before the Council

The primary object of the Bill, as had been already explained, was the consolidation of all enactments in force treating of stamp duties or Court-fees It was designed further to explain and simplify the requirements of the law in regard to these matters by large additions to the interpretation clauses, a clearer and more systematic arrangement of its several provisions, and a simpler classification of the documents liable to stamp duty or chargeable with Court fees enumerated in the schedules

The most important amendments contemplated by the Bill had for their object the acquisition of a substantial increase of revenue These provisions were of two kinds and might be described as (1) defensive, and (2) offensive. The former were by far the most important

There was no branch of the revenue to which the law afforded so small a measure of protection as that of stamps, in the case of the excise, the inland customs, the sea customs and the opium revenue, the law armed the several officers responsible for the administration of those departments with large powers in aid of the realization of the revenue They might search suspected persons and places for the purpose of discovering contraband practices and evasions of the requirements of the law But in the case of stamps the revenue officer had no such power, public opinion would not uphold the authorization by law of the entry into houses and search of places where deeds and instruments were deposited, for the purpose of ascertaining whether documents liable to Stamp-duty had been properly stamped Yet without some power of this kind the Collector of Stamp Revenue was practically almost helpless in regard to the prevention of frauds, and must wait till the possessor of an unstamped or insufficiently stamped document himself disclosed the breach of the law, by producing it before some Court or public officer

In these circumstances it was only to be expected that the evasion of the payment of stamp duties and the loss of revenue resulting therefrom would be very great, and it should be the especial aim and object of a stamp law to render the available agency for the detection of evasions and securing their due punishment as effective as possible The existing law as well as that which preceded it, contained express directions to Courts and public officers not to admit in evidence or in any way act upon documents which being liable to stamp duty were produced before them unstamped or insufficiently stamped, but in order to prevent undue harshness and excessive injury to individuals where the omission to use the necessary stamp arose out of ignorance rather than an attempt to evade the requirements of the law, it was enacted that the Collector or Civil Court—

"If satisfied that the omission to execute the instrument on properly stamped paper did not arise out of any intention to evade payment of the duty prescribed by law," might, on payment of the amount required to make up the full duty, together with the fixed penalty, which varied according to the circumstances of the case, cause the instrument to be stamped and thereafter treat it for evidence or other purposes as a valid instrument.

This in substance had been the law on this subject, with some unimportant variations as regards the amount of penalty to be levied in such cases, from the year 1860 up to the present time, and the only substantial difference in dealing with improperly stamped documents was that whilst the earlier Acts, although they prescribed the punishment to be awarded for the offence of under-stamping, made no provision as to the action to be taken by Civil Courts when they were not satisfied that the omission to use a proper stamp was otherwise than wilful, there was in the present law, which had been in force since 1869, an express direction to these Courts to impound the unstamped or insufficiently stamped document in such cases, and send it to the Collector in order that the offender might be criminally prosecuted.

Now these provisions had wholly failed to secure the object in view There was abundant evidence to show that the Civil Courts before which instruments liable to stamp duties were most commonly produced, habitually ignored the obligation imposed upon them by the law to exercise due vigilance and discrimination for the protection of the interests of the revenue in this matter, he could cite numerous opinions which had been expressed by executive officers to this effect, but, inasmuch as the evidence of persons who were in some degree specially responsible for the due realization of the revenue might be open to the objection that it was interested and one-sided, he would merely bring before the Council, in support of the statement which he had made above, what judicial authorities of large experience had themselves to say on this subject

A Judicial Commissioner in submitting his opinion in regard to needed amendments of the stamp law recommended the abolition of the power vested in Civil Courts to admit in evidence unstamped or insufficiently stamped documents, if satisfied that the default did not arise from an intention to evade payment of stamp duty He said —

"I am satisfied that this power entails on Government a very serious loss of revenue As a rule, documents are admitted or rejected without any enquiry as to the intention to evade payment of stamp duty, and although the Civil Courts are bound, on the admission of such documents, to levy the duty and penalty prescribed by the law, as a fact a great number of documents are admitted without payment of either duty or penalty The Civil Courts should be bound to send all such documents to the Collector, and in the event of the Collector intimating that the requisite duty had not been paid within a time to be specified by the Court, the document should not be admitted in evidence"

He would next read to the Council the opinion expressed by a very experienced and able District Judge in the Madras Presidency That officer reporting on this subject said —

"With regard to the alterations of the stamp law proposed in paragraph 19 of the Committee's report, I have to observe that as far as my experience goes, the Courts of this country are not to be trusted with discretion in admitting in evidence improperly stamped or unstamped documents Under the old law the Courts could admit such documents unless fraud was patent, and in practice I believe such documents invariably were admitted The natural consequence was that almost every merchant and money-lender was willing to run the remote risk of having to pay a penalty in consideration of the present certain gain of cheating the Government"

A Chief Commissioner also reported as follows —

"The Judicial Commissioner discusses at some length the provisions of the law regarding the admission by the Civil Courts of unstamped or insufficiently stamped documents, the levy of penalties, and the institution of criminal prosecutions He says that the Courts are unduly lenient in admitting as evidence unstamped or insufficiently stamped documents, that as a rule such documents are admitted without enquiry and without payment, and that frequently a document which has been produced in a Civil Court is withdrawn when the penalty is demanded."

Here then was complete evidence of an indisputable kind, not only as to the fact of the habitual reception by the Civil Courts exercising original jurisdiction of documents not bearing a proper stamp without any attempt at discrimination as to the character of the evasion of the use of a proper stamp, but also to the effect that the Courts wilfully defeated the intention of the law in constituting them agents for the discovery of offences against the revenue, by allowing persons who had committed such offences to withdraw the proofs of their criminality, without any determination of the question as to their liability to punishment.

The law directly prohibited the admission of unstamped documents in evidence as a means of discovering the omission to pay the proper stamp duty, but an offence was committed whenever an instrument was executed without the use of a proper stamp, and it was difficult to believe that the Courts could in good faith so misapprehend the object of the law as to suppose that the person producing an unstamped or insufficiently stamped instrument was not punishable for the omission to use a proper stamp so long as he did not elect to put the instrument in evidence

To obviate as far as possible these causes of failure in the prevention of the evasions of the payment of stamp duties, a new course of procedure for dealing with unstamped documents was provided by the Bill The Courts must still be used as the discovering agency, this could not be avoided as instruments liable to stamp duty were necessarily produced before them in far greater numbers than before any other authority The Bill (section 30) required the Courts to examine every instrument produced before them liable to stamp duty and determine the question of it being properly stamped, whether it was required to be put in evidence or not The subsequent sections of chapter IV of the Bill laid down the course to be followed in the case of documents not properly stamped, they must be impounded and sent to the Collector, but to prevent miscarriage of justice through the suppression of good evidence, such documents might be received in evidence on payment of deficient duty with interest and a certain amount by way of additional duty in such cases a copy of the document would be sent to the Collector instead of the original and the liability to a criminal prosecution in respect of the under-stamping would be in no way affected by the circumstance that the instrument had on certain conditions been allowed to be put in evidence

The prevalent disinclination of the Courts to presume fraudulent intention where an instrument not properly stamped was produced might, it was thought, be in great measure due to those provisions of the law which tended to invalidate wholly an instrument which had been wilfully under-stamped, and the consequent destruction of evidence involved in the finding by the Court that the under-stamping was fraudulent, it was perhaps natural that the Courts responsible for the administration of justice between litigants should manifest great reluctance to do anything by which good evidence would be destroyed, the new provisions of the Bill would relieve them of any embarrassment on this ground

The aim and object of legislation in this direction was to give a deterrent rather than a vindictive power to the penal provisions of the law, and it was thought that the fear of a prosecution before the Magistrate and the infliction of criminal penalties would, if the contingency of such consequences of the evasion of the payment of stamp duties could be established as a potent factor in the calculations of the executants of instruments liable to such duties, be sufficiently repressive, and that there need be no recourse to the extreme measure of the invalidation of documents not properly stamped in ordinary cases

The other provisions designed to secure an increase of revenue had been described as "offensive," by which he meant that they involved an enhancement of existing rates of duty in certain cases—a direct attack in short upon the pocket of the tax-payer!

As the most important amongst the changes of this kind, he might mention the increased duty which it was proposed to levy on bonds, conveyances and the like, where the amount involved exceeded Rs 1,000, on all bills of exchange, policies of insurance and instruments evidencing a contract for the repayment of loans made for short periods on the deposit of valuable securities, the abolition of the minimum rate now chargeable on bonds and the reduction of the limit of exemption from the payment of the one-anna duty on receipts for the payment of money in satisfaction of a debt

The enhancement of the rates now chargeable on bonds, conveyances and similar instruments involving a large amount, bills of exchange and policies of insurance generally, could be justified on grounds of equity, for the alteration involved no more than the equalization of ad valorem rates generally, it would simply have the effect of bringing the rate of duty heretofore imposed on these documents up to the general standard of rates which had long been in force in regard to the large majority of instruments liable to ad valorem stamp duties

The large majority of documents, contributing the bulk of the revenue derived from "General Stamps," consisted of bonds, conveyances and other instruments similarly chargeable the amount involved in which did not exceed Rs 10,000 They were charged at an average rate of half and one per centum respectively on the maximum amount of the classes or ascents by which the assessment of the rate was regulated, but when the amount involved in the transaction in reference to which the instrument was executed, exceeded Rs 10,000, the rate of percentage of the duty on the amount taxed became gradually less Now that was not the principle of the mode of assessment adopted under the stamp laws of England, there the rate of duty maintained the same proportion to the amount involved in the instrument subjected to the duty-charge without limit or reserve, and it was proposed to adopt a similar rule in this country The change would cause a considerable increase in rates of duty charged on amounts exceeding Rs 10,000 As regards amounts exceeding Rs 1,000 and not exceeding Rs 10,000, some increase of rates would be entailed by the substitution of classes or steps of Rs 1,000 in lieu of those of 500 each on the maximum amount of which the percentage rate of duty was levied This classification for the purpose of assessing the duty was also in conformity with the scale obtaining under the English law

The proposed increase in the case of all bills of exchange and policies of insurance rested on the same grounds, those instruments had hitherto been taxed relatively to other documents subject to an ad valorem duty below English rates, the proportion which the Indian rates of duty chargeable on the general class of bonds and conveyances to the rates levied in England on similar instruments was not maintained in the case of bills and policies He did not wish it to be supposed that the fact of the Indian rates being thus made, as regards all instruments subject to the ad valorem mode of charge, generally higher than the English rates, had been overlooked, they were intentionally made higher, because the former rates, though calculated to work satisfactorily where the transactions affected by the stamp law were numerous, would be wholly inadequate to the production of the required amount of revenue under the conditions of a far less extensive trade and commercial activity and the higher rates therefore had been necessarily adopted in this country

His argument in support of the amendments of the law in regard to these duties was simply this, that, whereas the large mass of documents subjected to an ad valorem duty had borne the higher rates without objection from any quarter since the year 1860, the proposed enhancements were consistent with past legislation and based on equitable considerations, for they involved nothing more than an equalization of ad valorem rates in accordance with the heretofore generally prevailing standard and an increase only in respect of those instruments which tested by that standard had up to the present time been too lightly assessed As regards policies of insurance he might add that the rates now proposed were in force previous to the passing of the Act of 1869

The exemption of life policies which had been introduced by that Act with the view, he believed, of encouraging such insurances in this country as a provision for families, would not be continued Insurance on lives was more commonly effected by way of security for loans, and there was no reason why such transactions should be protected from special taxation more than other commercial transactions

The changes of which he had next to offer some explanation were in a contrary direction In extenuation of the proposed abolition of the minimum rate of duty levied on bonds the equalization principle could not be pleaded The increase of that rate from two to four annas was based on the consideration that as the transactions requiring the execution of instruments of that class, and involving very minute amounts were so numerous, a large increase of revenue would be obtained by the change without imposing an undue burden on the tax-payer The four-annas rate was not now proposed for the first time, it was the minimum rate under the Act of 1860, but reduced by the Act of 1862 He could not find that any substantial reason had been adduced for such reduction, it was stated during the discussion in Council of the details of that Act, that the higher rate was too great and likely to induce evasion, but no grounds were assigned for this conclusion, and he could not see how a duty of four annas only could have any prohibitory influence on transactions of this class when a fee of double the amount was readily forthcoming in the case of every petty application to a Court of justice As to the greater risk of evasion he entirely disbelieved that within certain moderate limits the rate of duty chargeable had anything to do with the matter There could not be a lower rate of duty than the one anna chargeable on receipts and yet no duty probably was so constantly evaded

The proposed reduction of the limit of exemption from the payment of duty in the case of receipts was dictated by similar considerations to those just stated in regard to bonds for small amounts It was designed to obtain a substantial increase of revenue by the imposition of a very small rate of duty on a very large number of transactions

The other proposed amendments were hardly of sufficient importance to justify his further detention of the Council by any detailed explanation in regard to them He would only mention the suggested substitution of an ad valorem charge for the present low rate of fixed duty imposed on instruments contracting for the repayment of loans made on the deposit of valuable securities for short periods, and the new tax on certain members of the legal profession It seemed clearly equitable and consistent with the general principle governing the imposition of stamp duties that these transactions should be taxed in reference to the amount of the accommodation obtained

Advocates and attorneys were required in England to pay duty on the documents entitling them to practise their profession in the Courts of law, so also in this country Vakils and Mukhtars had for a long time been subject to the payment of stamp duty on their licenses or certificates which had to be renewed annually There could be no reason consequently for continuing the exemption now enjoyed by advocates and attorneys of the High Courts, and it was proposed to tax them accordingly The rates fixed by the Bill were not higher than those paid under analogous circumstances in England

In regard to Court fees no changes were proposed except in the case of processes, to which he had already referred, and fees leviable on the institution of suits in Courts of Small Causes, and on probates and letters of administration It was proposed to assimilate the Presidency Towns' rates in these last cases to those levied in the Courts of this class situated outside of the towns, by a depression of the former, and a corresponding elevation of the latter rates The town-rate of institution-fee had hitherto been two annas per rupee, or 12½ per centum, whilst the mufassal rate was the same as that levied in other Civil Courts, namely, 7½ per centum on the amount sued for

It was proposed to substitute an even 10 per centum as a mean rate for all Small Cause Courts As he had spoken of the general provisions of the Bill as in accordance with the views of the local authorities, he should mention that their concurrence did not extend to the alteration of the rates of fees leviable in Small Cause Courts, or to the particular amount of fees to be charged for the service of processes, as provided by the Bill These amendments of the existing law were inserted in the Bill at a late stage of its preparation and without consultation of local officers, they would need especial consideration, if the reduction of rates in the Presidency Town Courts was adopted in respect of institution-fees, those relating to the service of processes issuing from the same Courts would also need revision, and corresponding amendments of Act IX of 1850 would have to be made

The duty leviable on probates and letters of administration had been introduced by the Act of 1870, and the rate then fixed, two per centum on the assets of the estate, was a purely tentative limit It was thought that an additional half per centum might fairly be imposed, as compared with the rate at which these duties were levied in England, where legacy and succession duties were also in force, the estates of deceased persons in this country would still be most favoured The annual income from these fees had now reached about five lakhs and might under the more developed operation of the Hindú Wills be expected to show a steady progressive increase

It only remained to state his anticipations in regard to the increased revenue from stamps and Court-fees in the event of the adoption of the changes of the law provided for by the Bill In regard to the results of the more stringent provisions of the Bill for the prevention of evasions, his estimate could only be in great measure conjectural, the present annual income from general stamps was under ninety lakhs, he thought therefore that he might take credit for eight lakhs or ten per centum on this head, the improved returns from the abolition of the present minimum rate on bonds would be about eight lakhs, the increased rates on bills of exchange might be expected to yield an additional income of about four lakhs, and that on bonds and conveyances involving amounts in excess of Rupees 1,000 about two lakhs

The increase to be expected from the reduced limit of exemption in the case of receipt stamps, and from the additional duty to be imposed on probates, letters of administration and certificates, together with the alteration of the institution-fees in Courts of Small Causes, amounted to about five lakhs

He trusted that these proposals would be regarded as moderate, and that they would be accepted by the public as providing for a substantial progressive increase of the stamp revenue, without imposing an undue burden upon the tax-payer

He did not propose to refer the Bill at present to a Select Committee It was one of those measures which would not ordinarily be brought forward at Simla, and his only object in introducing it now was to secure its early publication and give as much publicity as possible to the proposed amendments of the law etc the Bill came under the consideration of a Select Committee in Calcutta

The Motion was put and agreed to

The Hon'ble MR COCKERELL also moved that the Bill be published in the Gazette of India in English, and in the local Gazettes in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments should direct

MADRAS DISTRICT JUDGES BILL

The Hon'ble MR STOKES introduced the Bill to enable the District Judges of the Presidency of Fort St George to suspend and remove certain ministerial officers, and for other purposes, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee He said that this Bill, like the rest of the business down in his name on to-day's list, was a small matter, and inasmuch as (to quote Herrick) "a little stream best suits a little boat," he would trouble the Council with a very short speech about it The first section of the Bill was, as he had already explained, intended to give the District Judges in Madras the power which District Judges possessed in other parts of India of suspending and removing the ministerial officers of Subordinate Judges and Munsifs The second and last section was copied from the Bengal Civil Courts Act, 1871, section 37, and would enable District Judges to transfer ministerial officers from one Munsif's Court to another in the same district As had been remarked in a letter which he had received from the late Acting District Judge of Trichinopoly, "It often happens that, while there is not sufficient reason for removal, it is very expedient to break up a set of subordinates who have begun to intrigue"

The Motion was put and agreed to

The Hon'ble MR STOKES also moved that the Bill be published in the Gazette of India in English, and in the Fort St George Gazette in English and in such other languages as the Local Government should direct

PANJÁB LAWS ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR STOKES also moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Panjáb Laws Act, 1872 He said that the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, sections 193 and 194, provided for the superintendence, by the Board of Revenue as a Court of Wards, of the persons and property of seven classes of persons Of these the first four classes were disqualified females, minors, idiots and lunatics

The PRESIDENT asked what, technically, was the difference between an idiot and a lunatic

The Hon'ble MR STOKES replied that an idiot was one that has had no understanding from his birth, a lunatic was one that has had understanding, but has lost the use of his reason The fifth, sixth and seventh classes were persons incapable, from physical defects or infirmities, to manage their own estates persons convicted of a non-bailable offence and disqualified, by vice or bad character, from managing their estates, and persons declared by the Local Government, on their own application, to be disqualified from managing their estates The provisions relating to the seventh class had been found extremely useful in the North-Western Provinces, and had been largely brought into effect Now the Panjáb Laws Act provided locally for the first four of these classes but it said nothing about the fifth, sixth or seventh, and inconvenience had recently been felt owing to the inability of the Local Government to comply with the request of a certain eminent but impecunious Sikh Guru, (the head of the Sodhi family, the custodian of what was regarded as the original copy of the Granth), who, feeling himself disqualified to manage his own estates, had applied that Government should assume the administration of his property and arrange for the liquidation of his debts The primary object of the Bill which MR STOKES now asked leave to introduce was to supply this defect in the law of the Panjáb

Another amendment, suggested by section 173 of the Oudh Land-Revenue Act, 1876, was the addition of a clause providing that persons whose property was under the superintendence of the Court of Wards should not be competent to create, without the sanction of the Court, any charge upon, or interest in, such property or any part thereof It was obvious that there was not much use in trying to settle the affairs of an insolvent landholder if, during the process of liquidation, he was allowed to incur fresh debts and charge his property therewith

Lastly, the opportunity would be taken to make the correction in the drafting of section 5 of the Panjáb Laws Act, to which he had referred on a previous occasion

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES LAND-REVENUE ACT AMENDMENT BILL

The Hon'ble MR STOKES also moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873 He said that the chief object of this Bill was to make in the North-Western Provinces one of the amendments of the law which he had just mentioned as necessary in the Panjab, that is to say, to render disqualified proprietors incapable of entering into certain contracts save with the sanction of the Court of Wards The Bill had been framed at the request of the Local Government, and the opportunity would be taken to make a verbal amendment in section 194 of the Act, and to clear up a doubt as to the effect of section 29

The Motion was put and agreed to

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS BILL

The Hon'ble MR STOKES also presented the preliminary Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to define and amend the law relating to Promissory Notes, Bills of Exchange and Cheques

PANJÁB COURTS BILL

The Hon'ble MR STOKES also presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Courts in the Panjab

The following Select Committee was named —

On the Bill to enable the District Judges of the Presidency of Fort St George to suspend and remove certain ministerial officers, and for other purposes,—the Hon'ble Sir Edward Bayley, the Hon'ble Mr Cockerell and the Mover

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 17th October 1877

FIBRES AND SILK

The 31st August 1877

No. 45—In 1871 the Government of India offered a prize of £5,000 to the inventor of the best machine or process for the preparation of the fibre of the Bohmeria nivea (popularly known under the names of Rheea, Ramie, and China grass), and the terms on which machines would be admitted to competition were widely notified in India, in Europe, and in America Many persons declared their intention to compete, but ultimately only one machine was actually brought to the place of trial The machine having been carefully tested at Saháranpur in the autumn of 1872, was found imperfect in some important respects, and the inventor was adjudged not entitled to the full reward He was, however, presented with £1,500 in consideration of the partial measure of success he had attained after great perseverance

2 This machine has not since been adapted by the inventor to practical use, and no improved process of preparing the fibre of the rheea has been yet discovered by other persons Meanwhile the demand for rheea continues and the conditions which induced the Government of India in 1871 to offer a prize remain substantially unchanged.

3 His Honour the President in Council therefore considers that it is desirable to renew the offer, and it is accordingly hereby notified that a reward of fifty thousand rupees will be paid to the inventor of the best machine or process which will separate the bark and fibre from the stem, and the fibre from the bark, of the Bhomeria nivea.

4 A smaller reward not exceeding ten thousand rupees will be given to the inventor of the next best machine or process, provided it is adjudged to possess merit and to be capable without difficulty of adaptation to practical use.

5 What is required is a machine or process capable of producing, by animal, water, or steam power, a ton of dressed fibre of a quality which shall average in value not less than £45 per ton in the English market, at a total cost including all processes of preparation and all needful allowance for wear and tear, of not more than £15 per ton, laid down at any port of shipment in India and £30 in England, after payment of all the charges usual in trade before goods reach the hands of the manufacturer The processes of preparation are to be understood to include all the operations required subsequent to the cutting of the stems from the plants in the field, until the fibre is in a condition fit to be packed for conveyance to the market

6 The machinery employed must be simple, strong, durable, and inexpensive, and should be suited for erection in the plantations where the rheea is grown It must be adapted for treatment of the fresh stems, as cut from the plant The treatment of dried stems offers certain difficulties and the fibre prepared from them must moreover always be much more costly than the fibre produced from green stems Except during the hot dry weather preceding the rains in Upper India (where rheea grows best), it is very difficult so to dry the stems that no fermentation or mildew shall occur But during this season the stems are comparatively short and the crop poor and stunted, unless it is artificially irrigated, and such irrigation greatly increases the cost of cultivation In the rainy season the plant is in fine condition, but at this season it is almost impossible to dry the stems in quantity without injuring the fibre unless recourse is had to artificial means of desiccation, which greatly increase the cost of the material. It is therefore obvious that the attention of inventors should be given to the discovery of a process for the treatment of the green stems.

7 The trials will be held at Saháranpur in the North-Western Provinces, in the months of August and September 1879 Machines entered for competition should be placed in situ and be ready for work not later than the 15th August, the competition commencing on the next day The judges will be appointed by the Government, and they will watch the whole of the trials But the machines shall be worked and adjusted by the competitors themselves, and no person shall touch a machine without the consent of the inventor

8 The Government of India will provide proper shelter and accommodation at Saháranpur for all the competing machines as well as the motive power required It will also pay for the transport from the sea-coast to Saháranpur of all machines up to the limit of one ton each, the freight on any excess weight to be defrayed by the owners The present rate of freight by rail from Calcutta to Saháranpur is Rs 3-10 per maund or Rs 98-11 per ton, and from Bombay to Saharanpur Rs 4-1 per maund or Rs 110-9 per ton A free second class ticket to Saharanpur will also be given to any person in charge of a machine

9 The owner or owners of the successful machine or machines shall not be entitled to receive the reward offered except on the following conditions, viz —

(1)—That a complete technical description of the machine, illustrated by plans drawn to scale, shall be prepared and published (Government paying the cost) for the information of the public

(2)—That after the expiry of three years from the date on which the award is made, the public shall have the right of manufacturing similar machines, on payment to the owner of a royalty of 10 per cent on the cost of each machine so manufactured

10 All persons desiring to compete under the terms and on the conditions specified above are requested to make known their intention not later than the 31st December 1878, giving the following particulars —

1. Name in full and residence
2. Profession or occupation
3. Number of different kinds of machines entered for competition
4. Brief description of each machine

Intending competitors will at the same time declare themselves bound (under penalty of disqualification of the competing machines and forfeiture of all claim to the Government reward) to conform to all rules which may be prescribed by Government or by the judges appointed by Government in connection with the conduct of the trials

All notices of intention to compete and applications for information should be addressed to the Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, Calcutta

11 A limited quantity of rheea will be grown in the Botanic Gardens, Calcutta, and persons desirous of testing their machines before entering them for public competition may obtain green stems in small quantities from the Superintendent of the gardens, through this Department

No 45—In 1871 the Government of India offered a prize of £5,000 to the inventor of the best machine or process for the preparation of the fibre of the Bohmeria nivea (popularly known under the names of Rheea, Ramie, and China grass), and the terms on which machines would be admitted to competition were widely notified in India, in Europe, and in America Many persons declared their intention to compete, but ultimately only one machine was actually brought to the place of trial The machine having been carefully tested at Saháranpur in the autumn of 1872, was found imperfect in some important respects, and the inventor was adjudged not entitled to the full reward He was, however, presented with £1,500 in consideration of the partial measure of success he had attained after great perseverance

2 This machine has not since been adapted by the inventor to practical use, and no improved process of preparing the fibre of the rheea has been yet discovered by other persons Meanwhile the demand for rheea continues and the conditions which induced the Government of India in 1871 to offer a prize remain substantially unchanged

3 His Honour the President in Council therefore considers that it is desirable to renew the offer, and it is accordingly hereby notified that a reward of fifty thousand rupees will be paid to the inventor of the best machine or process which will separate the bark and fibre from the stem, and the fibre from the bark, of the Bhomeria nivea

4 A smaller reward not exceeding ten thousand rupees will be given to the inventor of the next best machine or process, provided it is adjudged to possess merit and to be capable without difficulty of adaptation to practical use

5 What is required is a machine or process capable of producing, by animal, water, or steam power, a ton of dressed fibre of a quality which shall average in value not less than £45 per ton in the English market, at a total cost including all processes of preparation and all needful allowance for wear and tear, of not more than £15 per ton, laid down at any port of shipment in India and £30 in England, after payment of all the charges usual in trade before goods reach the hands of the manufacturer The processes of preparation are to be understood to include all the operations required subsequent to the cutting of the stems from the plants in the field, until the fibre is in a condition fit to be packed for conveyance to the market

6 The machinery employed must be simple, strong, durable, and inexpensive, and should be suited for erection in the plantations where the rheea is grown It must be adapted for treatment of the fresh stems, as cut from the plant The treatment of dried stems offers certain difficulties and the fibre prepared from them must moreover always be much more costly than the fibre produced from green stems Except during the hot dry weather preceding the rains in Upper India (where rheea grows best), it is very difficult so to dry the stems that no fermentation or mildew shall occur But during this season the stems are comparatively short and the crop poor and stunted, unless it is artificially irrigated, and such irrigation greatly increases the cost of cultivation In the rainy season the plant is in fine condition, but at this season it is almost impossible to dry the stems in quantity without injuring the fibre unless recourse is had to artificial means of desiccation, which greatly increase the cost of the material It is therefore obvious that the attention of inventors should be given to the discovery of a process for the treatment of the green stems

7 The trials will be held at Saháranpur in the North-Western Provinces, in the months of August and September 1879 Machines entered for competition should be placed in situ and be ready for work not later than the 15th August, the competition commencing on the next day The judges will be appointed by the Government, and they will watch the whole of the trials But the machines shall be worked and adjusted by the competitors themselves, and no person shall touch a machine without the consent of the inventor

8 The Government of India will provide proper shelter and accommodation at Saháranpur for all the competing machines as well as the motive power required It will also pay for the transport from the sea-coast to Saharanpur of all machines up to the limit of one ton each, the freight on any excess weight to be defrayed by the owners The present rate of freight by rail from Calcutta to Saháranpur is Rs 3-10 per maund or Rs 98-11 per ton, and from Bombay to Saháranpur Rs 4-1 per maund or Rs 110-9 per ton A free second class ticket to Saharanpur will also be given to any person in charge of a machine

9 The owner or owners of the successful machine or machines shall not be entitled to receive the reward offered except on the following conditions, viz —

(1)—That a complete technical description of the machine, illustrated by plans drawn to scale, shall be prepared and published (Government paying the cost) for the information of the public

(2)—That after the expiry of three years from the date on which the award is made the public shall have the right of manufacturing similar machines, on payment to the owner of a royalty of 10 per cent on the cost of each machine so manufactured

10 All persons desiring to compete under the terms and on the conditions specified above are requested to make known their intention not later than the 31st December 1878, giving the following particulars —

1 Name in full and residence
2 Profession or occupation
3 Number of different kinds of machines entered for competition
4 Brief description of each machine

Intending competitors will at the same time declare themselves bound (under penalty of disqualification of the competing machines and forfeiture of all claim to the Government reward) to conform to all rules which may be prescribed by Government or by the judges appointed by Government in connection with the conduct of the trials

All notices of intention to compete and applications for information should be addressed to the Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, Calcutta

11 A limited quantity of rhea will be grown in the Botanic Gardens, Calcutta, and persons desirous of testing their machines before entering them for public competition may obtain green stems in small quantities from the Superintendent of the gardens, through this Department

No 45 —In 1871 the Government of India offered a prize of £5,000 to the inventor of the best machine or process for the preparation of the fibre of the Bohmeria nivea (popularly known under the names of Rhea, Ramie, and China grass), and the terms on which machines would be admitted to competition were widely notified in India, in Europe, and in America Many persons declared their intention to compete, but ultimately only one machine was actually brought to the place of trial The machine having been carefully tested at Saharanpur in the autumn of 1872, was found imperfect in some important respects, and the inventor was adjudged not entitled to the full reward He was, however, presented with £1,500 in consideration of the partial measure of success he had attained after great perseverance

2 This machine has not since been adapted by the inventor to practical use, and no improved process of preparing the fibre of the rhea has been yet discovered by other persons Meanwhile the demand for rhea continues and the conditions which induced the Government of India in 1871 to offer a prize remain substantially unchanged

3 His Honour the President in Council therefore considers that it is desirable to renew the offer, and it is accordingly hereby notified that a reward of fifty thousand rupees will be paid to the inventor of the best machine or process which will separate the bark and fibre from the stem, and the fibre from the bark, of the Bhomeria nivea

4 A smaller reward not exceeding ten thousand rupees will be given to the inventor of the next best machine or process, provided it is adjudged to possess merit and to be capable without difficulty of adaptation to practical use

5 What is required is a machine or process capable of producing, by animal, water, or steam power, a ton of dressed fibre of a quality which shall average in value not less than £45 per ton in the English market, at a total cost including all processes of preparation and all needful allowance for wear and tear, of not more than £15 per ton, laid down at any port of shipment in India and £30 in England, after payment of all the charges usual in trade before goods reach the hands of the manufacturer The processes of preparation are to be understood to include all the operations required subsequent to the cutting of the stems from the plants in the field, until the fibre is in a condition fit to be packed for conveyance to the market

6 The machinery employed must be simple, strong, durable, and inexpensive, and should be suited for erection in the plantations where the rhea is grown It must be adapted for treatment of the fresh stems, as cut from the plant The treatment of dried stems offers certain difficulties and the fibre prepared from them must moreover always be much more costly than the fibre produced from green stems Except during the hot dry weather preceding the rains in Upper India (where rhea grows best), it is very difficult so to dry the stems that no fermentation or mildew shall occur But during this season the stems are comparatively short and the crop poor and stunted, unless it is artificially irrigated, and such irrigation greatly increases the cost of cultivation In the rainy season the plant is in fine condition, but at this season it is almost impossible to dry the stems in quantity without injuring the fibre unless recourse is had to artificial means of desiccation, which greatly increase the cost of the material It is therefore obvious that the attention of inventors should be given to the discovery of a process for the treatment of the green stems

7 The trials will be held at Saharanpur in the North-Western Provinces, in the months of August and September 1879 Machines entered for competition should be placed in situ and be ready for work not later than the 15th August, the competition commencing on the next day The judges will be appointed by the Government, and they will watch the whole of the trials But the machines shall be worked and adjusted by the competitors themselves, and no person shall touch a machine without the consent of the inventor

8 The Government of India will provide proper shelter and accommodation at Sahâranpur for all the competing machines as well as the motive power required It will also pay for the transport from the sea-coast to Saharanpur of all machines up to the limit of one ton each, the freight on any excess weight to be defrayed by the owners The present rate of freight by rail from Calcutta to Sahâranpur is Rs 3-10 per maund or Rs 98-11 per ton, and from Bombay to Sahâranpur Rs 4-1 per maund or Rs 110-9 per ton A free second class ticket to Saharanpur will also be given to any person in charge of a machine

9 The owner or owners of the successful machine or machines shall not be entitled to receive the reward offered except on the following conditions, viz —

(1)—That a complete technical description of the machine, illustrated by plans drawn to scale, shall be prepared and published (Government paying the cost) for the information of the public

(2)—That after the expiry of three years from the date on which the award is made the public shall have the right of manufacturing similar machines, on payment to the owner of a royalty of 10 per cent on the cost of each machine so manufactured

10 All persons desiring to compete under the terms and on the conditions specified above are requested to make known their intention not later than the 31st December 1878, giving the following particulars —

1 Name in full and residence
2 Profession or occupation
3 Number of different kinds of machines entered for competition
4 Brief description of each machine

Intending competitors will at the same time declare themselves bound (under penalty of disqualification of the competing machines and forfeiture of all claim to the Government reward) to conform to all rules which may be prescribed by Government or by the judges appointed by Government in connection with the conduct of the trials

All notices of intention to compete and applications for information should be addressed to the Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, Calcutta

11 A limited quantity of rhea will be grown in the Botanic Gardens, Calcutta, and persons desirous of testing their machines before entering them for public competition may obtain green stems in small quantities from the Superintendent of the gardens, through this Department

Memorandum by Officiating Secretary to Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, No 600 B dated 25th August 1877 and enclosures

2 In accordance with the suggestion of the Committee appointed by the Bombay Government, the definition of "Customs-port" has been made (section 3, clauses (d) and (e)) to include, and that of "Foreign Port" to exclude, ports not in British India which are entitled to be treated as British Customs-ports

3 The existing Act limits the privileges of coasting vessels to vessels which do not touch at any intermediate foreign port But this has been found difficult of application, especially on the Western Coast, where foreign ports are numerous, and the limitation is illegally waived in the case of coasting steamers But the Bombay Committee point out that all craft ought to be treated alike, and we think that, where there is danger of smuggling, special restrictions may be imposed on particular classes of goods under the powers of chapter XIII The definition (section 3, clause (g)) has therefore been expanded

4 We have also enlarged the definition of "Master" (section 3, clause (h)) so as to include a ship's agent appointed in writing by the master to be responsible on his behalf, when such appointment is approved by the Customs-collector

5 In consequence of representations received from the Chief Commissioner of British Burma of the expediency of legalising coasting trade with petty ports which it would not pay to constitute Customs-ports, a provision has been inserted in section 11, with the concurrence of the Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, enabling the Local Government to recognize such ports for the purposes of the coasting trade only

6 In accordance with a recommendation of the Bombay Committee, a clause framed on the model of the English Customs Act of 1876, section 153, has been added to section 17 of the Bill, prohibiting the importation or exportation of articles of foreign manufacture bearing names, marks or brands being, or purporting to be, those of manufacturers resident in the United Kingdom or British India

7 By a little condensation, the whole of chapter X of the Bill as introduced has been dispensed with The privilege of transhipment has been extended to sailing vessels.

8 By section 38, an owner not having sufficient information regarding any goods has been allowed, as suggested by the Bengal Board of Revenue, to deposit them temporarily in a warehouse

The term "real value" has also been defined, as the want of a definition has been much felt The obligation to declare real value has likewise, for statistical purposes, been extended to all goods, whether dutiable or not

9 The third clause of section 39, by which it is provided that undervalued goods retained for the use of Government shall be sold by public auction, has given rise to some difference of opinion, some authorities advocating the substitution of a general power to dispose of the goods for the benefit of Government, in accordance with the English Customs Act of 1853 We have reserved this question for further consideration after enquiry as to the alleged rarity of cases in which difficulty or loss to Government is occasioned by the present provision

10 Sections 45 and 46 (33 and 34 of the Bill as introduced) have also elicited wide differences of opinion between different mercantile and Custom-house authorities The former section is identical in principle with the existing English law section 20 of the Customs Consolidation Act, 1876, runs as follows —

"In the event of any increase, decrease, or repeal of duties of customs chargeable upon any goods or commodities after the making of any contract or agreement for the sale or delivery of such goods duty paid, it shall be lawful for the seller, in case such increase shall accrue before the clearance and delivery from the warehouse of such goods at such increased duty, and after payment thereof, to add so much money to the contract-price as will be equivalent to such increase of duty, and he shall be entitled to be paid and to sue for and recover the same, and it shall be lawful for the purchaser under any such contract or agreement, in case such decrease or repeal shall take effect before the clearance and delivery from the warehouse at such decreased duty, or free of duty, as the case may be, to deduct so much money from the contract-price as will be equivalent to such decrease of duty or repealed duty, and he shall not be liable to pay or be sued for or in respect of such deduction"

The latter section is in harmony with Mr Wilson's financial statement of February 18th, 1860, and the consequent section 2 of Act X of 1860, as also with the notification of the Government of India, No 3180, dated 3rd September 1875 Both sections originated in the memorials and representations which the Government of India is in the habit of receiving whenever a change of tariff takes place We have added another illustration to section 45, to express its scope more fully, but we have left the general question of the retention of both sections open for discussion in Calcutta

11 We have omitted from section 50 (121 of the Bill as introduced) the last clause, which followed the existing law, as it has been justly pointed out by Mr Lane, the Collector of Customs at Calcutta, that it is unreasonable to refuse drawback on ships' stores, and both inconsistent with the permission to export from bond (section 30) and at variance with the English Act

12 In deference to the unanimous opinion expressed in the reports, the rate of drawback has been re-entered in section 50 at the existing rate of seven-eighths, instead of three-fourths, to which it was raised in the Bill as introduced

13 In accordance with representations received from the Bombay Committee and other quarters, we have, with the concurrence of the Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, extended to the Indian Marine and Marine Survey (section 56) the privileges with regard to wine, provisions and stores which have hitherto been confined to officers and ships of Her Majesty's Navy The privilege has likewise been extended in all cases to spirits

14 In order to meet the case of the foreign ports of Native States on the Western Coast, which are not surrounded by customs preventive lines, the existing practice of refusing drawback on exports to such ports has been legalised (section 57) in the form of empowering the Governor General in Council to prohibit drawback in the case of any particular port This is in accordance with the Bombay Committee's suggestion

15 In accordance with the existing practice at Bombay, which originated in section 35 of Act I of 1852, the Customs-collector has been empowered (section 58) to reject, if he sees fit, any claim for drawback amounting to less than ten rupees The Bombay Municipal Act provides similarly regarding petty refunds of town-duty

16 Section 44 of the Bill as introduced was inserted in consequence of a long correspondence which arose in Bombay with the Chamber of Commerce out of the practice prevailing there of masters entering in the manifest the names of the ships' agents as consignees of the cargo, and the true consignees complaining of delay in receiving their goods and of the departure of the vessel in the interim The Bombay Committee, however, now find that the section will not meet the case, and, though it is not objected to by Bengal and Madras (chiefly, it would seem, owing to difference of circumstances), we think it better to omit it, and to obviate the difficulty partly by an addition to section 71, permitting port-clearance to be refused except on security for the clearance of the import-manifest, and partly by new provisions in chapter IX, which will be explained hereafter

17 Section 64 is new, to adapt the law to actual circumstances, under which the manifest sometimes arrives by overland mail before the vessel itself, in which case the saving of time by commencing the preliminaries for her discharge is desirable

18 Section 71—The Madras Committee recommend the addition of a clause authorising the refusal of port-clearance to any vessel the master or agents of which have not made all reasonable endeavours to land all the cargo for the port Formerly, they say, they could stop a vessel through the High Court, or bring an action for overcarrying their goods, but now canal steamers protect themselves by a clause in the bill of lading The Madras Trades Association support this recommendation by a letter (Paper No 9) giving details of packages actually overcarried On the other hand, overcarrying is defended on the grounds, 1st, that boats are scarce at Madras, 2nd, that boatwork is there prohibited after sundown, 3rd, that mail-contracts prevent steamers making long delays We have reserved this question for discussion at Calcutta

19 Section 75—In accordance with the recommendations of the Calcutta Committee and the Bengal Board, the periods of unloading and loading have been combined, but the aggregate of 30 days has been reduced to 20 The additional periods for loading and unloading have also each been reduced to one day for every 100 tons instead of every 50 This will still leave a vessel of 1,200 tons, for instance, 32 days, which is ample Sections 50 and 108 of the Bill as introduced have been consolidated into this section, and words have been inserted to prevent more than one officer at a time being claimed as of right when, from smallness of establishment or press of work, extra officers may not be available

20 Sections 76 and 77—Special provision has been made in the concluding clauses for goods being water-borne from places not duly appointed as wharves, and without the presence or authority of an officer of customs, as also without boat-notes, in order to meet the circumstances of Calcutta, as represented by the Board of Revenue In section 77, the suggestions from Burma have also been attended to, and sections 61 and 125 of Act VI of 1863 (Bill I, sections 53, 58 and 111) have been amalgamated necessity, or there are special facilities, for it We are disposed to consider that a provision of this nature is the best for meeting the difficulties now felt and reconciling the conflicting interests of ship-owners and owners or consignees of goods The latter are protected from double charges for agency The sections, however, are tentative, and may require amendment after they have been scrutinized by the Trade and the Customs Departments at Bombay and Calcutta.

21. Sections 97 and 98—These are the new sections inserted, and referred to above in paragraph 16, in order to permit the prompt discharge of cargo where there is urgent

22 Adverting to section 106, we have altered the form of the bond, in accordance with a suggestion from Madras, so as to allow of enforcement in a District Court instead of in the High Court, though this was really not indispensable, since any of the forms may, even under the existing Act, be modified by the Chief Customs Authority

23 Section 107—In accordance with a suggestion from British Burma, arising out of an opinion by the Advocate General, a clause has been added to make it clear that a fresh bond is not indispensable on every fresh removal of the goods while in warehouse

24 Section 116—Permission to bottle off wines and spirits has been added, in conformity with the English Act and suggestions from Bengal

25 Section 132—This section has been modified in accordance with suggestions from Bengal, so as to place recovery of rent on the same footing as recovery of duty

26 Section 137 has been modified to suit Calcutta, in the same way as sections 76 and 77 (vide supra, paragraph 20)

27 Section 140—In order to obtain correct statistics of imports and exports, it has been made compulsory on the owner of goods short-shipped or re-landed to give information of the fact to the Custom-house This is in accordance with recommendations received and with the English law regarding short shipments

28 Chapter XVIII of the Bill as introduced, which was entitled "Offences and Penalties," has elicited some differences of opinion as to what was the best position in the Act for such matters We have now, in the first place, transferred to a separate chapter everything relating to procedure With regard to the offences and penalties themselves, we are of opinion that the chief thing to be considered is the convenience of the mercantile and nautical public rather than that of adjudicating officers Anybody who wishes honestly to know what the law requires him to do, will find his study of the existing Act perpetually interrupted by the long offence and penalty clauses, the terrors of which it cannot be indispensable to place in close juxtaposition with every injunction or obligation

We have now recast the chapter (XIV) in tabular form, shewing in three columns the offence, the section to which it has reference, and the penalty, and trust that this will meet the views of all parties To the adjudicating officer it will, we believe, not be inconvenient, to the public it will be a relief not to have every section burdened with unnecessary matter, while Custom-house officials may, if they wish, have the chapter printed separately to hand to every master on arrival, or to frame and post up in conspicuous places at the Custom-house and wharves

29 We have made numerous changes in the phrascology of the Bill throughout, to secure both clearness and brevity Considerable alterations have also been made in the arrangement of chapters and sections, with the view both of condensation and of bringing analogous provisions together and securing a practical sequence The chapters now stand as follows —

Chapter I—Preliminary
" II—Appointment of officers in the Department of Customs
" III—Appointment of ports, wharves, custom-houses, warehouses and boarding and landing-stations

30 We propose to consider the Bill further in Calcutta, and recommend that it be in the meantime published in the Gazette of India for general information

Provided that, if the owner makes a declaration before the Customs-collector to the effect that he is unable, from want of full information, to state the real value or contents of any case, package or parcel of goods, then the Customs collector shall permit him, previous to the entry thereof (1) to open such case, package or parcel, and examine the contents in presence of an officer of Customs, or (2) to deposit such case, package or parcel in a public warehouse, pending production of such information

In every such case the detaining officer shall forthwith give notice in writing to the owner of the goods of their detention, and of the value thereof as estimated by him, and the Customs-collector shall, within two clear working days after such detention, or within such reasonable period as may with the consent of the parties be arranged, determine either to deliver such goods on payment of duty charged according to the entry of such owner, or to retain the same for the use of Government

If the goods be retained for the use of Government, the Customs-collector shall cause the full amount stated in the bill as their real value to be paid to the owner in full satisfaction for such goods, in the same manner as if they had been transferred by ordinary sale, and shall then cause them to be sold by public auction after due notice in the official Gazette, or some mercantile newspaper circulating in the place

If the proceeds arising from such sale shall exceed the sum paid to the owner, together with the duty to which the goods are liable and all charges incurred by Government in connection with them, a portion not exceeding one-half of the overplus shall, at the discretion of the Chief Officer of Customs, be payable to the officer who detected the under-valuation of the goods

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Chief Officer of Customs, when he has reason to believe that any such under-valuation was solely the result of accident or error, from permitting the owner of the goods, on his application for that purpose, to amend such entry, on payment of such increased rate of duties, or on such other terms as he may determine

59. If the Court sees reason to think that the annual nett profits or the market-value of any such land, house or garden as is mentioned in section 56, clauses v and vi, have or has been wrongly estimated, the Court may, for the purpose of computing the fee payable in any suit therein mentioned, issue a commission to any proper person directing him to make such local or other investigation as may be necessary, and to report thereon to the Court

60 If in the result of any such investigation the Court finds that the nett profits or market-value have or has been wrongly estimated, the Court, if the estimation has been excessive,

may in its discretion refund the excess paid as such fee but if the estimation has been insufficient, the Court shall require the plaintiff to pay so much additional fee as would have been payable had the said market-value or nett profits been rightly estimated

In such case the suit shall be stayed until the additional fee is paid If the additional fee is not paid within such time as the Court shall fix, the suit shall be dismissed.

Procedure in suits for mesne profits or account When amount decreed exceeds amount claimed.

61 In suits for mesne profits or for immoveable property and mesne profits, or for an account, if the profits or amount decreed are or is in excess of the profits claimed or the amount at which the plaintiff valued the relief sought, the decree shall not be executed until the difference between the fee actually paid and the fee which would have been payable had the suit comprised the whole of the profits or amount so decreed shall have been paid to the proper officer

When the amount of mesne profits is left to be ascertained in the course of the execution of the decree, if the profits so ascertained exceed the profits claimed, the further execution of the decree shall be stayed until the difference between the fee actually paid and the fee which would have been payable had the suit comprised the whole of the profits so ascertained is paid If the additional fee is not paid within such time as the Court shall fix, the suit shall be dismissed

Decision of questions as to valuation

62 Every question relating to valuation for the purpose of determining the amount of any fee chargeable under this chapter on a plaint or memorandum of appeal, shall (subject to the provisions of section 54, clause (b) and section 588, clause (e) of the Code of Civil Procedure) be decided by the Court in which such plaint or memorandum, as the case may be, is filed

Where any suit or appeal in which any such question has arisen comes before a Court of appeal, reference or revision, and such Court considers that the said question has been wrongly decided, to the detriment of the revenue, it shall require the party by whom such fee has been paid to pay so much additional fee as would have been payable had the question been rightly decided, and the provisions of the second paragraph of section 60 shall apply

63. When any appeal is presented to a civil Court, not against the whole of a decision, but only against so much thereof as relates to a portion of the subject-matter of the suit, the memorandum of appeal shall be chargeable with the fee which would have been payable if the subject-matter had been such portion only, and, if on the hearing of such appeal, the respondent takes, under section 561 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an objection to any part of the said decision other than the part appealed against, the Court shall not hear such objection until the respondent shall have paid the additional fee which would have been payable had the appeal comprised the part of the decision so objected to

Suit comprising more than one subject

64. Where a suit embraces two or more distinct subjects, the plaint or memorandum of appeal shall be chargeable with the aggregate amount of the fees to which the plaints or memoranda of appeal in suits embracing separately each of such subjects would be liable under this Act.

When the first or only examination of a person who complains of the offence of wrongful confinement, or of wrongful restraint, or of any offence other than an offence for which police-officers may arrest without a warrant, and who has not already presented a petition on which a fee has been levied under this Act, is reduced to writing under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the complainant shall pay a fee of eight annas, unless the Court thinks fit to remit such payment

67 Whenever an application or petition containing a complaint or charge of an offence, other than an offence for which police-officers may arrest without warrant, is presented to a criminal Court, the Court, if it convict the accused person, shall, in addition to the penalty imposed upon him, order him to repay to the complainant the fee paid on such application or petition

In the case mentioned in section 66, the Court, if it convict the accused person, shall, in addition to the penalty imposed upon him, order him to repay to the complainant the fee, if any, paid by the latter for the examination

When the complainant has paid fees for serving processes in either of the cases mentioned in the first and second paragraphs of this section, the Court, if it convict the accused person, shall, in addition to the penalty imposed upon him, order him to repay such fees to the complainant

All fees ordered to be repaid under this section may be recovered as if they were fines imposed by the Court

Relief where too high a court fee has been paid on probate or letters of administration

68. Where any person on applying for the probate of a will or letters of administration has estimated the property of the deceased to be of greater value than the same has afterwards proved to be, and has consequently paid too high a court-fee thereon, if within six months after the true value of the property has been ascertained, such person produces the probate or letters to the Court by which the probate or letters has or have been granted, and delivers to such Court a particular inventory and valuation of the property of the deceased, verified by affidavit or affirmation,

and if such Court is satisfied that a greater fee was paid on the probate or letters than the law required,

the said Court may at its discretion—

(a) cancel the stamp on the probate or letters, if such stamp has not been already cancelled,

(b) order that another stamp be substituted for denoting the court-fee which should have been paid thereon, and

(c) order that an allowance for the difference between them, or a refund of the amount in money, be made as in the case of spoiled stamps

69. Whenever it is proved to the satisfaction of such Court that an executor or administrator has paid debts due from the deceased to such an amount as, being deducted out of the amount or value of the estate, reduces the same to a sum which, if it had been the whole gross amount or value of the estate, would have occasioned a less court-fee to be paid on the probate or letters of administration granted in respect of such estate than has been actually paid thereon under this Act,

the Court may order the amount of the difference to be refunded, provided the same be claimed within three years after the date of such probate or letters

But when, by reason of any legal proceeding, the debts due from the deceased have not been ascertained and paid, or his effects have not been recovered and made available, and in consequence thereof the executor or administrator is prevented from claiming the return of such difference within the said term of three years, the Court may allow such further time for making the claim as may appear to be reasonable under the circumstances.

Relief in case of several grants

70 Whenever a grant of probate or letters of administration has been or is made in respect of the whole of the property belonging to an estate, and the full fee chargeable under this Act has been or is paid thereon, no fee shall be chargeable under the same Act when a like grant is made in respect of the whole or any part of the same property belonging to the same estate.

Whenever such a grant has been or is made in respect of any property forming part of an estate, the amount of fees then actually paid under this Act shall be deducted when a like grant is made in respect of property belonging to the same estate, identical with or including the property to which the former grant relates

71 The probate of the will, or the letters of administration of the effects, of any person deceased, heretofore or hereafter granted, shall be deemed valid and available by his executors or administrators for recovering, transferring or assigning any moveable or immoveable property whereof or whereto the deceased was possessed or entitled, either wholly or partially as a trustee, notwithstanding the amount or value of such property is not included in the amount or value of the estate in respect of which a court-fee was paid on such probate or letters of administration

72. When any person on applying for probate or letters of administration has estimated the estate of the deceased to be of less value than the same has afterwards proved to be, and has in consequence paid too low a court-fee thereon, the Court by which the probate or letters has or have been granted, may, on the value of the estate of the deceased being verified by affidavit or affirmation, cause the probate or letters of administration to be duly stamped on payment of the full court-fee which ought to have been originally paid thereon in respect of such value, and of the further penalty, if the probate or letters is or are produced within one year from the date of the grant, of five times, or if it or they is or are produced after one year from such date, of twenty times, such proper court-fee, without any deduction of the court-fee originally paid on such probate or letters

Provided that, if the application be made within six months after the ascertainment of the true value of the estate and the discovery that too low a court-fee was at first paid on the probate or letters, and if the Court is satisfied that such fee was paid in consequence of a mistake or of its not being known at the time that some particular part of the estate belonged to the deceased, and without any intention of fraud or to delay the payment of the proper court-fee, the Court may remit the said penalty, and cause the probate or letters to be duly stamped on payment only of the sum wanting to make up the fee which should have been at first paid thereon.

73. In case of letters of administration on which too low a court-fee has been paid at first, the said authority shall not cause the same to be duly stamped in manner aforesaid until the administrator has given such security to the Court by which the letters of administration have been granted as ought by law to have been given on the granting thereof in case the full value of the estate of the deceased had then been ascertained.

Executors, &c, not paying full court-fee on probates, &c, within six months after discovery of underpayment.

74. Where too low a court-fee has been paid on any probate or letters of administration in consequence of any mistake, or of its not being known at the time that some particular part of the estate belonged to the deceased, if any executor or administrator acting under such probate or letters does not, within six months after the discovery of the mistake or of any effects not known at the time to have belonged to the deceased, apply to the said authority and pay what is wanting to make up the court-fee which ought to have been paid at first on such probate or letters, he shall forfeit the sum of one thousand rupees and also a further sum at the rate of ten rupees per cent on the amount of the sum wanting to make up the proper court-fee.

Collector to deliver or pay stamp or amount directed by Court.

75 When any Court orders under this chapter any stamp to be substituted or amount to be refunded, such stamp or amount shall be delivered or paid by any Collector to the person producing the Court's order or certificate authorizing such delivery or payment

76. The provisions of this chapter shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to certificates granted under Act No XL of 1858 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of Minors in the Pre- sidency of Fort William in Bengal), or Act No. XXVII of 1860 (for facilitating the collection of debts on successions, and for the security of parties paying debts to the representatives of deceased persons), or Act No XX of 1864 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of Minors in the Presidency of Bombay), or Bombay Regulation VIII of 1827 (to provide for the formal recognition of Heirs, Executors and Administrators, and for the appointment of Administrators and Managers of property by the Courts), and to the holders of such certificates.

CHAPTER X.

REFUNDS

Allowance for spoiled stamps.

77. Subject to such rules as may from time to time be made by the Governor General in Council as to the evidence, by affidavit or otherwise, which the Collector may require, allowance shall be made by the Collector for stamps spoiled in the cases hereinafter mentioned (that is to say) —

(1.) The stamp on any paper inadvertently and undesignedly spoiled, obliterated, or by any means rendered unfit for the purpose intended, before any instrument written thereon is executed by any party, and for which stamp no money or other consideration has been paid or given to the attorney, pleader, or other person employed to transact the business intended to have been carried into execution thereby, or to the person by whom the same was written

(2) Any adhesive stamp which has never been used or affixed to any paper, but which has been inadvertently and undesignedly spoiled or rendered unfit for use

(3) The stamp used or intended to be used for any bill of exchange or promissory note, signed by or on behalf of the drawer or intended drawer, but not delivered out of the hands to the payee or intended payee, or any person on his behalf, or deposited with any person as a security for the payment of money, or in any way negociated, issued, or put in circulation, or made use of in any other manner whatever, and which being a bill of exchange has not been accepted by the drawee, and provided that the paper on which any such stamp is impressed does not bear any signature intended as or for the acceptance of any bill of exchange to be afterwards written thereon

(4) The stamp used or intended to be used for any bill of exchange or promissory note signed by or on behalf of the drawer thereof, but which from any omission or error has been spoiled or rendered useless, although the same, being a bill of exchange, may have been presented for acceptance or accepted or endorsed, or being a promissory note, may have been delivered to the payee, provided that another completed and duly stamped bill of exchange or promissory note is produced identical in every particular, except in the correction of such error or omission as aforesaid, with the spoiled bill or note

(5) The stamp used for any of the following instruments, that is to say —

(a) an instrument executed by any party thereto, but afterwards found to be absolutely void in law from the beginning

(b) an instrument executed by any party thereto, but afterwards found unfit by reason of any error or mistake therein for the purpose originally intended.

(c) an instrument executed by any party thereto, but which by reason of the death of any person by whom it is necessary that it should be executed, without having executed the same, or of the refusal of any such person to execute the same, or to advance any money intended to be thereby secured, cannot be completed so as to effect the intended transaction in the form proposed

(d) an instrument executed by any party thereto, which for want of the execution thereof by some material and necessary party, and his inability or refusal to sign the same, is in fact incomplete and insufficient for the purpose for which it was intended

(e) an instrument executed by any party thereto, which by reason of the refusal of any person to act under the same, or by the refusal or non acceptance of any office thereby granted totally fails of the intended purpose

(f) an instrument executed by any party thereto, which for want of registration within the time required by law becomes null and void

(g) an instrument executed by any party thereto, which becomes useless in consequence of the transaction intended to be thereby effected being effected by some other instrument duly stamped

(h) an instrument executed by any party thereto, which is inadvertently and undesignedly spoiled, and in lieu whereof another instrument made between the same parties and for the same purpose is executed and duly stamped

(1) that in the case of an executed instrument,

(a) that instrument is given up to be cancelled

(b) the application for relief is made within six months after the date of the instrument, or, if it is not dated, within six months after the execution thereof by the person by whom it was first or alone executed, except where from unavoidable circumstances any instrument for which another instrument has been substituted cannot be given up to be cancelled within the aforesaid period, and in that case within six months after the date or execution of the substituted instrument, and except where the spoiled instrument has been sent abroad, and in that case within six months after it has been received back in any part of British India

(c) no suit has been instituted in which the instrument could or would have been given or offered in evidence

(2) that in the case of stamped paper, not having any executed instrument written thereon, and of an adhesive stamp not affixed to any material, the application for relief is made within six months after the stamp has been spoiled as aforesaid

Allowance for misused stamps.

78. When any person has inadvertently used for an instrument liable to duty a stamp of greater value than was necessary, or has inadvertently used any stamp for an instrument not liable to any duty, the Collector may, on application made within six months after the date of the instrument, or, if it is not dated, within six months after the execution thereof by the person by whom it was first or alone executed, and upon the instrument, if liable to any duty, being re-stamped with the proper duty, cancel and allow as spoiled the stamp so misused

79. In any case in which allowance is made for spoiled or misused stamps the Collector may give in lieu thereof other stamps of the same denomination and value, or, if required, and he thinks proper, stamps of any other denomination to the same amount in value, or, at his discretion, the same value in money, deducting the proper allowance on the purchase from Government of stamps of the like description

Repurchase of stamps not wanted

80 When any person is possessed of a stamp which has not been spoiled or rendered unfit or useless for the purpose intended, but for which he has no immediate use, the Collector may, if he in his discretion think fit, repay to the applicant the amount or value of such stamp in money, deducting the proper discount, upon his delivering up the stamp to be cancelled, and proving to the Collector's satisfaction that it was purchased by the applicant with a bonâ fide intention to use it, and that he has paid the full value thereof without any deduction (except only the amount of such discount), and that the stamp was so purchased within the period of six months next preceding the application

81 If a plaint or appeal which has been rejected by the lower Court on any of the grounds mentioned in the Code of Civil Procedure is ordered to be received, or if a suit is remanded in appeal, on any of the grounds mentioned in section 562 of the same Code, for a second decision by the lower Court, the appellate Court may grant to the appellant a certificate, authorizing him to receive back from the Collector the full amount of fee paid on the memorandum of appeal

Provided that, if, in the case of a remand in appeal, the order of remand does not cover the whole of the subject-matter of the suit, the certificate so granted shall not authorize the appellant to receive back more than so much fee as would have been originally payable on the part or parts of such subject-matter in respect whereof the suit has been remanded

82 When an application for a review of judgment is presented on or after the ninetieth day from the date of the decree, the Court, unless the delay was caused by the applicant's laches, may, in its discretion, grant him a certificate authorizing him to receive back from the Collector so much of the fee paid on the application as exceeds the fee which would have been payable had it been presented before such day

Refund where Court reverses or modifies its former decision on ground of mistake

83 When an application for a review of judgment is admitted, and on the re-hearing, the Court reverses or modifies its former decision on the ground of mistake in law or fact, the applicant shall be entitled to a certificate from the Court authorizing him to receive back from the Collector the fee paid on the application.

But nothing in the former part of this section shall entitle the applicant to such certificate where the reversal or modification is due, wholly or in part, to fresh evidence which might have been produced at the original hearing.

Refund where plaint rejected for merely technical defect

84. When a plaint disclosing a reasonable cause on the merits is presented to any civil Court in such a form that the Judge rejects it, not for any substantial defect, but on account of a purely technical error in form only, and so as to leave the plaintiff free to prosecute the same case in another form against the same defendant, the value of the stamp on the plaint shall be refunded to the plaintiff on his presenting an application to the Collector of the District in which the Court is situate, together with a certificate from the Judge who rejected the plaint, that it was rejected under the circumstances above described and that in his opinion the value of the stamp should be refunded.

Remission of additional duty levied under section 31

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The provisions of the law relating to stamp-duties and Court-fees are now contained in six different Acts, and numerous orders of the Governor General in Council notified from time to time in the Government Gazette during the last seven years It is desirable for the convenience of the public to bring these provisions within the compass of a single enactment, and it is proposed to take this opportunity to introduce measures for the improved working of the law, which experience has shown to be much needed, and at the same time to provide for the acquisition of a moderate increase of revenue from stamp-duties

2 Such increase is to be obtained partly by the amendment of those provisions of the law which are specially designed to protect the revenue from loss through evasion of the payment of the proper stamp-duty, and partly by the enhancement of the present rates of duty in certain cases

3 There is reason to believe that the obligation of stamping documents at the time of their execution is at present largely evaded Prosecutions for such evasion are rarely resorted to, and the criminal penalties provided by the existing law may be said to be almost inoperative, so that frauds upon the revenue are systematically practised in the belief that the worst result to be apprehended from their detection is the levy of a fine of a certain fixed amount, in addition to the unpaid duty. The most important object to be kept in view consequently in the framing of a new Stamp Bill is to stop, as far as may be practicable, every hole of escape from the liability which the law imposes upon the executant of instruments subject to stamp-duty

4 The new preventive provisions are contained in sections 30, 31, 33, 35 and 37, and their main object is to secure the proper scrutiny of instruments liable to stamp-duty when produced by their possessors, and the effective working of the criminal penalty-clauses as a deterrent to wilful evasions

5 It has been shown that, in the present state of the law, the obligation to see that all documents produced in Courts and public offices are properly stamped is generally ignored unless and until the parties producing them desire to put the documents in evidence It is not an uncommon thing for persons to produce documents improperly stamped, and on being told that they will have to pay a specified amount by way of penalty, to withdraw the documents and forego putting them in evidence; and in such cases they are allowed to escape punishment for the offence which they have committed in not stamping or sufficiently stamping their instruments, and which is not the less an offence against the law and punishable as such, whether they wish to use the instrument or not.

6 Further, where the presiding Judge or officer does take cognizance of the omission to use a proper stamp, some difficulty is found in securing the due punishment of the offender owing to the obscure and somewhat conflicting provisions of the existing law as to the constitution of an "offence" Whilst, on the one hand, the criminal penalty is declared to be incurred upon the mere fact of under-stamping, on the other the provisions relating to the procedure to be followed on the production of unstamped documents deal prominently with the question of intention on the part of the producer, and the Courts generally ignore the presumption of fraudulent intention in the absence of proof of the existence of such intention As such proof is not forthcoming, the producer of the instrument almost invariably escapes, mulcted only in the civil penalty which the Court is empowered to levy at its own discretion and without reference to other authority

7 To meet this state of things, it is provided in section 30 of the Bill that every Court and head of an office shall take notice of and examine all instruments produced before them, that they shall determine whether the instrument is properly stamped, and, if not, shall impound it Section 31 provides for dealing with an impounded instrument which is required to be put in evidence, so that there may be no obstruction to the administration of justice, whilst section 33, amongst other things, provides that this detention of the document and levy of a validating fine in the form of additional duty shall in no case protect the person responsible for the under-stamping from the criminal penalties to which his offence renders him liable Section 35 prescribes the course to be followed by the Collector when under-stamped documents or copies thereof come into his hands, and section 36 determines the effect of the realization of the deficient duty as regards the validity of the instrument, and provides for the ultimate disposal of the latter—according as a criminal prosecution may or may not be undertaken

8 Section 37 contains an entirely new provision and one that seems likely to stimulate the production of instruments liable to stamp-duty and not properly stamped

It frequently happens that the person interested in putting in evidence an insufficiently stamped document was not bound by law to bear the expense of the stamp that should have been used at the time of its execution, yet he has to bear the penalty incurred through the laches of the actual defaulter As a consequence of this state of the law, the person interested in producing the document is often deterred from so doing by the consideration of the penalty In such cases it cannot be doubted that production will be greatly facilitated by the provisions of this section which enable the producer to throw the cost of producing the unstamped or improperly stamped document upon another person

9 Important changes are proposed in regard to some of the instruments chargeable with ad valorem duties specified in the first Schedule, namely, Bills of Exchange payable otherwise than on demand, Bonds, Conveyances, Policies of Insurance and other instruments such as Promissory Notes, Leases and Mortgage deeds which are subject to the same duties as Bills of Exchange, Bonds and Conveyances respectively

10 Under the present law all Bonds and Conveyances in which the amount secured, or consideration stated, ranges between Rs 50 and Rs 10,000, and other instruments similarly chargeable, are subject to rates of stamp-duty equivalent to 1 and ½ per cent, respectively, on the maximum amount of each step in the scale of ascents by which the assessment is regulated So far, with one exception only, to be presently stated, the sliding scale of rates of stamp-duty follow the plan of the English stamp law, but the tax is as much heavier in proportion in this country as the rupee, half rupee, quarter rupee and one anna respectively exceed in value the shilling, its half and quarter, and one penny The exception adverted to is that, whereas in the English scale of ascents there is no intermediate step between £100 and £200 or £200 and £300, and so on, in the Indian stamp law the ascents between Rs 1,000 and Rs 10,000 are by steps of Rs 500

11 When the amount involved in the instrument chargeable with stamp-duty exceeds Rs 10,000, the percentage of charge is, by the present stamp law in this country, diminished as the amount upon which the duty is assessed increases, whereas under the English law the same proportion of charge is maintained throughout, whatever may be the amount of the subject-matter of the instrument liable to stamp-duty

12 The rates of stamp-duty also charged on Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes other than those payable on demand are, relatively to the duties chargeable on Bonds and Conveyances under the Indian stamp law, lower than the English rates For whilst the stamp law in England imposes on Conveyances, Bonds and Bills of Exchange the duty of 12*d*, 6*d* and about 1½*d* for every £10, here the rates on those three classes of instruments are 16 annas, 8 annas and about 1 anna for every Rs 100 respectively

13 The principle of the changes now proposed may be said to be the equalisation of the existing rates of percentage of duty upon the amount taxed and their adjustment to the English standard—the rupee and its halves and quarters being taken as the equivalent of the shilling and its halves and quarters respectively, and the anna as equal to the penny

14 Some increase also in regard to the duty leviable on documents of certain amounts above Rs 1,000 but below Rs 10,000 is involved in the proposed conversion of the intermediate steps between those amounts from Rs 500 to Rs 1,000, for the purpose of bringing the Indian, into precise conformity with the English, scale of ascents

15 The minimum rate of stamp-duty now payable in the case of Bonds is to be omitted It is thought that all instruments of this class—however low may be the amount involved—can without any hardship bear a four annas tax, whilst so comparatively numerous are the Bonds or other instruments of obligation in respect of amounts not exceeding twenty-five rupees that the additional rate of two annas to which it is proposed to subject them is likely to produce a material increase of revenue.

16 It is proposed to include Policies of Insurance on life in the general class of instruments of insurance liable to stamp-duty, and to double the existing rates of charge on these instruments generally, this change is in fact nothing more than a reversion to the rates chargeable on these documents previously to the passing of the Stamp Act of 1869 Then there was no exception in favour of Life Policies, and instruments of insurance generally were charged at the rate of 8 annas per Rs 1,000 of the amount insured

17 Instruments guaranteeing the repayment of loans made upon the deposit of valuable securities are by the present law subjected to a small fixed duty of two rupees only, without reference to the amount of the loan or the extent of the accommodation obtained through the transaction It seems more equitable and consistent with the general principles which govern the determination of stamp duties that these instruments should be taxed according to the amount involved in the transaction, hence it is proposed to substitute an ad valorem for a fixed duty, and, having regard to the short period for which the loan is granted, to assess the new duty at one-half of the rate applicable to Bills of Exchange

18 The Bill provides also for the revival of the rule, in regard to the duty leviable on certain promissory notes, which was in force previous to the passing of the Stamp Act of 1869, under which a promissory note made payable at some time exceeding one year from the date of the note was liable to the same rate of duty as a Bond As the obligatory instrument ordinarily executed in this country when loans are taken—the "tamassúk"—is more of the nature of a promissory note than a bond, it seems probable that some unnecessary sacrifice of revenue has resulted from the relinquishment of the former mode of assessment to which it is now proposed to revert in these cases.

19. The limit of amount within which cheques and other orders for the payment of money and receipts are exempted from any stamp-duty is to be reduced from twenty to ten rupees The payment of one anna stamp-duty can hardly be considered an oppressive tax in such cases, whilst so comparatively numerous are the transactions of this kind involving small amounts, that the abolition of the exemption in respect of sums ranging between twenty and ten rupees is likely to secure a considerable increase of revenue Further, the Bill aims at the enforcement of the delivery of a receipt for the payment of any amount in excess of ten rupees in satisfaction of a debt Under the present law a person receiving money in payment of a debt above a certain amount is obliged to grant a receipt to the payer if the latter demands it This enactment has been found by experience to attain its object but very imperfectly, as the payers are generally too indifferent about the matter to exercise their legal right, and consequently the payee it is believed, in a large number, if not the majority, of cases, escapes his obligation As the obligation was imposed solely in the interest of the revenue, the principle on which it rests is not overstrained by the provision of the Bill which, upholding the obligation of the payee, dispenses with the antecedent condition for its enforcement

20 The duty chargeable on instruments evidencing an appraisement or an award is raised by the Bill to about five times its present amount Before 1869, these documents were not subject to any stamp-duty the tax then imposed was purely experimental The increase now proposed still leaves instruments of this description more lightly taxed than they are in England

21 The Bill substitutes an ad valorem rate of duty for the fixed amount now chargeable on Partition-deeds That amount is Rs 16 and in some cases proves such a heavy tax that the matter has been made the subject of a reference to Government, an equal charge on all partitions without reference to the value of the property divided must work unsatisfactorily An ad valorem duty is a more equitable form of charge, and the rate has been assimilated to that of bonds, which is one-half of the rate to which ordinary deeds of conveyance are subject

22 An ad valorem charge is also proposed in lieu of a fixed duty for instruments of gift and exchange All fixed duties are more or less objectionable, as they must either be pitched so low as to bring in no appreciable amount of revenue, or they must press with undue severity in cases in which the property concerned is of inconsiderable value The difficulty of imposing ad valorem duties in these cases arises out of the want of a safe basis for their assessment, there being no consideration expressed in the instruments to be charged It is proposed to surmount this difficulty by imposing on the parties the obligation of stating truly—under heavy penalties for fraudulent statements—the approximate value of the subject of the deed of gift or exchange

23 The stamp-duties heretofore chargeable on pleaders' and múkhtars' certificates under the Pleader's Act are included in the Bill as part of the scheme of consolidation It seems only just and consistent that advocates and attorneys should be similarly taxed in respect of the practice of their profession in the Courts of this country, and it is proposed to subject them to the payment of five hundred rupees, and two hundred and fifty rupees stamp-duty, respectively, on their enrolment as advocates and attorneys of a High Court The members of the faculty practising in the Courts of England, Ireland and Scotland are somewhat similarly taxed in respect of such practice

24 The only changes in the rates of Court-fees contemplated by the Bill are (1) in respect of suits instituted in the Courts of Small Causes, (2) the grant of probates of wills and letters of administration, and (3) the fees leviable for the service of processes

25 The new rates for Small Cause Court suits involve a decrease of 2½ per cent in the case of suits of this class instituted in the Presidency Towns, and a proportionate increase of the rates heretofore obtaining in such Courts situated outside those towns

The present rates in the Presidency Towns are 2 annas per rupee or 12½ per cent Elsewhere they are the same as in other Courts, namely, 7½ per cent. on the average amount involved in the suit. The town rate is clearly too high and some relief is called for. This, it is thought, may be

unobjectionably given by the application of the equalisation principle, and the enhancement of the rate heretofore levied in the Mufassal Small Cause Court is defensible on the ground that, as the judicial agency and general machinery of these Courts is more costly than those of the ordinary Civil Courts, whilst a complete determination of the matter in dispute is obtained in the one class of Courts and not in the other, equitable considerations admit of a higher rate of charge upon the litigants in the former case than in the latter

26 Up to 1870 no stamp-duty was charged on Letters of Administration to the effects of deceased persons or Probates of Wills. The rate of duty then fixed was tentative and expressly declared to be subject to revision on the occasion of the next amendment of the law on the subject, it is now proposed to increase it from two, to two and a half per centum

27 The fees now chargeable for the service of processes issuing from the Civil, Revenue and Criminal Courts are fixed by rules framed by the High Courts It is proposed to substitute for this procedure the fixed rates specified under Nos 20 and 21 of the fifth schedule of the Bill, and to discontinue the provisions of the existing law for the regulation of the process-serving establishments

The experience gained through the working of the present system, as to the actual cost of serving processes, renders possible the determination of the amount of the fee required in the case of each kind of process to cover the cost of its service, and it seems desirable not only that the Court-fees of this class should, like all other fees leviable under the Court-fees Act, be fixed by the Act itself, but that the regulation of the establishments to be maintained for the service of processes should be under the exclusive control of the Executive authorities

28 It is often asserted that the provisions of the stamp law are so complicated as to be ill-understood by the public generally, and on this ground a disposition has been shown sometimes on the part of the administrators of the law to excuse, or take a very lenient view of, non-compliance with its requirements, the Bill has been framed therefore with the special endeavour to render the requirements of the law generally intelligible, by large additions to the interpretation-clauses, improved arrangement of its provisions and a simpler classification of the contents of the schedules

29 The other alterations of the existing law contained in the Bill relate chiefly to matters of detail or procedure, are of minor importance, and do not appear to call for any special explanation

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th October 1877, and was referred to a Select Committee —

A Bill to enable the District Judges of the Presidency of Fort Saint George to suspend and remove certain ministerial officers, and for other purposes

Preamble.

Whereas it is expedient to empower the District Judges of the Presidency of Fort Saint George to suspend and remove ministerial officers of the Courts of Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs, and whereas it is also expedient to provide for the transfer of ministerial officers from one Court to another, It is hereby enacted as follows —

Amendment of Act III of 1873, section 23

1. For section 23 of the Madras Civil Courts Act, 1873, the following shall be substituted (that is to say)—

Appointment and removal of ministerial officers of subordinate Courts.

"23. The ministerial officers of the Courts of the Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs shall be appointed by such Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs, respectively, subject to the approval or confirmation of the District Judge within whose jurisdiction such Courts are situate, and may be suspended or removed from office either by the said District Judge or (subject to his approval or confirmation) by such Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs respectively."

Addition after section 24 of Act III of 1873

Transfer of ministerial officers

"24 A. The Local Government may, at the instance of the District Judge, transfer from any Court, except the High Court, to any other Court, except the High Court, all or any of the ministerial officers of the Court of such Judge, or of any Subordinate Judge or District Munsif under his control

"The District Judge may transfer all or any of the ministerial officers of any Court under his control to any other such Court"

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Madras Government and the Madras High Court desire that the District Judges should have the power of suspending or removing ministerial officers of the Courts of the Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs in addition to the power which they now possess under Act III of 1873, section 23, of approving and confirming those officers The first section of the Bill is intended to effect this object

Powers, resembling those conferred by Act VI of 1871, section 37, are also given to transfer ministerial officers from one Court to another

[Third publication.]

The following preliminary Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th October 1877 —

We, the undersigned members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to define and amend the law relating to Promissory Notes, Bills of Exchange and Cheques was referred, have considered the papers specified in the appendix, and have the honour to present this preliminary report.

2 This Bill, of which a draft, hereinafter called the draft Bill, was prepared by the late Indian Law Commission, is intended to be one of the chapters of the Indian Civil Code, and was introduced and referred to a Select Committee in December 1867 The then mercantile members of Council, while admitting the desirability of codification, objected to the draft Bill on account of its deviations from English law In order to obviate this objection several alterations have now been made in its substantial provisions The Bill has also been re-arranged, and some additions have been made in order to supply omissions These changes, which embody most of the suggestions contained in the papers mentioned in the appendix, will appear in detail from this report

3 It may, however, be convenient, before proceeding further, to notice briefly the alterations which have been made in order to render the Bill conformable to English law

4 The draft Bill provided that an indorsee for value after maturity should have only the rights of his indorser This does not except the case of a bill of exchange drawn or accepted for the purpose of enabling some party thereto to raise money thereon we have added an exception in section 80 in order to meet this case

5 The draft Bill discarded days of grace we have recognised this usage in sections 87 and 88 of the present Bill The change has involved (in section 22) a slight alteration of the definition of "maturity"

6 The draft Bill also made all instruments which fell due upon a holiday payable on the next succeeding business day instead of, as in English law, on the next preceding business day, except in the case of a public holiday We have in section 26 adhered to the English law, and have provided that, besides the usual public holidays, such days shall be public holidays within the meaning of the Act as the Local Government may declare

7 The draft Bill made no provision for the case in which interest at a specified rate is expressly made payable on a note or bill It merely provided that interest at the current rate should be payable on a bill dishonoured by non-acceptance, but only from the maturity of the instrument The same rule was adopted in the case of dishonour by non payment of a note, bill or cheque We have substituted the English law on this subject by declaring (section 101) that, where interest is expressly provided for in the note or bill, it shall be calculated, as against all parties, at the specified rate from the date of the instrument until tender or realization of the amount due Where no interest is specified we have declared (section 101), that, except in cases within section 532 of the Civil Procedure Code, interest shall run at six per cent per annum from the date at which the amount ought to have been paid by the party charged We have also added an explanation that an indorser can only be charged with such interest from the date of the receipt by him of notice of dishonour

8 We have restored (section 117) the rule, which the draft Bill omitted, that a notice of dishonour must inform the party to whom it is given that he will be held liable

9 The draft Bill provided that when a note, bill or cheque had been lost, or would not be produced by the owner, he might nevertheless enforce his claim against the maker or acceptor if he gave security, to the satisfaction of the Court, to indemnify the defendant against the claims of any other person upon the instrument No provision was made for an action against the indorser The English law, however, provides (17 & 18 Vict, c 125, section 87 = Act V of 1866, section 14) that, in any action upon a negotiable instrument, the loss of it shall not be set up as a defence if an indemnity is given, to the satisfaction of the Court, against the claims of any other person And the owner of such a document was always entitled in equity to demand payment on giving a sufficient indemnity We have, therefore, considered that we should correctly embody the English law by providing (section 103) that any person liable to pay and paying the amount due on a note, bill or cheque shall be entitled to be indemnified, and by leaving (section 8) the liability of all parties the same as if the instrument had been forthcoming

10 The draft Bill extended to instruments payable to order the principle upon which protection is afforded by English law to the party primarily liable upon an instrument payable to bearer The acceptor, maker or indorser of a negotiable instrument payable to bearer, but not of an instrument payable to order, is, by English law, discharged by payment to any person in possession of the instrument, if the payer has no reason to believe the possessor is not the true holder. We have in section 104, clause (c), restricted the protection to such instruments

11 The Bill as now altered consists of fourteen chapters In the first chapter we have inserted the usual preliminary matter We have (section 1) excluded hundis from the operation of the Bill We have provided (section 2) for the repeal of some enactments which are replaced by the provisions of the Bill

12 Section 3 contains a definition of the term "banker" drawn from 39 & 40 Vict, c 80, s 3, and of "Notary Public" Notaries are seldom found in the Mufassal, and the Bill provides that their functions may be exercised by persons appointed for that purpose by the Governor General in Council.

13. Chapter II deals with notes, bills and cheques, bills in sets and crossed cheques We have here substituted definitions which appear to be more comprehensive and accurate than those in the draft Bill For instance, according to the original definitions, a bill of exchange differs from a cheque only in requiring that the money ordered by the instrument to be paid should be held at the disposal of the drawer—a distinction which appears to us inaccurate, as a bill of exchange is in law, equally with a cheque, assumed to be drawn against funds in the hands of the drawee. Again, the definition of a cheque would include such an instrument as a tradesman's bill on which the debtor writes an order to pay for presentation to a cash-keeper—the ordinary mode of paying bills in mercantile houses, at least in Calcutta, and one adopted by many private persons According to the draft Bill such an instrument would apparently be negotiable—a very serious result indeed Again, the definition of a cheque does not require that it should be drawn upon a banker or a person acting as such, nor that it should be payable on demand. These are only a few of what seemed to us the more obvious omissions We have, therefore, framed definitions which we think will include all the essentials of these instruments

14 Section 8 defines the holder of a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque as a person entitled in his own name to the possession of it and to receive or recover the amount due thereon from the parties thereto The holder of an instrument at the time of its loss or destruction also comes within the definition The corresponding provision of the draft Bill seemed to us vague and unsatisfactory in its definition of "holder," and it was not consistently applied in the substantive provisions of the Bill

15 In section 15 we have modified the definition of indorsement in the draft Bill by providing that it must be made for the purpose of negotiation We have also included in the definition a like signature upon a stamped paper intended to be completed as a negotiable instrument

16 We have added a section (17) providing, in accordance with English law, that, when an instrument may be construed either as a promissory note or bill of exchange, it shall be taken to be that which the holder elects

17 In section 19 we have supplied an omission in the draft Bill by providing that an instrument in which no time for payment is specified and all cheques are payable on demand

18 Section 20 provides for the filling up by the holder of blanks in a stamped paper intended to be completed as a negotiable instrument, but not completed when issued The holder may complete the instrument for any amount covered by the stamp To this section is added as an illustration section 9 of the draft Bill

19 To the four presumptions as to negotiable instruments contained in the draft Bill and stated in section 27 of the present Bill, we have added presumptions that an accepted bill was accepted within a reasonable time after date and before maturity, that every bill or note receipted on the back was paid by the acceptor or maker, that is, by the party primarily liable to pay, and that a lost instrument was duly stamped

20 In addition to the provisions of the draft Bill as to bills in sets we have (section 29) provided for the right of that holder of one of the parts who first acquires title to his part to possession of the other parts We have also defined an acceptor in section 7 so as to include an acceptor of a set of bills

21 In sections 30 to 37 (both inclusive) we have substituted the provisions of the recent English Act (39 & 40 Vict, c 81) for the sections of the draft Bill relating to crossed cheques

23 Section 38, after providing that all persons capable of contracting may be parties to notes, bills and cheques, adds that a minor may draw, indorse, deliver and negotiate such instruments so as to bind all parties except himself

24 Section 39 provides for persons binding themselves through their authorized agents, and adds that a general authority is not sufficient for this purpose, and that an authority to draw a bill does not of itself authorize an indorsement,

25 Sections 41 and 42 provide for the liability of partners on notes, bills and cheques, and section 43 applies the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, sections 42, 43 and 45 and chapter XI, to the rights and liabilities of partners created thereby, as well as to joint rights and liabilities

27 Section 46 extends to the case of the maker of a note, a definition contained in section 60 of the draft Bill of the liability of the acceptor of a bill of exchange

28 Section 47 adds to the category of persons who (according to section 61 of the draft Bill) can accept a bill, all or some of several joint drawees

29 Section 49 provides that every prior party to a negotiable instrument is liable thereon to a holder in due course, that is, to a bonâ fide holder for value

30 Section 50 lays down that the maker of a note or cheque, the drawer of a bill until acceptance, and the acceptor are ordinarily the principal parties to the bill and the other parties their sureties, and section 51 adds that each prior party is a principal as regards the holder, and that the intermediate parties between such prior party and the holder are sureties for him By section 52 the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, sections 132 to 147 (both inclusive) are rendered applicable to these relations of suretyship

31 We have added a section (54) estopping the maker of a note, the drawer of a bill or cheque and the acceptor of a bill for the honour of the drawer from denying the original validity of the instrument

32 Section 55 adopts, with modifications, the provisions of section 117 of the Evidence Act, 1872, and of sections 36 and 62 of the draft Bill, which estop the acceptor from denying

the drawer's signature The estoppel is, we think, properly confined by this section to suits by holders other than the drawer

33 Section 56 estops the maker of a note and the acceptor of a bill payable to order from denying the payee's capacity to indorse

34 Section 57 adds to the estoppel against denying false signatures, contained in section 35 of the draft Bill, an estoppel against denying the capacity to contract of any prior party to a negotiable instrument in suit

35 Section 58 also carries on the same subject by declaring the acceptor of a bill with a forged indorsement not to be thereby relieved from liability if he knew it to be forged at the time of acceptance, and section 59 declares that the acceptor of a bill drawn in a fictitious name is not thereby relieved from liability to pay upon an indorsement by the same hand as the drawer's signature, and purporting to be made by the drawer

36 These sections supply some omissions in the draft Bill, and, we think, adequately provide for the due currency of negotiable instruments when once put into circulation and for the protection of their holders

37 The Bill then goes on to deal with the consideration for negotiable instruments and to protect the holder for value of instruments with respect to which there may have been originally no consideration, or a subsequent failure of consideration, wholly or in part

38 These sections (60 to 63, both inclusive) are substantially taken from the draft Bill We have added an illustration to section 62

40 To section 64, which is substantially the same as section 18 of the draft Bill, we have added an explanation to the effect that an instrument delivered upon a condition which has not happened is not negotiable except by a holder for value and without notice of such condition

41 Where the holder of a note or bill payable to or to the order of a specified person delivers it to another person without indorsing it, but with intent to transfer his title thereto, we think that (with reference to the Code of Civil Procedure, sections 36 and 37) the transferee should not be required to sue in the name of his transferor We have framed section 66 accordingly

42 In section 67 we have, in substantial accordance with section 40 of the draft Bill, dealt with the case of a bonâ fide holder for value of a bill transferred without indorsement In such a case we have declared the holder entitled to a return of the consideration if the bill is, after the transfer, avoided on account of any matter prior to the transfer, provided such return is claimed within a reasonable time

43 Section 71 describes the parties who may indorse and negotiate negotiable instruments The draft Bill does not appear to provide with sufficient clearness for this matter

44 Section 76 embodies section 23 of the draft Bill but it completes that section by enacting that an indorsement of a negotiable instrument for part of the amount due thereon transfers a right to retain the instrument and to receive and recover such part in the name of the indorser

45 Section 77 provides that no agreement which is not expressed on the instrument or which is collateral thereto shall be binding upon holders for value or those deriving title from such holders This section embodies and supplements the corresponding provisions of the draft Bill of which section 42 provided that the title of an indorsee should not be affected by transactions independent of the instrument, and section 99 that a holder in due course should not be affected by any agreement between two signers as to the order of their liability unless such agreement appeared on the face of the instrument The section as now drawn extends the draft sections to holders for value and to holders deriving title from holders for value, and also extends section 99 to all agreements not expressed on the instrument

47 Section 82 states the essentials of presentment for acceptance in the case of bills payable at or after sight, to which the draft Bill; section 56, clause (1), refers as bills payable after demand We have added a provision that presentment must be made by a person entitled to demand acceptance, and we have provided for the case in which the drawee cannot after reasonable search be found, and also for the case of a bill directed to the drawee at a particular place

48 Section 83 provides for presentment for sight of a promissory note payable at a certain period after sight—a matter unnoticed by the draft Bill

49 Section 84 alters section 56, clause (3), of the draft Bill by restricting the time allowed to the drawee for deliberation to the departure of the next post, if that should happen within the twenty-four hours otherwise allowed This is the English rule upon the subject

50 Sections 85 and 86 lay down the general rule for presentment for payment, which is not distinctly laid down in the draft Bill

51. Section 87, as to presentment for payment of inland instruments payable after date or sight, embodies section 133 of the draft Bill, but we have excluded cheques from this section, as we have provided (section 19), in accordance with English law, that such instruments are only payable on demand.

52 Section 88 provides for presentment for payment of an inland note payable by instalments—a matter omitted from the draft Bill

in order to charge the maker or drawer, be presented for payment at that place The draft Bill allows presentment to be made in such cases at the place of business or residence of the maker or acceptor.

54 Section 91 embodies the general rule as to the place of presentment.

55 Section 92 extends the rule in section 141 of the draft Bill as to personal presentment to the case of presentment for acceptance

56. Section 93 taken together with section 105 embodies section 101 of the draft Bill, with the modification that the presentment of a cheque must be made before the relation between the drawer and his banker has been altered to the prejudice of the drawer, or the drawer will be discharged from liability The draft Bill discharges the drawer only to the extent of his actual loss, but, according to the English cases, he is discharged altogether by such delay, the payee of the cheque being considered as having, by such delay, treated the cheque as payment, and as thereby electing to look to the drawee alone (see Hopkins v Ware, L R 4 Ex 268)

57 Section 96 is new It provides that presentment for acceptance or payment may be made by or to a duly authorized agent, or the representative of a deceased party or the assignee of an insolvent party

58 Section 98 states the cases in which presentment for payment is excused It embodies sections 89 and 91 of the draft Bill, and adds the case in which the drawer could not suffer damage by want of presentment, in which case presentment is by English law not necessary as against him

59 Chapter VI treats of payment and interest Section 100 declares that payment should be made to the holder, for payment to any other party does not of itself discharge the maker or acceptor The next two sections, 101 and 102, provide for interest upon notes, bills and cheques, and section 103 for indemnity to the payer of an instrument lost or which cannot be produced

61 Section 104 provides for the discharge of a maker, acceptor or indorser, not only when the holder cancels the acceptor's or indorser's name, and when the maker, acceptor or indorser pays the amount due (sections 38, 85, 87, and 88 of the draft Bill), but also where the holder releases or otherwise discharges the maker, acceptor or indorser

62 Section 107 adopts the provisions of 16 & 17 Vict., c 59, section 19 by which the drawer of a cheque payable to order and purporting to be indorsed by or on behalf of the payee is discharged by payment in due course

63 To section 110, which embodies sections 109 and 110 of the draft Bill, we have added an explanation showing what are material alterations in a negotiable instrument

64 Section 111 is new, and provides that in special cases, such as that of a blank stamped instrument, an uncrossed cheque and an instrument endorsed in blank, a material alteration made by an indorsee discharges his indorser from liability to him in respect of the consideration as well as of the instrument

65 Section 113 embodies section 115 of the draft Bill and section 11 of 39 & 40 Vict, c 81, relating to crossed cheques

67 Section 116 substantially agrees with sections 125, 127 and 131 of the draft Bill, but we have altered the description of the parties to whom notice of dishonour by non-acceptance or non-payment must be given the description now adopted is that those parties must include all whom the holder seeks to make severally liable on the instrument, and some one of any parties jointly liable, but notice to the maker, drawee or acceptor is unnecessary.

68 Section 117 collects into one section a number of provisions as to the form of notice and the mode of giving it These provisions are scattered over sections 126, 127, 128 and 130 of the draft Bill We have already pointed out that this section differs from the draft Bill in requiring notice to the party addressed that he will be held liable

69 Section 119 adds to section 132 of the draft Bill the provision that a party receiving notice of dishonour through his agent for presentment is entitled to the same period after such receipt for the purpose of giving notice as the holder has for giving notice

70 Section 121 describes the cases in which no notice of dishonour is necessary These cases include, besides those of dispensation by the party entitled to notice and of inability to give the notice (which are provided for in sections 66, 67, 68, 92 and 93 of the draft Bill), the case of the drawer countermanding payment, the case where the party charged could not suffer from want of such notice, the case of an acceptor who is also a drawer, the case of a promissory note which is not negotiable, and the case in which the party knowing the facts unconditionally promises to pay the amount due on the instrument

72 Section 122 substantially corresponds with section 119 of the draft Bill, but it allows the noting to be made either upon the instrument, or upon a paper attached thereto, or partly upon each And the rules as to noting and protest are confined to bills and notes, whereas the draft Bill extended them to cheques—an extension for which there is apparently no authority

73 We have inserted in sections 123 and 124 provisions regarding protest for better security

74 In section 126 we have reproduced the provisions of Act VI of 1840, section 4, and of 2 & 3 Wm 4, c. 98, as to protest for non-payment after dishonour by non-acceptance.

75 Chapter X contains rules for calculating the reasonable time for presentment for acceptance or payment, for giving notice of dishonour and for noting We have added in section 129 a provision that, in the case of notice of dishonour, when the parties carry on business or live in the same place, such notice is given within a reasonable time if it is despatched in time to reach its destination on the day next after the day of dishonour

76 Chapter XI deals with acceptance and payment for honour We provide (section 131) for the case of protest for better security In accordance with a recent case (In re Overend, Gurney and Company, L R 6 Eq 344), we have declared (section 136) that the payer for honour shall have all the rights, in respect of the bill, of the holder at the time of such payment

77 Chapter XII, which treats of compensation, retains (section 137) the provisions of the draft Bill (section 65) substantially unaltered

78 Chapter XIII treats of foreign bills and restricts to foreign bills the section (73) of the draft Bill, which deals with the dishonour of a bill naming a drawee in case of need

79 The provisions of chapter XIV as to international law are substantially those of the draft Bill

80 In conclusion, we desire to express our obligations to the following honourable and learned Judges, namely, Messrs Turner, Kennedy, West and Nánábhái Haridás to the Madras Chamber of Commerce to Mr Stewart Gladstone, Mr R Stewart, Mr Dickson (late Secretary and Treasurer to the Bank of Bengal), and Mr Scrymgeour, the Calcutta Agent of the Oriental Bank Corporation We recommend that the Bill as now altered be republished in the Gazette of India and the local Gazettes, that the opinions of the Local Governments, the High Courts and the mercantile community be invited thereon, and that its further consideration be stayed till the Council re-assembles in Calcutta

Liability of transferor without indorsement

67 If such transfer, as in the last preceding section mentioned, is made for valuable consideration to a person having no reason to believe in the existence of any matter affecting the validity of the instrument or of the transfer thereof, and the instrument is thereafter avoided as against any party on account of matters prior to such transfer, the transferor is bound to return to the transferee the consideration received, provided that such return is claimed within a reasonable time.

Where an indorser so excludes his liability and afterwards becomes the holder of the instrument, all intermediate indorsers are liable to him or access to him cannot be obtained during business hours,

77. No agreement between any parties to a negotiable instrument which is not expressed thereon, or which is collateral thereto, is binding upon any other holder thereof for valuable consideration, or upon any holder deriving title from a holder for valuable consideration

or intentionally prevents the presentment of the instrument,

(b) as against any party if, after maturity, with knowledge that the instrument has not been presented—

he makes a part payment on account of the amount due on the instrument,

or promises to pay the amount due thereon in whole or in part,

or otherwise waives his right to take advantage of any default in presentment for payment,

(c) as against the drawer, if the drawer could not suffer damage from the want of such presentment

99 When a bill of exchange, accepted payable at a specified bank, has been duly presented there for payment and dishonoured, if the banker so negligently keeps,

deals with or delivers back such bill as to cause loss to the holder, he must compensate the holder for such loss

100 Subject to the provisions of section 104, clause (c), payment of the amount due on a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque must, in order to discharge the maker or acceptor, be made to the holder of the instrument

To whom payment should be made

101. When interest at a specified rate is expressly made payable on a promissory note or bill of exchange, interest shall be calculated at the rate specified, on the amount and from the date of the instrument, until tender or realization of the amount due thereon

Interest when rate specified.

102. When no rate of interest is specified in the instrument, interest on the amount thereof shall, except in cases provided for by the Code of Civil Procedure, section 532, be calculated at the rate of six per centum per annum, from the date at which the same ought to have been paid by the party charged, until tender or realization of the amount due thereon

Interest when no rate specified

Explanation.—When the party charged is the indorser of an instrument dishonoured by non-payment, he is liable to pay interest only from the time that he receives notice of the dishonour

103. Any person liable to pay, and called upon by the holder thereof to pay, the amount due on a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is before payment entitled to have it shown, and is on payment entitled to have it delivered up, to him, or, if the instrument is lost or cannot be produced, to be indemnified against any further claim thereon against him

Delivery of instrument on payment, or indemnity in case of loss

104. The maker, acceptor or indorser respectively of a negotiable instrument is discharged from liability thereon—

Discharge from liability,

(a) to a holder thereof cancelling such acceptor's or indorser's name with intent to discharge him, and to all parties claiming under such holder,

by cancellation,

(b) to a holder thereof otherwise discharging such maker, acceptor or indorser, and to all parties deriving title under such holder after notice of such discharge,

by release,

(c) to all parties thereto, if the instrument is payable to bearer, and such maker, acceptor or indorser pays in due course the amount due thereon

by payment

105 If the holder of a bill of exchange allows the drawee more than twenty-four hours to consider whether he will accept the same, all previous parties not consenting to such allowance are thereby discharged from liability to such holder.

Discharge by allowing drawee more than twenty-four hours to accept

106. When a cheque has not been duly presented for payment, and the drawer thereof has thereby sustained loss or damage, he is discharged from liability to the holder making default in presentment

When cheque not duly presented and drawer damaged thereby

107 Where a cheque, payable to order, purports to be indorsed by or on behalf of the payee, the drawee is discharged by payment in due course

Cheque payable to order

108. If the holder of a bill of exchange acquiesces in a conditional acceptance, or one limited to part of the sum mentioned in the bill, or which substitutes a different place or time for payment, or which is not signed by all the drawees (not being partners), all previous parties whose consent is not obtained to such acceptance are discharged as against the holder and those claiming under him

Parties not consenting discharged by conditional or limited acceptance

109 Alterations made in a promissory note or bill of exchange by a person not a party to such note or bill have no effect upon the liability of a party who signed the instrument as maker or acceptor before such alterations were made

Alterations by stranger in note or bill

110. Save as provided in sections 20, 32, 68 and 108, any material alteration of a negotiable instrument renders the same void as against any party thereto at the time, and not consenting to such alteration, unless such alteration was made in order to carry out the common intention of the original parties

Effect of material alteration

Explanation.—The following are material alterations within the meaning of this section, namely, an alteration of date, amount, or of time or place of payment, the insertion in the body of the instrument of words authorising the transfer thereof, or stating the value thereof to have been received on a particular account, the addition of a name as that of a maker or drawer, obliteration of, addition to, or alteration of, the crossing of a cheque

111. Save as last aforesaid, any such alteration as in the last preceding section mentioned, if made by an indorsee, discharges his indorser from all liability to him in respect of the instrument or the consideration thereof

112. An acceptor or indorser of a negotiable instrument is bound by his acceptance or indorsement notwithstanding any previous alteration of the instrument

Acceptor or indorser bound notwithstanding previous alteration

113. Where a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque has been materially altered, but does not appear to have been so altered, or where a cheque has been crossed but does not appear to have been crossed, payment thereof by a person or banker liable to pay and paying the same according to the apparent tenor thereof at the time of payment and otherwise in due course, shall discharge such person or banker so paying from all liability thereon, and such payment shall not be questioned by reason of the instrument having been altered or the cheque crossed

Payment of instrument on which alteration is not apparent

Dishonour by non-acceptance

114 A bill of exchange is said to be dishonoured by non-acceptance when the drawee, or one of several drawees not being partners, makes default in acceptance upon being duly required to accept the bill

Dishonour by non-payment

115 A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is said to be dishonoured by non-payment when the maker of the note, acceptor of the bill, or drawee of the cheque makes default in payment upon being duly required to pay the same

By and to whom notice should be given

116. When a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment, the holder thereof, or some party thereto who remains liable thereon, must give notice that the instrument has been so dishonoured to all other parties whom the holder seeks to make severally liable thereon, and to some one of several parties whom he seeks to make jointly liable thereon

Nothing in this section renders it necessary to give notice to the maker of the dishonoured promissory note, or the drawee or acceptor of the dishonoured bill of exchange or cheque

Mode in which notice may be given

117. Notice of dishonour may be given by or to a duly authorised agent of the person by or to whom it is required to be given, or, where he has died, to his legal representative, or, where he has been declared an insolvent, to his assignee, may be oral or written, may, if written, be sent by post, and may be in any form, but it must inform the party to whom it is given, either in express terms or by reasonable intendment, that the instrument has been dishonoured, and in what way, and that he will be held liable thereon, and it must be given within a reasonable time after dishonour, at the place of business, or (in case such party has no place of business) at the residence, of the party for whom it is intended

118 Any party receiving notice of dishonour must, in order to charge any prior party, transmit it to such party within a reasonable time, unless such party otherwise receives due notice as provided by section 116

119 When the instrument is deposited with an agent for presentment, the agent is entitled to the same time to give notice to his principal as if he were the holder giving notice of dishonour, and the principal is entitled to a further like period to give notice of dishonour

When party to whom notice given is dead

120 When the party to whom notice of dishonour is despatched is dead, but the party despatching the notice is ignorant of his death, the notice is sufficient

When notice of dishonour is unnecessary

(a) when it is dispensed with by the party entitled thereto,

(b) in order to charge the drawer, when he has countermanded payment,

(c) when the party charged could not suffer damage from want of notice,

(d) when the party entitled to notice cannot after due search be found, or the party bound to give notice is, for any other reason, unable without any fault of his own to give it,

(e) to charge the drawers, when the acceptor is also a drawer,

(f) in the case of a promissory note which is not negotiable,

(g) when the party entitled to notice, knowing the facts, promises unconditionally to pay the amount due on the instrument

122 When a promissory note or bill of exchange has been dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment, the holder may cause such dishonour to be noted by a notary public upon the instrument or upon a paper attached thereto, or partly upon each

Such note must be made within a reasonable time after dishonour, and must specify the date of dishonour, the reason, if any, assigned for such dishonour, or, if not expressly dishonoured, the reason why the holder treats the instrument as dishonoured, and the notary's charges

123 When a promissory note or bill of exchange has been dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment, the holder may, within a reasonable time, cause such fact to be noted and certified by a notary public Such certificate is called a protest and shall, in the absence of proof to the contrary, in a suit upon the instrument, be deemed evidence of the fact of dishonour

Protest for better security

When the acceptor of a bill of exchange has become insolvent, or his credit has been publicly impeached, before the maturity of the bill, the holder may, within a reasonable time, cause a notary public to demand better security of the acceptor, and on its being refused may, within a reasonable time, cause such facts to be noted and certified as aforesaid Such certificate is called a protest for better security

Contents of protest

(a) either the instrument itself, or a literal transcript of the instrument and of everything written or printed thereupon,

(b) the name of the person for whom and against whom the instrument has been protested,

(c) a statement that payment or acceptance, or better security, as the case may be, has been demanded of such person by the notary public, the terms of his answer, if any, or a statement that he gave no answer, or that he could not be found,

(d) when the note or bill has been dishonoured, the place and time of dishonour, and when better security has been refused, the place and time of refusal,

(e) the subscription of the notary public making the protest,

(f) in the event of an acceptance for honour or of a payment for honour, the name of the person by whom, of the person for whom, and the manner in which, such acceptance or payment was offered and effected

Notice of protest

125 When a promissory note or bill of exchange is required by law to be protested, notice of such protest must be given instead of notice of dishonour, in the same manner and subject to the same conditions, but the notice may be given by the notary public who makes the protest

Protest for non payment after dishonour by non acceptance

126 All bills of exchange drawn payable at some other place than the place mentioned as the residence of the drawee, and which are dishonoured by non-acceptance, may, without further presentment to the drawee, be protested for non-payment, in the place specified for payment, unless paid before maturity

Reasonable time

127. In determining what is a reasonable time for presentment for acceptance or payment, for giving notice of dishonour and for noting, regard shall be had to the nature of the instrument and the usual course of dealing with respect to similar instruments, and in calculating such time, days which are not business days shall be excluded

Reasonable time for presentment

128. Presentment is made within a reasonable time, within the meaning of sections 82, 93, 94 and 95, if it is made on the business day next after that on which the holder received the bill, negotiable instrument or cheque referred to, or when there is no more delay than is occasioned by the residence of the parties to the bill, negotiable instrument or cheque in different places

Illustration

A draws on B resident at Calcutta, a bill of exchange in favour of C payable at sight, and sends it to C at Benares C, the day after he receives it, indorses it to D, and despatches it to D at Calcutta D, the day after he receives the bill, presents it for payment The delay which has taken place in presenting the bill is not unreasonable

Reasonable time for giving notice of dishonour

129. If the holder and the party to whom notice of dishonour is given carry on business or live (as the case may be) in different places, such notice is given within a reasonable time if it is despatched by the next post or on the day next after the day of dishonour

If the said parties carry on business or live in the same place, such notice is given within a reasonable time if it is despatched in time to reach its destination on the day next after the day of dishonour

Reasonable time for transmitting such notice

130. A party receiving notice of dishonour transmits the notice within a reasonable time if he transmits it within the same time after its receipt as he would have had to give notice if he had been the holder

Acceptance for honour.

131 When a bill of exchange has been noted or protested for non-acceptance or for better security, any person may, with the consent of the holder, by writing on the bill, accept the same for the honour of any party thereto

Acceptance not specifying for whose honour it is made

132 Where the acceptance does not express for whose honour it is made, it shall be deemed to be made for the honour of the drawer

133 An acceptor for honour binds himself to all parties subsequent to the party for whose honour he accepts to pay the amount of the bill if the drawee do not, and such party, and all prior parties, are liable in their respective capacities to compensate the acceptor for honour for all loss or damage sustained by him in consequence of such acceptance

But an acceptor for honour is not liable to the holder of the bill unless it is presented, or (in case the address given by such acceptor on the bill is a place other than the place where the bill is made payable) forwarded for presentment, not later than the day next after the day of its maturity

134 An acceptor for honour cannot be charged unless the bill has at its maturity been presented to the drawee for payment and has been dishonoured by him, and noted or protested for such dishonour

Payment for honour

135 When a bill of exchange has been noted or protested for non-payment, any person may pay the same for the honour of any party liable to pay the same, provided that the person so paying has previously declared before a notary public the party for whose honour he pays, and that such declaration has been recorded by such notary public

Right of payer for honour

136 Any person so paying, as in the last preceding section provided, is entitled to all the rights, in respect of the bill, of the holder at the time of such payment, and may recover from the party for whose honour he pays all sums so paid, with interest thereon and with all expenses properly incurred in making such payment

Rules as to compensation

137. The compensation payable in case of dishonour of a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque, by any party liable to the holder or any indorsee, shall (except in cases provided for by the Code of Civil Procedure, section 532) be determined by the following rules —

(a) The holder is entitled to the amount due upon the instrument, together with the expenses properly incurred in presenting, noting and protesting it,

(b) When the person charged resides at a place different from that at which the instrument was payable, the holder is entitled to receive such sum at the current rate of exchange between the two places,

(c) An indorser who, being liable, has paid the amount due on the same is entitled to the amount so paid with interest at six per centum per annum from the date of payment until tender or realization thereof, together with all expenses caused by the dishonour and payment,

(d) When the person charged and the indorser reside at different places, the indorser is entitled to receive such sum at the current rate of exchange between the two places,

(e) The party entitled to compensation may draw a bill upon the party liable to compensate him, payable at sight or on demand, for the amount due to him together with all expenses properly incurred by him Such bill must be accompanied by the instrument dishonoured and the protest thereof (if any) If such bill is dishonoured, the party dishonouring the same is liable to make compensation thereof in the same manner as in the case of the original bill

138 Where a drawee in case of need is named in a foreign bill of exchange, the bill is not dishonoured until dishonoured by such drawee

Drawee in case of need

139. Foreign bills of exchange must be protested for dishonour when such protest is required by the law of the place where they are drawn

140 In the absence of a contract to the contrary, the liability of the maker of a foreign promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is regulated in all essential matters by the law of the place where he made the instrument the liability of the acceptor, by the law of the place where he accepted the instrument the liability of the indorser, by the law of the place where he indorsed the instrument

Law governing liability of maker, acceptor or indorser of foreign instrument

Illustration

A bill of exchange was drawn by A in California, where the rate of interest is 25 per cent, and accepted by B, payable in Washington, where the rate of interest is 6 per cent The bill is endorsed in British India, and is dishonoured An action on the bill is brought against B in British India He is liable to pay interest at the rate of 6 per cent only, but if A is charged as drawer, A is liable to pay interest at the rate of 25 per cent

141. Where a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is made payable in a different place from that in which it is made or indorsed, the law of the place where it is made payable determines what constitutes dishonour and what notice of dishonour is sufficient

Illustration

A bill of exchange drawn and indorsed in British India, but accepted payable in France, is dishonoured The indorsee causes it to be protested for such dishonour, and gives notice thereof in accordance with the law of France, though not in accordance with the rules herein contained in respect of bills which are not foreign The notice is sufficient

142. If a negotiable instrument is made, drawn, accepted, or indorsed out of British India, but in accordance with the law of British India, the circumstance that any agreement evidenced by such instrument is invalid according to the law of the country wherein it was entered into does not invalidate any subsequent acceptance or endorsement made thereon in British India

Instrument made, &c, out of British India, but in accordance with its law

143. Until the contrary is proved, the law of any foreign country regarding promissory notes, bills of exchange and cheques shall be presumed to be the same as that of British India

Presumption as to foreign law

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 17th October 1877, and was referred to a Select Committee —

No 18 OF 1877

A Bill to amend the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873

For the purpose of amending the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873, it is hereby enacted as follows — Preamble

Addition to Act XIX of 1873, s 29

1 To section 29 of the same Act the following clause shall be added —

"EXPLANATION —Charges incurred in the preparation of village-maps shall be deemed to be charges within the meaning of this section"

Amendment of Act XIX of 1873, s 194

2 In section 194 of the said Act, for the words "otherwise rendered" the words "declared by the Local Government" shall be substituted

Amendment of Act XIX of 1873, s 199

3 To section 199 of the same Act the following clause shall be added (namely) —

"Persons whose property is under the superintendence of the Court of Wards shall not be competent to create, without the sanction of the Court, any charge upon, or interest in, such property or any part thereof"

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The primary object of this Bill, which has been recommended by the Local Government, is to deprive persons whose estates are under the management of the Court of Wards of power to charge or alienate those estates. The opportunity has been taken to make a slight improvement in the wording of section 194 of the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873, and to remove a doubt as to the power of applying the patwárí-fund raised under section 29 to defray the cost of preparing those village-maps, on which the correctness of the Patwárí's records mainly depends

Note by the Hon'ble T C Hope, dated 9th October 1877

2. As Act VII of 1865 has never been extended to Madras or Bombay, and much confusion and uncertainty might be created by its continuing in force in so far as not superseded by the present Bill, we have provided (section 1) for its repeal, as also that of Acts VII of 1869 and XIII of 1873, in any territories to which the present Bill may be extended

We have also provided that such extension shall be of the whole Bill, and not of parts only since it will always remain optional with Local Governments to exercise or not the powers which any chapter or section confers

3 We have improved the definitions of "Forest-officer" and "Forest-produce," and have assimilated that of "cattle" to the definition in the Cattle Trespass Act.

4 In order to avoid the delay and expense of an elaborate preliminary demarcation, which was objected to in many quarters, we have provided (section 4) that the notification of the proposal to constitute a Reserved Forest may be in general terms, but have indicated more clearly (section 19) that the final demarcation must be precise

5 We have made more clear (section 4) the intention that the Forest Settlement Officer should not, except under very exceptional circumstances, be a Forest-officer But, in deference to representations from British Burma and the North-West Provinces, we have provided an option of entrusting the forest settlement to two or three officers instead of one.

6 In order to meet the case of the wild tribes and illiterate persons who will in many instances be the possessors of rights over forest lands, we have allowed (section 6) claims to be preferred orally to the Forest Settlement Officer and made it obligatory on him to take such statements down in writing

7 With the same view we have required (section 7) the Forest Settlement Officer to inquire into the existence of rights, by searching the Government records and taking evidence, even though the people themselves, through ignorance or neglect, may not appear to claim them

8 We have also provided (section 9) for the hearing of claims not preferred within the time prescribed by section 6, whenever claimants can shew sufficient cause for their delay

9 In section 10 we have made more clear the alternative courses which may be pursued in the case of claims to or over land, and have also provided for compensation being given wholly or partly in land where the parties prefer land to money.

10 From section 12 the provisions contained in section 10 of the Bill as introduced for the rejection of rights which were not habitually exercised by the claimants at the time of the notification under section 4, or which were not required for the beneficial use of the land or premises or of the person claiming the same, have been omitted

11 Sections 16 and 17 express more clearly than section 15 of the Bill as introduced the intention of the latter as to the authorities by whom and the manner in which appeals are to be heard

12 We have made a new provision (section 21) for the revision by the Local Government, at any time not exceeding five years from the date of the Notification under section 19, of any settlement effected under section 14 which experience has shewn to be unworkable

13 We have provided (section 24) that rights appendant to any land or house may be freely alienated therewith

14 Section 28 has been amended in phraseology, so as to admit of forests, the use of which is essential to village communities, or in which such communities have rights jointly with Government, being assigned to such communities, under suitable precautions against waste or misappropriation

15 In section 32 of the Bill as introduced it was provided that the provisions of chapter IV, regarding district or (as we prefer to term them) Protected forests, should be without prejudice to all existing rights of individuals or communities In order, however, that holders of rights may not be put to the inconvenience and expense of proving them in order to establish their immunity from the restrictions of the chapter, we have provided (section 29) that no land shall be constituted a Protected Forest unless the nature and extent of the rights of Government and other persons in it have been enquired into and recorded at a survey or settlement or in some other sufficient manner At the same time it has been left open to any person to dispute the correctness of such record

16 In section 30 we have inserted a provision to permit of the closing of portions of a Protected Forest for a limited period, provided the remainder of the forest be sufficient and convenient for the exercise of rights thus temporarily suspended in the portion closed This provision is in accordance with the rules in the North-West Provinces made under the existing law, and is generally considered necessary for purposes of renovation

17 In section 32 we have given power to make rules to regulate the exercise of recorded rights, so as to prevent, in the interest of the community, waste and injury to the forest

18 In order to preclude hardship to the owners of private forests from the operation of chapter V, we have enabled such owners (section 37) to require the Government to acquire the and for public purposes.

19 We have added a section (38) to enable Government, at the request of owners of land, either to administer such land as a Reserved or Protected Forest, or to apply to it all or any of the provisions of the Bill This improvement has been made at the suggestion of the Panjáb Government, with special reference to sacred and other private forests in that province, but we have reason to believe that the option of obtaining for their forest property the same legal protection, and also (if desired) the same skilled administration, as the Government provides for its own, is likely to be welcomed by the owners of rent-free estates and other private property in many parts of India

20 We have restricted (section 39) the power of levying a duty on timber produced in British India to timber in respect of which the Government has any rights The holders of lands under lákhiráj, inámi or other tenures in which forest rights are included will thus not be interfered with We have likewise validated the levy of such duties now existing, which are numerous in certain parts of India

21 In section 45 we have empowered the Local Government to exempt any particular class of timber from the operation of the section, partly in order not to interfere with the collection of drift wood for fuel, which is common among the poorer classes in certain localities.

22 We have recast the earlier sections of chapter IX, so as to bring them into closer conformity with similar provisions in other special laws

23 In section 63 we have inserted a provision that no person shall be arrested for any act which is an offence under chapter IV, excepting for a violation of a prohibition under clause (c) of section 30.

24 In section 67 we have restricted the power of Forest-officers, as regards compounding, to the receipt of compensation for damage committed

25 We have enlarged section 73 by empowering the Local Government to make rules regarding the rewards to be paid to officers and informers out of the proceeds of fines and confiscations, and for the preservation, reproduction and disposal of trees and timber belonging to Government but grown on lands belonging to, or in the occupation of, private persons

26 We have inserted a new section (77) to enable the Government to enforce service in cases where persons are entitled to a share in the produce of forests on the condition of duly performing service in connection with such forests

27 We have carefully considered the objections made by the Government of Madras to the original draft of the Bill which was circulated previous to its introduction into the Council We are of opinion that the improvements which have now been made in both the language and matter of the Bill are so material as substantially to meet these objections, some of which were based on a misapprehension of what was intended It appears to us that the Bill, especially considering the latitude for meeting local peculiarities which the power of making rules affords, is now not unsuitable to the circumstances of the Madras Presidency, and is such as might be accepted by the Local Government At the same time, being permissive in its application, it contains nothing to prevent separate local legislation, if that course should be eventually preferred

28 The publication ordered by the Council has taken place, but we consider republication to be desirable

29 We recommend that the Bill as now amended be passed

A Bill to provide for the recovery in British India of wages due to, and expenses incurred in respect of, certain seamen and apprentices

Preamble

Whereas by the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, section 213, and by the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1855, section 16, it is enacted that the Board of Trade may, in manner therein mentioned, and in the name of Her Majesty, sue for and recover the wages due to, and expenses incurred in respect of, the distressed seamen and apprentices in the said sections mentioned, And whereas it is expedient to empower such persons as the Governor General in Council may think fit to sue for and recover in British India in the name of the Secretary of State for India in Council, such wages and expenses, when the same are charged upon any ship, or recoverable from any master, owner or other person, found in British India, It is hereby enacted as follows —

Power to appoint persons to sue

1 The Governor General in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, authorize, either generally or specially, such persons as he thinks fit to sue for and recover, in manner in the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, section 213, provided, any wages or expenses recoverable under the said sections of the said Acts in cases where such wages and expenses are, under the same sections, a charge upon any ship, or recoverable from any master, owner or other person, within the jurisdiction of any Court in British India Every person so authorized shall be entitled to sue and recover accordingly in any such Court, and shall be deemed to be a person filling a public office within the meaning of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, section 57, clause 7

Suits, &c, to be instituted in name of Secretary of State for India in Council.

2 All suits and proceedings under this Act shall be instituted and carried on in the name of the Secretary of State for India in Council

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

By the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, section 213, and 18 & 19 Vict, c 91, section 16, provision is made for the recovery by the Board of Trade of wages due to, and expenses incurred in relieving, distressed seamen and apprentices in foreign and colonial ports These distressed seamen are in many cases Natives of India, and belong to ships which are either registered in or trade to India, and which are seldom, if ever, found within the ports of the United Kingdom In such cases the Board of Trade has considerable difficulty in recovering the sums expended When the distressed seamen are Natives of this country, these expenses are charged to the Indian revenue It is therefore desirable that the Government of India should be enabled to empower some person here to sue, in case the ships or persons chargeable are found in this country The Bill effects this object by providing that such suits may be brought in the name of the Secretary of State in Council by such persons as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, generally or specially authorize in that behalf The Bill will also enable persons so authorized to sue in all cases in which the ships or persons chargeable are found in this country, even though the Indian revenue may not be concerned

Weekly condition report of the distressed districts of the Mysore Province.

PROVINCE OF MYSORE.

(No 35)

Special famine report for the week ending 6th October 1877

Statement No 35, regarding famine relief operations in the Province of Mysore, for the week ending the 6th October 1877

The rainfall was generally lighter The fair weather has been beneficial to the crops, especially to ragi, which was suffering in places from excess of moisture Harvesting continues, sowing operations are general, and lands are being prepared for the late crops The tanks have got a good supply, many have been breached, and the prospects of the late harvest are good A considerable area in some taluks is reported unsown, and to remedy this liberal grants of takavi for seed grain will be made under proper precautions The Famine Commissioner is now on tour, and in consultation with local officers is arranging suitable relief works in each taluk, organizing the relief camps, and taking measures for a more thorough system of village inspection and for giving readier access to relief A Famine Code has been issued laying down detailed instructions for the management of professional and civil works and of relief camps, providing for medical assistance and special treatment of persons reduced by want and securing that none requiring aid and support are, owing either to ignorance or neglect, allowed to remain unrelieved in their villages Generally it may be said that prospects are encouraging, but that the present condition of the people and the high prices of staple articles of food necessitate the utmost exertion and watchfulness on the part of the authorities On the other hand, there is an evident disposition on the part of the people to return to their ordinary occupations, and applicants for relief are fewer

2 The imports of grain by rail amounted only to 2,486 tons, or 2,248 tons less than last week, due probably to the influence of falling prices caused partly by the better prospect and partly by the production of local stores hitherto concealed. The imports were received from the following quarters —

	Tons
From Madras	2,260
„ Beypore and Palghat	95
„ Nagpore, Negapatam and Trichinopoly	60
„ other places	71
Total	2,486

From Bangalore 1,726 tons were exported to places in the interior, or 25 less than for the week ending the 29th ultimo. The export was to the following quarters,—

Bellary and Chitaldroog	224
Mysore	508
Usur (Salem District)	257

3 Prices are fluctuating, and owing to a change in the form of submission of the returns, information is not so complete But the downward tendency noticed last week continues and is again most marked in Bangalore The following statement shews the maximum and minimum prices so far as they have been returned,—

	Maximum in lbs per rupee 2nd sort rice	Ragi	Minimum in lbs per rupee 2nd sort rice.	Ragi

Hassan „ (for 4 taluks) .	11½	15	10	11
Shimoga „	12	15	7½	8
Chitaldroog „	11	18	8½	11½

4 The number of laborers employed on civil works was 27,009, or 4,029 less than last week There was a decrease of 1,372 in the Bangalore District; of 1,264 in Túmkúr, 1,450 in Mysore, and of 1,793 in Chitaldroog and an increase of 1,227 in Kolar The decrease is partly accounted for by the general causes already indicated, partly by transfer to larger works under professional supervision and partly by the exclusion from some of the returns of people employed on other than relief works, i e, works sanctioned from relief funds.

5 Under the Public Works Department 35,497 laborers were employed, or an increase of 7,842 The increase was almost entirely in the Bangalore and Túmkúr Districts The following is a list of some of the works recently begun —

	Number employed
State Railway	7,600
Alsur Tank	2,196
Bangalore-Mysore Road	2,296
Bangalore water-supply	2,594
Bangalore-Túmkúr Road	678
Nelamangala-Túmkúr Road	2,044
Hiriyur-Bellary Road	1,411
Mysore water-supply	2,594
	21,413

From which it will be seen that a considerable portion of the labor has been drafted to the larger works.

6 The numbers gratuitously fed in relief camps amounted to 1,03,750, shewing a decrease of 22,454, chiefly in Túmkúr, Chitaldroog and Hassan —

Total	1,26,204	1,03,750	22,454

7 The number on civil and professional works amounts to 62,506 compared with 1,03,750 on charitable relief The difficulty has not been so much in getting people to work as in providing work for them, and the accounts of their condition upon works and of the outturn of labor are satisfactory, and particularly so where gangs have been for any time upon the works On the other hand, the condition of the people gratuitously fed continues depressed and unhealthy

† For details and dates see table appended.

The week's rainfall has been, generally speaking, light in the north, and, gradually increasing through the central districts, has been heavy in the south In a few talukas in Khandesh, Nasik and Ahmednagar the crops have suffered for want of moisture, while in Sholāpur, Satara, Kaladgi and Belgaum some injury to the kharif has already been done by too much rain, and no break in the weather has yet occurred

2 Prices are considerably easier in the three districts to the north of Poona, probably the drier weather bringing the harvest nearer is the principal cause of this advantage In the other districts, however, though the relief is not so considerable, there still is, on the whole, an improvement the only district in which there is none is Dharwar Prices are absolutely highest in Kaladgi and Dharwar, but in both of these districts, though jowari is selling at only 12 or 13 pounds a rupee, there is maize or other small grain of the new year in the market selling at 19 or 20 pounds a rupee

3 There has been again a substantial decrease in the number of the labourers on relief works The whole number is now under one lakh

4 Cholera has unfortunately again broken out in Satara, where 24 deaths occurred during the week On the whole, there have been 93 deaths in the week against 85 last week

5. Written reports have been received from the Collectors of Nasik, Poona and Sholapur for the week ending the 13th instant No weekly report has been received from Satara From the other five Collectorates reports for the week ending 6th instant have been received The usual table showing the rainfall and the prices of staple food grains in the weeks to which the reports relate is appended There is little change to notice with regard to the season and the crops There are still complaints of want of rain in parts of Khandesh, Nasik and Ahmednagar, while in other parts of Ahmednagar and in some of the districts to the south the rain has been too heavy The Collector of Kaladgi in particular reports that a break in the weather is urgently needed to ripen the kharif The later telegraphic information summarized above gives a somewhat darker colour to these complaints of excessive rain.

6 The following table gives the expenditure by Government, during the week ending 29th September, upon gratuitous relief, and in payments made to the young children of labourers employed upon relief works The number of children has fallen during the week from 55,972 to 48,732 No accurate comparison can be made of the number of labourers on charitable relief, as the returns from Satara are incomplete The numbers may be taken approximately at 90,862, or less by 5,221 than those given for the preceding week And as by reason of the Kaladgi returns for that week being incomplete, the numbers shown in the last statement were less by 1,438 than the real number of persons on charitable relief, the actual decrease for the week ending 29th September is about 6,659 —

7 In the following table are enumerated the works under Public Works Department Agency upon which the average daily number of persons employed has amounted to five hundred for the week ending 6th instant The total number engaged on these large works constitutes 72 3/4 per cent on the whole number of labourers upon relief works The table has hitherto been confined to works on which one thousand persons were employed, but as the numbers on all works are now so rapidly decreasing, it has been extended now so as to include works engaging five hundred labourers —

8 Tables A and B are brought up to the week ending 6th instant The number of persons on works under Public Works Department agency in the nine affected districts was at this date 90,883, and on works under Civil agency 21,338 The percentage of persons upon works under Civil agency has thus risen during the week from 15 to 19 per cent of the whole number employed The total expenditure upon works in the nine affected districts has amounted to Rs 99,71,880, which, with the expenditure of Rs 1 22,077 upon works in Ratnagiri and Kanara, and Rs 8,67,110 from the Collectors' discretionary allowances, gives a total of Rs 1,09,61,067

10 From the appended table showing the condition of the affected Native States, it will be seen that the accounts of the crops continue favourable, and that prices, though they have risen again at Savanur and Jath, on the whole maintain their downward tendency. The number of people upon the relief works continues to diminish slowly.

11. During the week ending 13th October, 40 tons of food-grains were exported from Bombay to the Southern Mahratta ports, and 4,183 tons were carried by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway to stations upon the Poona-Sholapur and Bhusawal-Nasik lines, making a total of 4,223 tons for the week This is more by 386 tons than the importations of the previous week. The table below shows the quantities of grain sent by sea and rail from October 1876 till the 13th October 1877 to the Southern Mahratta ports and the railway stations in the distressed districts. It will be seen that the total amount delivered up to the 13th October was 423,448 tons :—

2 Prices are falling almost everywhere The district averages show rise, and that but slight, only in the cases of dry grains in Tanjore, cumboo in Coimbatore and Chingleput, and cholum in the Nilgiris, everywhere else there is a fall. Taking all grains, the district rates show that, of the districts in the plains, prices now range highest in Salem In the Nellore district there is not much change, the fall of prices is observed in the northern taluks adjoining Kistna, where rates have been falling for some weeks In Cuddapah change is most marked in the three north-western taluks, and in Kadiri and Madanapalli, where prices, especially of dry-grains, are cheaper In Kadiri there is a fall of three seers and upwards in the prices of ragi and cholum, or nearly 50 per cent In Bellary also prices are falling or stationary almost everywhere In Chingleput ragi has fallen at 5 stations out of 6, the rise in cholum applies to one only In North Arcot the only cases of rise of price are rice at Palmanair and cholum at Arni, and these are fractional only. In South Arcot there is a considerable fall in Trinomalai, elsewhere rates are either stationary or falling The rise in dry grain in Tanjore is due to the Pattukottai taluk, and that adjoining it, Mannargudi In Trichinopoly cholum is not sold, other grains are cheaper owing to harvest In Madura rates are falling except in Periakolum, where rice and cholum are stationary and ragi has risen At head-quarters there was a strong fall In Tinnevelly also prices are easier. In Coimbatore rice has risen a little in Collegal, and there has been a sudden increase, amounting to 25 or 30 per cent in the rates for ragi and cumboo in Dharapuram On the Nilgiris there is a satisfactory fall in ragi, and in Malabar in rice In Salem prices at head-quarters are falling, and fluctuating elsewhere the rise in the district averages is due to the Kistnagiri taluk. The highest and lowest quotations for rice and dry grain are given as usual in the margin The range is in many cases great, and is due chiefly to harvest having been got in some taluks and not in others.

3 Rainfall.—All districts received rain, and the district averages for the week fell below an inch only in Nellore and Chingleput and in the distressed taluks of Tinnevelly In the north of Nellore nearly two inches fell, and a nearly equal amount in the extreme south of Chingleput, but the intervening tract received but slight showers In Cuddapah the rain was heavy and well distributed, especially in the eastern taluks and the sub-division. Good rain is reported from all taluks of Bellary except Hadgalli, more than three inches fell in Kudlighi. In North Arcot the rain was very heavy, 11 42 inches are reported from Polur, but this must be erroneous The chief fall was in the upland taluks, from Kangundi to Tripatti In South Arcot the fall in Trinomalai and Tindivanum, adjoining Chingleput, and in Virdachellam was good; in Tanjore light but general, good in Puttukottai, in Trichinopoly from two to three inches except in Udayarpolliam, in Madura 5 05 inches in Melur, four inches in Pereakulam, and very good in other taluks, except Ramnad In Tinnevelly, Ottapidarum got 1 8 inches, the rain was very light elsewhere At Erode in Coimbatore 6 35 inches were registered, and the southern taluks received heavy rain On the Nilgiris and in the Collegal taluk there was good rain There was but little in the Wynaad, but the Malabar average was nevertheless 4 29 inches.

6 In the above statement the numbers on the Buckingham Canal are included under Nellore district They were 27,160 against 27,048 on the 22nd September The Nellore district returns are again grossly imperfect, no reports having been sent in by the officers of the Public Works Department The Board request that orders on the subject may be issued in that department In Cuddapah there is a large decrease amounting to 10,601 in Pulivendla, Proddatur, and Jammalamadugu ascribed to closing of certain works and weeding the gangs of persons who can live without State aid In other taluks of the principal division the changes are slight In the sub-division there is decrease spread over all taluks Of 6,019 owing to relegation of weakly coolies to village relief and to return of able-bodied persons to their villages for cultivation The decrease in the Bellary district is very slight on the whole; the details for taluks are given marginally. It is probable that the numbers have really increased as the fall in Hadgalli and Raidrug is ascribed to imperfect return That in Penkondah is due to weeding of gangs Works have been temporarily stopped in Harpunhalli, and there are none in progress in Alur or Tadpatry The increase in Adoni is ascribed to retention of immigrants, in Dharmavaram to more complete return, and in Kudlighi to commencement of fresh works. The Board do not understand why the numbers in Raidrug should be so high compared with other taluks The Collector's attention is called to the fact The Bellary-Hubli Railway employs 5,372 persons in the Bellary taluk and 2,976 in Hospett, total 8,348 against 8,138 on the 22nd September

Total	100 500	99,587	— 913

7 The increase in the numbers on works in Kurnool is not explained in the Collector's telegram In Chingleput the numbers on the South Indian Railway have fallen from 9,464 to 8,588 The numbers on other works under professional agency have increased by 3,123, and those on civil works have decreased by nearly the same amount The increase in North Arcot is to a great extent nominal, the Punganur return having been wanting last week Numbers have increased in Kalastri and Kungundi, but decreased elsewhere, and the true result for the whole district is a decrease of about 3,500. The increase in South Arcot is on professional agency works in Kallakurchy The fall in Tanjore is due to the cessation of the work of forming relief camps and to the coolies having been sent to the Coleroon embankment works or returned home for cultivation, and that in Madura to imperfect returns from Dindigul A return has been received from Tinnevelly showing that 1,806 coolies are now employed under the Department of Public Works In Coimbatore numbers on works have risen owing to greater distress and to drafts of able-bodied persons from the camps The Salem increase results from imperfect returns last week

8. The numbers in Madras town were 24,352 against 23,160 on the 22nd September. Details are given in the margin.

9. The information regarding works under the professional department is so imperfect that the Board do not submit the usual statement on the point this week

10 Rates of Wages.—There is little change in wages In the taluks of Chendragiri Wallaja, Tritani, Arconum, and Maderpauk in the district of North Arcot wages on the old scale appear to be still paid. In Bellary money-wages have been substituted for those paid partly in kind in Penkonda, the reverse change has taken place in Raidrug, while in Hospett the following scale has been introduced —men ¾ seer + ½ anna, women ¾ seer + ¼ anna, children ¾ seer + ¼ anna, which accords with no scale prescribed.

* Particulars not known

12 There is a small decrease on the whole, resulting from decrease in camps and increase in village relief The change in the character of the camp relief under recent orders probably accounts for this Numbers have fallen considerably in Salem and Coimbatore, where they were excessive, and also in South Arcot and Cuddapah, but they have increased in Bellary and Kurnool The decrease in the Nellore district occurs under camp relief, and is partly due to incompleteness of returns. Of the decrease in Cuddapah the greater portion is under village relief, and occurs almost entirely in the sub-division, where numbers have fallen by 10,106 owing chiefly to elimination of able-bodied persons from the lists Village relief has increased in Bellary to the full extent above shown Heavy rise in numbers occurs in the Bellary, Kudlighi, Harpanhalli, and Gooty returns, and in most of these cases is due to imperfection of return last week About two-thirds of the decrease in Chingleput is under camp relief The increase in North Arcot and the decrease in South Arcot are both to a great extent nominal and due to wrong returns The rise in Madura is of the same kind The Tanjore comparative return is as usual utterly wrong and useless. The decrease in Coimbatore occurs under camp reliefs, chiefly in the taluks of Pulladum and Udumulpettah, and is due to drafts to works and to improvement in the season In Salem the decrease is under village relief and is most marked in the Dharampuri and Tripatur taluks

13. The general statement of gratuitous relief shows that there are now 1,026 inspection circles, and that relief is organized in 13,879 villages out of 30,731 in the distressed tract (Kistna excluded)

14 The following statement shows, as usual, the mortality in camps and under village relief There is evidently a gross mistake in the Chingleput returns, 4,280 persons under village relief are reported to have died in Trivellore taluk on a strength of 28,929. The Collector is inquiring on the subject The mortality is very high in camps in Cuddapah and North Arcot and in the Trichinopoly district —

Acting Secretary

Famine Relief

Proceedings of the Government of Madras, Revenue Department (Famine Relief), dated 15th October 1877, F R No 2331

The Governor in Council has, by a telegraphic order of the 13th instant, called the attention of Collectors to the importance of utilising to the utmost the present favourable change in the season The recent rainfall has materially restored the condition of growing crops, many crops are being now harvested, land is nearly everywhere in a fit state for cultivation, and the rains of the north-east monsoon may be shortly expected Prices have been gradually declining In this state of the country it is of the utmost importance to its future prosperity that every exertion should be at once made to induce, encourage, and facilitate the return of people to their own homes and ordinary occupations There may not unnaturally exist some feeling of hesitation amongst many, especially amongst those who have wandered from their own districts, to leave their present shelter, but the interests of the country demand that every available hand shall be turned to agriculture, and every exertion used to increase and expedite the growth of the newly-sown crops, on which the people must rely to restore the prices of food-grains to a normal state

2 That this necessity is appreciated by the people is evinced by the fact that large numbers have already of their own accord left works and camps for agricultural employ, and that in many districts the area cultivated is larger than usual at this period Yet in these districts more, and in others much, can be done, and no divisional officer should feel satisfied while any available land in his division remains uncultivated

3 The Governor in Council desires also to impress on Collectors the urgent necessity for reducing, as rapidly as may be, the numbers who are receiving State charity on relief-works, in relief-camps, &c, and consequently of diminishing the heavy drain on current expenditure

4 The general principles on which relief is to be administered are already laid down in G O of 24th September, No 2847 The Government have spared no pains to relieve and sustain, and also to provide employ for, the people, now, however, agricultural or other usual employment is obtainable, and district officers must take care that the measures which were necessary for relief of the famine-stricken are not converted into a prolonged demoralising and pauperising charity

5 A judicious but firm application of the tests and limitations laid down in the Government Order referred to will prevent the danger while meeting any necessity, but laxity or indecision in any district may not improbably result in the continued dependence of a large pauperised population on State aid through another year

6 Where the numbers on relief-works are materially diminished, proportionate diminution should be made in the establishments, and labour should be consolidated so as to economise supervision When the numbers in camps are materially diminished, subordinate establishments should be also diminished, or otherwise utilised, permanent officers of the districts being allowed to resume their ordinary work. The general relief organisation of a district, however, is not to be reduced or broken up until further instructions from the Government, the nature of which will be regulated by the advent and extent of the monsoon rains

7 The Governor in Council has had before him applications for sanction for many new works of a petty and local character, the possible benefit to arise from which can only be of a purely temporary character. He considers such works undesirable, but does not, however, desire to fetter the discretion of Collectors, and therefore will not generally refuse to sanction works recommended by them, but the sanction will only be accorded upon the distinct understanding that Collectors, before recommending any works for sanction, satisfy themselves that such works are essential to the proper extent of relief, and are not urged from motives of purely local interest, or instigated by subordinates who hope for an opportunity to make an illicit gain from the relief expenditure.

J H GARSTIN,

Additional Secretary to the Government.

No 979, dated Simla, 26th October 1877.

From—C. BERNARD, Esq, C.S.I, Additional Secy to the Govt of India, P W Dept (Famine),

To—J H GARSTIN, Esq, Additional Secy to the Govt of Madras, Revenue Dept

IT is with the greatest satisfaction that His Excellency the Viceroy in Council has received a copy of the Proceedings of the Madras Government in the Famine Department, No 2331, dated the 15th instant

2 The favourable change in the season which is described in your first paragraph is most hopeful, and His Excellency in Council is glad to learn by a telegram received last night that the north-east monsoon has at length arrived to supplement and complete the hopeful prospects for the future

3 The orders of His Grace the Governor urging all district officers to take the fullest advantage of this satisfactory change in the prospects of the season by inducing people to return to their ordinary avocations, are most judicious and opportune, for, as he justly observes, "the interests of the country now demand that every available hand shall be turned to agriculture" and no less necessary is the caution conveyed to district officers to "take care that the measures which were necessary for relief of the famine districts are not converted into a prolonged demoralising and pauperising charity"

4. The returns received during the past three weeks show that with the returning prospects of agricultural prosperity, the orders issued by the Madras Government on the 24th September have already borne good fruit, the numbers of people receiving Government aid having diminished during the current month by $6\frac{3}{4}$ lakhs, or by more than one-fourth of the whole number; and His Excellency in Council doubts not that with the continued improvement in agricultural prospects and with the steady fall in the price of food, which should be the natural consequence thereof, the admirable orders now issued by the Madras Government will have the effect of speedily restoring the province to its normal state, will foster the habitual self-reliance of its people, and will relieve the imperial finances from the severe strain which during the past season they have undergone

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 25TH OCTOBER 1877

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

Abstract of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India, assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament 24 & 25 Vic, Cap 67

The Council met at Simla on Wednesday, the 17th October 1877.

PRESENT

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, G M S I, presiding
His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, C S I
His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, K C B.
The Hon'ble Sir E C Bayley, K C S I
The Hon'ble Sir A J. Arbuthnot, K C S I
Colonel the Hon'ble Sir Andrew Clarke, R E, K C M G, C B.
Major-General the Hon'ble Sir E B Johnson, K C B
The Hon'ble Whitley Stokes, C S I
The Hon'ble F R Cockerell
The Hon'ble T C Hope, C S I

PANJÁB COURTS BILL

The Hon'ble MR STOKES moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Courts in the Panjab be taken into consideration He said that the Bill as introduced had been subjected to careful examination by the learned Judges of the Panjáb Chief Court Plus vident oculi quam oculus was an old and true proverb, and here, as always happened when three additional pairs of intelligent eyes were brought to bear on a complicated draft, some errors and omissions had been detected Of these, however, only two were important enough to require mention The Committee had added, at Mr Justice Plowden's suggestion, a section declaring the Chief Court to be a High Court within the meaning of sections 633 and 637 of the new Code of Civil Procedure The result would be that the Judges of the Chief Court would take evidence and record judgments and orders in such manner as the Court might by rule direct, and that any non-judicial act which the Code required to be done by a Judge might be done by the Registrar, to the great saving of valuable time The second amendment was in section 46, which declared that Judges should not try suits in which they were personally interested This might obviously sometimes cause great and useless inconvenience, for example, when the Judge happened to hold a share or two in the Bank of Bengal and the Bank was suing a tradesman on a bill of exchange for Rs 100 We had accordingly provided that the parties might waive objection to the jurisdiction of a Judge having interest in the subject-matter. The only other change which he would mention was that the Bill would come into force on receiving His Excellency's signature, instead of on such day as the Local Government should appoint

It was right to add that the Chief Court had asked that jurisdiction to hear summary suits on negotiable instruments might be conferred upon it But the Chief Court, like the High Court at Allahabad, had no ordinary original civil jurisdiction, on such Courts the framers of the new Code of Civil Procedure did not intend to confer jurisdiction to hear this class of suits, and the request of the Chief Court was therefore refused. This would cause no inconvenience to the public, for His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor could, and doubtless would, by notification under the new Code, section 538, clause (e), apply sections 532—537 of the Code to the Courts of all or some of the Deputy Commissioners. The Chief Court could then, if it liked, withdraw and itself try all such summary suits instituted in these Courts and remit the decrees for execution to the Courts from which the suits had been so withdrawn

HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR expressed his approval of the provisions of the Bill in its present form

The Motion was put and agreed to

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES also moved that the Bill as amended be passed

The Motion was put and agreed to.

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES LAND-REVENUE ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR STOKES also introduced the Bill to amend the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee He said that the primary object of this little Bill was to deprive persons whose estates were under the management of the local Court of Wards of power to charge or alienate those estates But it would also remove a doubt as to the effect of section 29 of the Act, which provided that—

"A rate may be imposed by order of the Collector of the District on the annual value, or on the cultivated area, of all the maháls composing the circle of each patwárí, or partly in the one way, and partly in the other, for defraying the salary of such patwárí, and any charges incurred on account of any additional establishment required for the proper supervision, maintenance and correction of the patwáris' records"

Doubts existed, which he confessed he himself shared, as to whether this section authorized the application of any part of the fund so raised to defray the cost of the village-maps on which the correctness of patwáris' records mainly depended But, in the opinion of their hon'ble colleague Sir John Strachey, Mr Batten and other experienced North-West officials, it was expedient that the fund should be applicable for this object The Bill would accordingly add an explanation to section 29 to the effect that charges incurred in the preparation of village-maps should be deemed charges within the meaning of this section

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR STOKES also moved that the Bill be published in the Gazette of India in English, and in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Gazette in English and in such other languages as the Local Government should direct

The Motion was put and agreed to.

DISTRESSED SEAMEN'S EXPENSES RECOVERY BILL

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES also moved for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the recovery in British India of wages due to, and expenses incurred in respect of, certain seamen and apprentices. He said that the Merchant Shipping Acts of 1854 and 1855 provided, in all necessitous cases occurring out of the United Kingdom, for subsisting and relieving distressed seamen who were British subjects, and for sending them home, or burying any who died in such circumstances, at the public expense, with a right of recovery over against any master or owner liable to pay such wages or such expenses This right of recovery was given only to the Board of Trade. But the distressed seamen in question were in many cases Natives of India, and belonged to ships which were either registered in or traded to India, and which were seldom, if ever, found within the ports of the United Kingdom In such cases the Board of Trade had considerable difficulty in recovering the sums expended. When the distressed seamen were Natives of this country, these expenses were charged to the Indian revenue. It was therefore desirable that the Government of India should be enabled to empower some person here to sue, in case the ships or persons chargeable were found in this country. The Bill would effect this object by providing that such suits might be brought in the name of the Secretary of State in Council by such persons as the Governor General in Council might, by notification in the Gazette of India, generally or specially authorize in that behalf.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN FOREST BILL

The Hon'ble MR HOPE moved that His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb be added to the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the law relating to the management and preservation of Government forests, to the transit of forest-produce and to the duty leviable on timber. He said that he ought perhaps to explain that this motion was necessary for technical reasons The Hon'ble Mr Egerton had, on February 14th, when an Additional Member of the Council, been appointed a member of the Select Committee on the Forest Bill and had actually served in that capacity up to the present time. But, as he had sent in his resignation of the post of Additional Member when he assumed the office of Lieutenant-Governor, it was held that a re-appointment to the Select Committee was necessary in order to validate his signature of the Report which was about to be presented.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE also presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the law relating to the management and preservation of Government forests, to the transit of forest-produce and to the duty leviable on timber. He said that in doing so he must first explain why the direction of the Council given on the 31st of January last, that the Report should be presented in two months, had not been complied with. Those two months corresponded with the time that the Council had remained in Calcutta, and the late Law Member, Sir A. Hobhouse, together with the Secretary, had been so occupied with the Civil Procedure Code and other urgent legislation that they had been quite unable to give any time to the Forest Bill. The two months had not, however, been lost, as an informal committee, consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Egerton, Mr Batten, the Secretary to the Government of India in the Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, Dr Schlich and Mr. Baden Powell, the Conservators of Bengal and the Panjáb, together with MR HOPE himself, had, with the approval of Sir A Hobhouse, considered the Bill and revised it thoroughly. On coming to Simla MR. HOPE had, he said, been unable to find any leisure for the Bill until recently when he had been relieved of his Famine duties

As to the Bill itself, he was glad to say that the original draft of it had been most favourably received by all the Local Governments except that of Madras. The Chief Commissioner of British Burma, a province which was perhaps more interested in the matter than any other, had expressed his opinion that the Bill would meet all the necessities of the case, and that it would render superfluous the prosecution of the separate Bill for British Burma which had been introduced into the Council The Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces had written thus :—"Of the scope of the Bill and its general arrangement the Chief Commissioner is glad to be able to express his hearty approval, and it appears to him to provide for all matters connected with Forest conservancy that can be fairly attempted in India for some time to come" The Commissioner of Coorg said that the provisions of the Bill seemed to him "suitable for adoption" The Chief Commissioner of Assam had only one suggestion for improvement to make. The Commissioner in Sindh reported that he "considers its provisions applicable to Sindh, and that he has no alterations or additions to suggest" The Conservator of the Northern Division, Bombay, said "the Bill seems to me to be complete and fully to meet the circumstances and wants of the Northern Division," and the Bombay Government consider that the Bill "will serve its purpose" As to Bengal, the report was that "the present draft appears to the Lieutenant-Governor sufficiently to meet the requirements of Bengal" The Conservator of the North-West Provinces said. "I think the Bill provides for every thing that is required," while the Panjáb, as represented on the Select Committee by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, was understood to be satisfied. MR. HOPE did not mean to imply that the whole of the expressions of approval he had quoted were unqualified. In some cases they were, but in others they were accompanied by objections or suggestions regarding particular points. All these had been carefully considered, and many had led to material improvements

MR HOPE thought that he might safely say that the Bill now presented was very superior in scope, precision, adaptability and care of all popular rights to the draft as introduced Wherever rights could not be allowed to continue (and he believed such cases would prove comparatively few), provision had been made for compensation or commutation, wherever mere regulation was sufficient, care had been taken to leave the people all which in practice they could reasonably require The objections of Madras had not been forgotten. The Bill had been so materially altered to meet them that he had now every hope that the Madras Government, considering also the scope which the power of making rules gave for meeting local peculiarities, would find themselves able to accept it. If, however, the event should be otherwise, then this Bill offered no obstacle, as Sir A Hobhouse had explained to the Council, to separate local legislation

As to the character of the Bill generally, MR HOPE trusted that any persons who were still disposed to think any part of it arbitrary, would remember that, without effective regulation and conservation of forests, not merely the public revenue, but the public themselves, would suffer, and even risks of famine might be infinitely increased On this subject he thought the Council would be interested to hear the views regarding the condition of Southern India recently expressed by a distinguished administrator, which were as follows —

"The southern peninsula of India has been or is being denuded, not only of its forests but also of its jungles, its brushwood, its groves, its trees The denudation has been, as I understand, going on near the sources and the upper courses of the many rivers which water the country This, perhaps, is being in some degree checked But with the progress of coffee planting, and with the assertion of communal rights on behalf of the people, the utmost vigilance will be needed to keep it within bounds If it were to proceed unchecked, there would be imminent danger of the rivers running dry by reason of the catchment basins and the drainage areas near their sources being rainless And as these rivers supply the great canal systems, this danger has only to be mentioned in order to be felt The same argument applies in a lesser degree to the tanks or lakes which are second only to the canals in usefulness for irrigation It has already been seen how precarious is the position of these reservoirs, even with one year's drought The progress of the country causes the price of timber and of firewood to rise The introduction of Railways has, in the absence of any local coal-mines, greatly augmented the demand for fuel Strong temptations are thus inevitably offered to the people at large to fell, cut and lop recklessly, to bring every log, stump and stick to market, to dig out the very roots of the jungle, so stopping any chance of reproduction, without thought for the future There are stories to be heard everywhere of groves and hedgerows and scattered trees being cut for sale In the midst of cultivated tracts there are to be seen bare, sterile hillsides, said to have been forest-clad within living memory In such localities the climate is supposed to have changed for the worse Beyond the Ghât mountains, in Bellary and Kurnool, the treeless, shrubless aspect of the country is as wonderful as it is melancholy These are the very districts where famine has been occasionally epidemic, and where scarcity is almost endemic Any thoughtful spectator must perceive that, according to all meteorological experience, and to the almost certain teachings of proved fact, these fine districts were not destined by nature to be the prey and sport of famine or scarcity, but have been rendered subject to these calamities by the thoughtless action of man Even the numerous groves planted in the last generation by the great Collector Mr Robertson, whose name is still a household word, were made over many years ago to the villagers, and have been mostly cut down Trees, jungle and forests must, indeed, be thinned and cut for the use of man, but they need never be exhausted, and something might always be left for reproduction"

Nothing could be more true and worthy of attention than these graphic and practical remarks Regarding the necessity for regulation of the use of forests in the interests of the public, MR HOPE would conclude by quoting the opinion of the Secretary of State, not very long ago communicated to the Government of India —

"Her Majesty's Government are, as you are aware, fully impressed with the importance of the adoption of efficient measures for preserving the forests of India, whilst they admit also the necessity of those measures being so framed as to interfere as little as possible with private rights, which may have grown up on behalf of villages or individuals On the other hand, it must be remembered that as civilisation advances these rights become less and less necessary to the cultivators, and are found frequently incompatible with the superior rights of the whole community, among whom the cultivators themselves obtain advantage in other ways from the restriction of their ancient privileges The change to this state of things must be gradual, and so timed as to make the transition as little onerous as may be to those who have held such privileges In the instance before us, it must be remembered that the absolute concession of these privileges would, as a rule, render the effective preservation of the forests impossible, and, moreover, that this is not an object of private import, but is undertaken by Government for the benefit of the whole community

"It may be added that all the measures already adopted for several years past must have tended to prepare the minds of the inhabitants of the villages for a change of the nature indicated"

On the Bill to amend the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873—The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Arbuthnot, the Hon'ble Mr Cockerell and the Mover.
